

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. PREFACE.

THIS treatise is a revision of the author's Practical Grammar, first published ten years ago. In the work of revision, as in the preparation of the original treatise, the ever-recurring wants and requirements of the class-room have been kept constantly in view. Some matter of minor importance has been omitted to make room for a more extended as well as more satisfactory treatment of several essential subjects; a few definitions have been modified, and, it is believed, improved in expression and accuracy; the number of technical terms to be used in parsing and analysis has been diminished; but the distinguishing features of the treatise have been preserved, and its general plan has not been changed in any important particular. Nothing has been omitted that, in the judgment of the author, ought to be retained, and nothing has been added that did not seem to be essential to completeness or desirable as an aid to the student.

Accuracy and facility in the use of language, both spoken and written, are the chief ends to be secured by the study of grammar. To secure these ends, a thorough acquaintance with the elements, forms, structure, and laws of our mother tongue, is indispensable; and a practical knowledge of these can be acquired only by patient, persistent exercise in the analysis and synthesis of syllables, words, and sentences. The plan of this treatise is in strict accordance with this educational doctrine. The author has endeavored to present the subject in a simple, concise, and perspicuous manner, and to furnish such "models" for necessary routine work as the student may use to the best advantage. He would call special attention to these "models," and suggest that more attention be paid to those relating to synthesis than most teachers have heretofore thought advisable. He has purposely avoided the discussion of mere theories; preferring, rather, a plain, didactic statement or clear indication of his own views, especially on those points that annoy and perplex both pupil and teacher. Experience has taught him that such discussions serve only to confuse and discourage the beginner, and are of questionable utility to the advanced student. Neither the erudition of the teacher nor the exhaustive completeness of the text-book used, can compensate for the lack of intelligent, systematic drill in the class-room.

The acknowledgments of the author are due for many valuable criticisms and suggestions, received from a large number of thoughtful, earnest teachers and superintendents. For these highly-esteemed favors he tenders his grateful thanks. His correspondents will see that most of their advice has been heeded.

Actuated by a desire to render the labor of the class-room more pleasant and effective, by furnishing an attractive means for instruction in a useful branch of study, the author ventures the hope that this revision will commend itself to the favorable notice and consideration of his fellow-teachers.

ENGLISH GRAMMAR.

1. DEFINITIONS.

1. A Word is the sign of an idea.
2. Language is the expression of thought by means of words. It may be either spoken or written.
Spoken Language is the expression of ideas by the voice.
Written Language is the expression of ideas by the use of written or printed characters representing sounds.
3. Grammar treats of the principles and usages of language.
4. English Grammar teaches how to speak and write the English language correctly.
5. English Grammar is divided into four parts: Orthography, Etymology, Syntax, and Prosody.
6. Orthography treats of elementary sounds, letters, syllables, and spelling.
7. Etymology treats of the classification, derivation, and properties of words.
8. Syntax treats of the construction of sentences.
9. Prosody treats of the quantity of syllables, of accent, and of the laws of versification.

PART I.

ORTHOGRAPHY.

2. DEFINITIONS.

1. Orthography treats of elementary sounds, letters, syllables, and spelling.

2. An Elementary Sound is one which can not be separated into two or more distinct sounds.

3. A Letter is a character used to represent either an elementary sound or a combination of elementary sounds; as, a, x.

Letters are divided into Vowels and Consonants. Vowels are used to represent Vocals; Consonants, to represent Subvocals and Aspirates.

4. A Syllable is a sound or a combination of sounds uttered with one impulse of the voice, and may be represented by a letter or a group of letters; as, man, man-ner, man-u-mit.

5. A Word is either a syllable or a combination of syllables; as, hat, men-tion, phi-los-o-phy.

3. ELEMENTARY SOUNDS.

1. There are forty-two elementary sounds in the English language.

2. They are divided into Vocals, Subvocals, and Aspirates.

3. Vocals are those sounds which are made with the vocal organs open, and consist of pure tone only. They are also called Tonics.

4. Subvocals are those sounds which are obstructed by the vocal organs, in the process of articulation. They are sometimes called Subtonics.

5. Aspirates are mere emissions of breath, articulated by the lips, tongue, teeth, and palate. They are sometimes called Atonics.

ë long, " éve.		ü long, " lûte.
ë short, " ell.		ü short, " cup.
é " err.

5. SUBVOCALS AND ASPIRATES.

1. Subvocals and Aspirates may be divided into six classes, viz.:

Labials, or lip-sounds, which are made by the lips;

Linguals, or tongue-sounds, made by the tongue;

Linguo-dentals, or tongue-teeth-sounds, made by the tongue and teeth;

Linguo-nasals, or tongue-nose-sounds, articulated by the tongue, the sound passing through the nose

Palato-nasals, or palate-nose-sounds, made by the palate, the sound passing through the nose;

Palatals, or palate-sounds, made by the palate.

2. The Subvocals are arranged on the left of the page, and the corresponding Aspirates on the right.

LABIALS.

b , as in bib.	p , as in lip.
v , " save.	f , " life.
w , " way.	wh , " when.
m , " am.

LINGUO-DENTALS.

th , " thou.	th , " thin.
j , " jar.	ch , " rich.
z , " size.	s , " hiss.
zh , " azure (äzh'ur).	sh , " hush.

LINGUALS.

l , as in lull.
r , " roar.	(Have no corresponding aspirates.)

LINGUO-NASAL.

n , as in man.
	(Has no corresponding aspirate.)

PALATO-NASAL.

ng , as in song.
	(Has no corresponding aspirate.)

PALATALS.

g , as in nag.	k , as in kick.
y , " yes.	(Has no corresponding aspirate.)

h, " how.

Rem.—The sounds represented by l, m, n, and r, are sometimes called liquids, because they easily unite with other sub-vocals or aspirates.

6. LETTERS.

There are twenty-six letters in the English alphabet. As there are more elementary sounds than letters, it becomes necessary that some letters represent more than one sound. Letters also combine to represent sounds for which there are no single representatives, and the same sound is frequently common to a number of letters. Letters and combinations of letters are often used as substitutes for other letters.

7. DIPHTHONGS, DIGRAPHS, AND TRIGRAPHS.

1. A Diphthong consists of two vowels sounded together in the same syllable.

Rem.—There are two diphthongal sounds, represented by four diphthongs, viz.: ou, ow, oi, oy, as in foul, now, boil, cloy.

2. A Digraph consists of two vowels written together in the same syllable, one only being pronounced, or both representing a single elementary sound.

Rem.—There are twenty-five digraphs, viz.: aa, Canaan; ae, Gaelic; ai, gain; ao, gaol; au, maul; aw, maw; ay, may; ea, meat; ee, need; ei, ceiling; eo, people; eu, feud; ew, new; ey, they; ie, lief, oa, coat; oe, foe; oi, avoirdupois; oo, moon; ou, tour; ow, flow; ua, guard; ue, sue; ui, guise; uy, buy.

3. A Trigraph consists of three vowels written together in the same syllable, one only being pronounced, or the three together representing a single vocal sound, or diphthong.

Rem. I.—There are eight trigraphs, viz.: aye, aye; awe, awe; eau, beau, beauty; eou, gorgeous; eye, eye; ieu, lieu; iew, view; owe, owe.

Rem. 2.—In such words as Christian, alien, union, i does not form a digraph with the following vowel, but is a substitute for y. In the unaccented terminations cean, cial, sion, tion, the combinations ce, ci, si, ti, are substitutes for sh.

Rem. 3.—In such words as herbaceous, gracious, precious, e and i do not form trigraphs with the following vowels, but the combinations ce, ci are substitutes for sh.

8. DOUBLE CONSONANTS.

Double Consonants consist of two consonants written together in the same syllable, representing a single elementary sound.

Rem.—They are ch, chaise, chord; gh, laugh; ph, physic; sh, hush; th, thin, thine; wh, when; ng, sing.

9. SUBSTITUTES.

A Substitute represents a sound usually represented by another letter or combination of letters.

A long has four substitutes: ɛ, tête; ei, feint; ey, they; ao, gaol.

A as in air has two substitutes: e, there; ei, heir.

A broad has two substitutes: o, cord; ou, sought.

E long has three substitutes: i, marine; ie, fiend; ay, quay.

E short has three substitutes: ay, says; u, bury; ie, friend.

E as in err has three substitutes: i, sir, y, myrrh; o, work.

I long has three substitutes: y, thyme; ei, Steinway; oi, choir.

I short has six substitutes: y, hymn; e, England; u, busy; o, women; ee, been; ai, captain.

O long has three substitutes: eau, beau; ew, sew; oa, goal.

O short has two substitutes: a, what; ow, knowledge.

U long has five substitutes: eau, beauty; ieu, lieu; iew, view; eu, new; ui, suit.

U short has one substitute: o, son.

F has two substitutes: gh, laugh; ph, philosophy.

J has two substitutes: g, rage; di, soldier.

K has four substitutes: c, can; ch, chord; gh, lough; qu, pique.

S has two substitutes: c before e, i, and y; z, quartz.

T has one substitute; ed final, after any aspirate except t.

V has two substitutes: f, of; ph, Stephen.

W has one substitute: u, quick. It is understood before o in one, once.

X is used as a substitute for ks, as in wax; gz, as in exact; ksh, as in noxious.

Y has one substitute: i, alien. It is frequently understood before u, as in verdure.

Z has three substitutes: c, sacrifice; s his; x, Xenia.

CH has one substitute: ti, question.

SH has six substitutes: ce, ocean; ci, facial; si, losion; ti, motion; ch, chaise; s, sugar.

ZH has four substitutes: si, fusion; zi, brazier; z, azure; s, rasure.

NG has one substitute: n, generally before palatal sounds; as in ink, uncle, conquer.

10. FORMS OF THE LETTERS.

1. Letters are of different styles; as, Roman, Italic, Script, Old English.

2. Types for printing are of various sizes:

Great Primer,	Small Pica,	Minion,
English,	Long Primer,	Nonpareil,
Pica,	Bourgeois,	Agate,
	Brevier,	Pearl,
		Diamond.

3. Letters are used either as capital letters or as small letters.

Rem.—Printers call small letters lower case.

11. CAPITAL LETTERS.

I. The first word of every sentence, or the first word after a full pause, should begin with a capital letter.

Ex.—Winds blow. Snow falls. The heavens are afame.

II. The first word after an introductory word or clause may begin with a capital letter.

Ex.—“Resolved, That the sum of three thousand dollars be appropriated,” etc.

“Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, That section fourteen,” etc.

III. Each item of an enumeration of particulars, arranged in paragraphs, should begin with a capital letter.

Ex.—“These expenditures are in proportion to the whole expenditures of government:

In Austria, as thirty-three per cent;
In France, as thirty-eight per cent;
In Great Britain, as seventy-four per cent.”

IV. The first word of a direct quotation, or of an important statement, a distinct speech, etc., should begin with a capital letter.

Ex.—“When thou saidst, Seek ye my face; my heart said unto thee, Thy face, Lord, will I seek.” “Dora said, ‘My uncle took the boy.’” “One truth is clear: Whatever is, is right.”

V. The first word in every line of poetry should begin with a capital letter.

Ex.—“Put your best foot foremost, or I fear
That we shall miss the mail: and here it comes
With five at top; as quaint a four in hand
As you shall see—three piebalds and a roan.”

Rem.—In humorous poetry, when a word is divided at the end of a line, the first letter of the next line may be a capital or a small letter.

Ex.—“Faith, he’s got the Knicker-Bocker Magazine.”

“Here doomed to starve on water gruel, never shall I see the University of Gottingen.”

VI. Proper names of persons, places, months, days, etc., should begin with capital letters.

Ex.—James, Emma, Boston, July, Wednesday, James Monroe, O. W. Holmes.

VII. Titles of honor or distinction, used alone or accompanied by nouns, should begin with capital letters.

Ex.—Earl Russell; the Duke of York; Mr. Wilson; Mrs. Smith; Dr. Johnson; Gen. Harrison; Sir Robert Peel; George the Third; Charles the Bold; “O had I a thousand a year, Gaffer Green;” “The Elder spake as follows.”

VIII. Names of things personified should usually begin with capital letters.

Ex.—“Come, gentle Spring! ethereal Mildness! come.”

“In Misery’s darkest cavern known,
His useful care was nigh,
When hopeless Anguish poured his groan,
And lonely Want retired to die.”

IX. Words or phrases used as names for particular objects, should begin with capital letters.

Ex.—The Falls; Yellow Creek; the Havana; the City of Brothersly Love; the Cape of Good Hope; John o’ Groat’s House; the Round Tower; the Sailor’s Home; “I have read ‘The Tent on the Beach.’”

X. All appellations of the Deity should begin with capital letters.

Ex.—God; the Most High; the Supreme; the Infinite One; Divine Providence; the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost; our Lord Jesus Christ.

Rem. 1.—A word referring to the Deity, but not used as an appellation, should sometimes begin with a capital letter.

Ex.—“The Hand that made us is divine.”

“The spangled heavens, a shining frame,
Their great Original proclaim.”

Rem. 2.—A pronoun, whose expressed antecedent is the name of the Deity, usually requires no capitals; as, “O thou merciful God!” “God provides for all his creatures.”

Rem. 3.—The pronouns he, his, him, thy, and thee, referring to names of the Deity, in sentences where their antecedents are understood, may sometimes begin with capital letters; as, “The hope of my spirit turns trembling to Thee;” “Trust in Him, for He will sustain thee.”

XI. Nouns denoting the race or nation of individuals should begin with capital letters.

Ex.—The French; the Spaniards; the English; the Anglo-Saxons.

XII. Words derived from proper names should begin with capital letters.

Ex.—American, Mainote, Danish, Johnsonian, Icelandic.

Rem.—When such words become common nouns by losing their reference to their original proper nouns, they should not begin with capital letters; as, a louis d’or; a guinea; china-ware.

XIII. Words of special importance may begin with capital letters.

Ex.—The Tariff; the Sub-Treasury Bill; the Commissioner of Common Schools; “Be prepared for the Great Day;” “Angler’s Companion: a Complete and Superior Treatise on the art of Angling.”

XIV. In natural history, generic names, or names of genera, should commence with capital letters. Specific names, or names of species, if derived from proper nouns, should also commence with capitals; otherwise, with small letters. Scientific terms are usually printed in italics.

Ex.--Rosa Gallica, Rosa alba; Anomma Burmeisteri, Anomma rubella; Spongites Townsendi, Spongites flexuosus.

XV. The pronoun I and the interjection O should be capitals.

Ex.-- "Sleep, O gentle Sleep,
Nature's soft nurse, how have I frighted thee."

GENERAL REMARKS.

1. Indirect quotations, or words quoted as the peculiar language of authors, should not begin with capital letters; as, "A man is an 'individual,' or a 'person,' or a 'party.'" "A fine house is always a 'palatial residence.'"
2. In writing many compound names of places, usage is not uniform. When the parts remain separate, or are connected by a hyphen, each should begin with a capital letter: when the parts are consolidated, but one capital letter should be used; as, New Castle, New-Castle, Newcastle.
3. In phrases or sentences used as headings or titles, nouns, adjectives, participles, or other important words, only, should begin with capital letters: unimportant words and connectives should begin with small letters.
4. In advertisements, show-bills, etc., different styles and sizes of type are used, and quite frequently the rules for the use of capitals are not observed.
5. Names, signs, titles, and mottoes, designed to attract attention, are printed in various styles: most frequently in capitals.

12. EXERCISES TO BE CORRECTED.

1.—it is a pleasant thing to see the sun. man is mortal.
flowers bloom in summer.

2.—Resolved, that the framers of the constitution, etc.

3.—The town has expended, the past year:

for grading streets,	$15,000.
for public buildings,	15,000.

4.—He said "you are too impulsive;" Remember the maxim,
"a penny saved is a penny earned."

5.—"The day is past and gone;
the evening shades appear;
O may we all remember well the night of death draws near."

6.—James and samuel went to baltimore last august; The general assembly meets on the first monday in february.

7.—The bill was vetoed by the president; John Jones, esq.; Richard the third; "The opposition was led by lord Brougham."

8.—" When music, heavenly maid, was young,
While yet, in early Greece, she sung,
The passions, oft, to hear her shell,
Throng'd around her magic cell."

9.—The central park; the Ohio river; I have read "great expectations;" the mountains of the moon are in Africa.

10.—The lord shall endure forever; Remember thy creator; divine love and wisdom; "The ways of providence."

11.—"I know that my redeemer liveth;" "I am the way, the truth, and the life;" "The word was made flesh."

12.—Those are chinamen; the turcomans are a wandering race; the gypsies of Spain; the indians are fast disappearing.

13.—The swiss family Robinson; a russian serf; "The rank is but the Guinea's stamp;" a Cashmere shawl; a Damask rose.

14.—The emancipation proclamation; the art of cookery, (a title); the Missouri compromise; the whisky insurrection; "A treatise on the science of education and the art of teaching."

15.—i don't like to study grammar. i write correctly enough, now. o, how i wish school was out.

13. ITALICS, SMALL CAPITALS, ETC.

I. Emphatic words, phrases, and clauses are frequently printed in italics.

Ex.—“Do not you grieve at this?” “The truth is, his lordship weeps for the press, and wipes his eyes with the public.”—Curran.

II. Words borrowed from foreign languages should be printed in italics.

Ex.—“Each word stood quite per se.”—Lamb. “This odd quid pro quo surprised me into vehement laughter.”—Walpole.

III. The names of authors, annexed to selections from their writings, are usually printed in italics.

Ex.—“His coward lips did from their color fly.”—Shakespeare.

IV. Parenthetical words and phrases are frequently printed in italics.

Ex.—Old gentleman (looking quite unconcerned), “Run away, has she?”

V. Names of ships, books, newspapers, and periodicals are frequently printed in italics or small capitals.

Ex.—“The Quaker City has arrived.” ‘The JOURNAL is committed to no such policy as that.’

VI. Names of important personages are frequently printed in small capitals.

VII. Words requiring special emphasis are frequently printed in small capitals or capitals.

Ex.—"I brand him as a rogue, a THIEF, a COWARD."—Placard.

Rem. 1.—Italicized words in the Bible are those supplied by translators to explain the original.

Rem. 2.—In manuscripts, one line drawn under a word indicates italics; two lines, SMALL CAPITALS; three lines, CAPITALS.

Rem. 3.—In this work, full-faced types are also used for distinction.

14. SYLLABLES.

1. A Syllable may be composed:

1. Of a vowel, diphthong, digraph, or trigraph; as, o-men, ou-ranography, eau-de-cologne.

2. Of a vowel or diphthong, with one or more consonants prefixed or affixed; as, l-o, b-oy, a-m, a-nd.

3. Of a vowel or diphthong, with one or more consonants prefixed and affixed; as, b-a-d, fr-a-nk.

2. A vocal sound is an essential part of a syllable.

3. Synthesis is the process of combining elementary sounds.

4. Analysis is the process of separating a syllable or word into its elementary sounds.

15. MODELS FOR ANALYZING SYLLABLES.

MODEL I.

Lo.—Give both sounds in quick succession, L-o, and pronounce the word.

MODEL II.

Lo . . . is a syllable, containing two elementary sounds.

L . . . is a consonant-subvocal-lingual. (Give its sound.)

o . . . is a vowel-vocal, long sound. (Give its sound.)

MODEL III.

Clank.—Give the five sounds in quick succession, c-l-a-n-k, and pronounce the word.

MODEL IV.

Clank is a syllable, containing five elementary sounds.

C . . . is a consonant-aspirate-palatal, substitute for k. (Give its sound.)

l . . . is a consonant-subvocal-lingual. (Give its sound.)

a . . . is a vowel-vocal, short sound. (Give its sound.)

n . . . is a consonant-subvocal-palatal-nasal, substitute for ng.
(Give its sound.)

k . . . is a consonant-aspirate-palatal. (Give its sound.)

MODEL V.

Boy.—Give the three sounds in quick succession, b-a-i, and pronounce the word.

MODEL VI.

Boy . . . is a syllable, containing three elementary sounds.

B . . . is a consonant-subvocal-labial. (Give its sound.) oy . . . is a diphthong, representing a broad, and i short. (Give the sound of each in quick succession.)

MODEL VII.

View.—Give the two sounds in quick succession, v-u, and pronounce the word.

MODEL VIII.

View . is a syllable, containing two elementary sounds.

V . . . is a consonant-subvocal-labial. (Give its sound.)

iew . is a trigraph, equivalent to u long. (Give its sound.)

Note.—Either set of models may be used in analyzing syllables. The models for complete analysis need not be used after the classification of elementary sounds shall have been thoroughly learned.

Analyze the following words, omitting all silent letters:

And, fly, warm, elm, fin, sing, wax, when, sue, light, pot, home, zinc, valve, kid, ask, sun, goat, jolt.

Form syllables by prefixing a consonant to a, ay, eau, oy;
By prefixing two or more consonants to e, oo, aw, i;
By affixing one, two, or more consonants to any of the vowels or diphthongs.

16. WORDS.

1. A Word may consist of one or more syllables.

A word of one syllable is called a monosyllable; as, care, man.

A word of two syllables is called a dissyllable; as, care-ful, man-ly.

A word of three syllables is called a trisyllable; as, care-ful-ness, man-li-ness.

A word of four or more syllables is called a polysyllable; as, com-mu-ni-ty, ec-cen-tric-i-ty.

2. Accent is a stress of voice placed upon a particular syllable. It may be either primary or secondary, the primary being the more forcible.

3. Every word of more than one syllable has one of its syllables accented.

4. In words having both a primary and a secondary accent, the secondary occurs nearest the beginning; as, in"compatibil"ity, in"comprehen"sible.

Rem.—Some polysyllables have two subordinate accents; as, con""stitu"tional"ity, incom""prehen"sibility.

17. MODELS FOR ANALYZING WORDS.

Tree is a word of one syllable: therefore a monosyllable.

Nature is a word of two syllables: therefore a dissyllable. It is accented on the first syllable.

Commotion . is a word of three syllables: therefore a trisyllable. It is accented on the second syllable.

Indefatigable is a word of six syllables: therefore a polysyllable. Its secondary accent is on the first syllable, and its primary accent on the third.

Note.—A word having been analyzed according to one of these models, analyze each syllable according to the preceding models. In separating a word into syllables, divide it as it is pronounced. In writing, never divide a syllable at the end of a line. Each line should end with a word or an entire syllable.

Analyze the following words:

Sand, lead, sack; unction, famous, greatly; endeavor, infamous, candidly; unpopular, information, gratuitous; domestication, interrogation, incredulity; incomprehensible, indefensibility; incompatibility, incompassionately.

Write each of these words on your slates, and divide them into syllables, marking the accented syllables.

Correct the accent in the following words:

Advertise'ment, prima'ry, contra'ry, legis'lature, lament'a-ble, seconda'ry, infa'mous, armis'tice, admi'rable, interest'ing.

Change the accent of the following words to the second syllable, and give the meaning of each word before and after the change:

In'sult, fer'ment, reb'el, rec'ord, pre'lude, con'jure, en'-trance, es'cort, in'crease, in'velid, ob'ject, in'cense, es'say.

18. CLASSES.

1. Words are either Primitive or Derivative.
2. A Primitive or Radical word is one in no way derived from another in the same language; as, mind, faith.
3. A Derivative word is one formed by joining to a primitive some letter or syllable to modify its meaning; as, re-mind, faith-ful.
4. A Compound word is one formed by uniting two or more primitive or derivative words; as, man-worship, Anglo-Saxon.

5. A Prefix is that part of a derivative word which is placed before the radical ; as, re-call, sub-join.
6. A Suffix is that part of a derivative word which is placed after the radical ; as, faith-ful, change-able.
7. Prefixes and suffixes are called Affixes.

Note.—The meaning and use of affixes should be learned from some work prepared for that purpose.—See DeWolf's Instructive Speller and Hand-Book of Derivative Words, and Harvey's Graded School Speller.

PART II.

ETYMOLOGY.

19. PARTS OF SPEECH

1. Etymology treats of the classification, derivation, and properties of words.

2. With reference to meaning and use, words are divided into nine classes, called Parts of Speech.

In the sentence, "The man gave the boy a book, a sled, and a knife," the words man, boy, book, sled, and knife are names of objects. They are called Nouns, which means names. All words used as the names of objects are Nouns.

3. A Noun is a name ; as, bird, Mary, light.

Point out the nouns in the following sentences :

1. The horses are in the pasture.
2. A needle has a sharp point.
3. The clouds rested on the summit of the mountain.
4. The boys got into the boat, and rowed into the middle of the stream.
5. The king was overtaken by a shower a short distance from the avenue that surrounded the city.
6. Henry and Oliver are living with Mr. Fields, their uncle.
7. Cease from anger, and forsake wrath.

In the sentence, "There are two sweet apples on that plate," sweet denotes that the apples possess a certain quality, that of being sweet; two denotes the number of apples; and that is used to designate, or point out, the plate on which the apples are. These words are called Adjectives, and they are said to describe or define the nouns which follow them.

4. An Adjective is a word used to describe or define a noun; as, small birds, four boys, that fox.

Point out the nouns and adjectives in the following sentences:

1. A poor cripple lives in that cottage.
2. Those pupils are very studious.
3. Each soldier drew his battle blade.
4. Furious storms sweep over these lovely isles.
5. Seven vessels were wrecked in the late storm.
6. There are twenty dimes in two dollars.
7. The dry, hot air was still and oppressive.

In the sentence, "I gave him my book, and he studied his lesson," I and my are used instead of the name of the person speaking, and him, his, and he, instead of the name of the one to whom the book was given. In the sentence, "Who has the book which you were reading?" who is used instead of the name of the person inquired for; which, instead of the word book; and you, instead of the name of the person addressed. Each of these words is called a Pronoun, which means instead of a noun.

5. A Pronoun is a word used instead of a noun; as, "He is my uncle," "Who came with you?"

Point out the nouns, adjectives, and pronouns in the following sentences:

1. I do not know where you live.
2. Who gave her that pencil?
3. She came from home an hour ago.
4. What have you there, my son?
5. Their house is much larger than our uncle's.
6. Your father is her mother's brother.
7. Whose farm is for sale in your neighborhood?

In the sentence, "Horses run," run expresses action: in the sentence, "I am," am expresses being: in the sentence, "The boy sleeps," sleeps expresses state or condition. These words are used to affirm action, being, or state of their subjects. They are called Verbs. Verbs may also express action, being, or state without affirming it; as, to run, to be, to sleep.

6. A Verb is a word which expresses action, being, or state; as, Mary plays, I am, the house stands.

Point out the nouns, pronouns, and verbs in the following sentences:

1. The farmer plows in the spring and fall.
2. Their father gave them money.
3. The great tears sprang to their eyes.
4. They followed the cattle home.
5. The landlord answered his question.
6. He ordered him to go.
7. The pupils who had passed a good examination, went home with joyful hearts.

In the sentence, "I saw a boy writing with a pencil," writing denotes what the boy was doing, but it does not affirm any thing of the boy. It modifies boy, like an adjective. In the sentence, "I saw a letter, written by a boy," written is used as a modifier of letter. Both of these words are derived from the verb to write, and each of them modifies a noun. They partake, therefore, of the properties of the verb and the adjective; i. e., they express action, and they modify nouns. Such words are called Participles, which means partaking of. Some participles partake of the properties of the verb and the noun.

7. A Participle is a word derived from a verb, and partakes of the properties of a verb and of an adjective or a noun; as, "I saw a bird flying;" "A letter, written in haste."

Point out the participles in the following sentences:

1. A light was seen, shining from afar.
2. He sent me a shell, picked up on the sea-shore.
3. A deer was killed by a man, running at full speed.
4. The house struck by lightning belonged to Mr. Ellis.
5. The letter, folded neatly, was put into an envelope.
6. My photograph, taken twenty years ago, has been lost.
7. The enemy, driven from the field, rallied at the fort.

In the sentence, "The man then drove very rapidly over the bridge," then and rapidly modify drove—then denoting the time, and rapidly the manner of driving. Very modifies rapidly by denoting the degree of rapidity with which the man drove. These words, and all words used in a similar manner, are called Adverbs. Adverbs may also modify adjectives and participles.

8. An Adverb is a word used to modify a verb, an adjective, a participle, or an adverb; as, "He runs swiftly;" "You are very kind;" "The letter was written hastily." "He came too slowly."

Point out the adverbs, verbs, and adjectives in the following sentences:

1. He who gives cheerfully gives twice.
2. His affairs were managed imprudently.
3. Proceed slowly and cautiously.
4. We shall never see his like again.
5. You have not acted wisely.
6. We must study diligently.
7. Our dinner, cooked hastily, was eaten greedily.

In the sentence, "Vessels sail on the ocean," the group of words, on the ocean, modifies sail by telling where the vessels sail. The word on connects ocean and sail, and is said to show the relation between them. In the sentence, "We reached the summit of the mountain," of shows the relation between mountain and summit. Words used in this manner are called Prepositions. Ocean is called the object of on; mountain, the object of of.

9. A Preposition is a word used to show the relation between its object and some other word; as, "He came from Troy."

Point out the prepositions in these sentences:

1. The boy fell over a chair into a tub of water.
2. I came from Boston to Cincinnati in 1875.
3. We rested by the roadside.
4. He walked up the valley towards the house of his friend.
5. Walk with me in the garden.
6. I went to the doctor for advice, but he was not at home.

In the sentence, "John and Henry study algebra," and joins, or connects, the two nouns John and Henry. In the sentence, "I will go, if you will stay," if connects the two sentences, I will go and you will stay. Words used in this manner are called Conjunctions. They may connect words, groups of words, or sentences.

10. A Conjunction is a word used to connect words, sentences, or parts of sentences ; as, "John and Elisha are brothers ;" "I must go, but you may stay."

Point out the conjunctions and prepositions in these sentences :

1. He is wise and prudent.
2. James or John will call upon you.
3. I study because I wish to learn.
4. Neither Jane nor Sarah was in the room.
5. I shall not go, if it rain.
6. He is rich, but is very unhappy.
7. Worship the Lord, for he is our God.

In the sentence, "Oh, how tired I am!" the word oh denotes feeling or emotion. It is not used in the statement of a fact, or in asking a question. Many words denoting grief, joy, pity, pain, etc., are used in a similar manner. They are called Interjections.

11. An Interjection is a word used to denote feeling or emotion ; as, Ah, alas, pshaw.

Point out the interjections in the following exercises :

1. Hurrah! we have won!
2. Pshaw, that is nonsense.
3. Ha, ha, ha! I am glad of it.
4. Hem! did he say so?
5. "O," said John,
6. What! tired so soon?

THE NOUN.

20. ORAL LESSON.

Write on your slates the names of five objects in the school-room. These words, as you perceive, are not the objects themselves, but their names. Now write the names of five objects not in the school-room. What are these words called? Ans.—Nouns. Why? Ans.—Because they are names. Write the names of five of your school-mates. What are these words called? Ans.—Nouns. Why? Ans.—Because they are names.

Are there not other names by which your school-mates are called? Ans.—Yes; they may be called girls and boys. Can the name "girl" be applied to all the girls in the room? Ans.—Yes. Can the name "Sarah" be applied to all the girls in the room? Ans.—It can not. Why? Ans.—All the girls are not named "Sarah." There are Mary, and Charlotte, and Jane, and Susan, and many other names for girls.

We have, then, two kinds of Nouns, or names. One kind can be applied to each one of a class, and the other kind can be applied to a particular one only. The first kind are called Common Nouns—they are names common to all the individuals of a class; the second are called Proper Nouns—they are names of particular objects, and are used to distinguish their objects from the classes to which they belong. What kind are the names horse, book, boy, girl, map, blackboard? Ans.—Common Nouns. Why? Ans.—Because they can be applied to each one of a class. What kind are the names John, Charles, Washington, Boston, Europe? Ans.—Proper Nouns. Why? Ans.—Because they can be applied to particular persons, or particular places, only, and distinguish them from the classes to which they belong.

21. DEFINITION.

22. CLASSES.

1. There are two classes of Nouns: Common and Proper.

2. A Common Noun is a name which may be applied to any one of a kind or class of objects; as, boy, child, book, radiation.

3. A Proper Noun is the name of some particular person, place, people, or thing; as, Charles, Cincinnati, The French, The Sun.

Rem. 1.—A proper noun is used to distinguish an object from the class to which it belongs. A word not used for that purpose is not a proper noun.

Rem. 2.—Whenever a proper noun is used in such a manner as to admit of its application to each individual of a class, it becomes a common noun; as, "He is the Cicero of our age;" "Bolivar was the Washington of South America;" "He piled Ossa upon Pelion to accomplish his purpose."

Rem. 3.—Whenever a common noun is used to distinguish one individual from another of the same class, it becomes a proper noun; as, The Havana; The Falls; The Laurel Ridge.

Rem. 4.—When two or more words form but one name, they are taken together as one noun; as, New York; Niagara Falls; John Milton; Lord Bacon; Chief Justice Chase.

Rem. 5.—Common Nouns may be divided into four classes: Class Nouns, Abstract Nouns, Collective Nouns, and Participial Nouns.

Class Nouns are names which can be applied to each individual of a class or group of objects; as, horse, apple, man.

An Abstract Noun is the name of a quality considered apart from the object in which it is found; as, brightness, cohesion.

A Collective Noun is a name singular in form, though denoting more than one; as, herd, jury, swarm, school, assembly.

A Participial Noun is the name of an action, or a state of being; as, singing, standing, seeming.

Rem. 6.—Words, phrases, and clauses used as nouns, or in the relations in which nouns occur, are called substantives, and when thus used have all the properties of nouns.

Rem. 7.—Such words as mass, heap, furniture, names of collections of objects without life, are class nouns, not collective nouns. They are sometimes called mass nouns.

23. PROPERTIES.

The Properties of the Noun are Gender, Person, Number, and Case.

24. GENDER.

1. Gender is a distinction of nouns and pronouns with regard to sex.

Rem.—Sex is a natural distinction of objects—gender is a grammatical distinction of words used to represent objects.

2. There are four genders: Masculine, Feminine, Common, and Neuter.

3. The Masculine Gender denotes males; as, father, uncle, king, governor.

4. The Feminine Gender denotes females; as, mother, aunt, queen, governess.

5. The Common Gender denotes either males or females, or both; as, parent, children, bird, cattle.

6. The Neuter Gender denotes neither males nor females; as, stove, city, pen, ink, tree, house.

Rem. 1.—By a figure of speech called Personification, gender is sometimes ascribed to inanimate objects. They should then be regarded as either masculine or feminine.

Ex.—"The ship has lost her rudder." "The meek-eyed morn appears, mother of dews." "The sun in his glory; the moon in her wane."

Rem. 2.—When masculine or feminine qualities are ascribed to animals, they are regarded as either masculine or feminine.

Ex.—"The nightingale sings her song." "The lion meets his foe boldly." "The fox made his escape."

Rem. 3.—Nouns used to denote both genders, though strictly applicable to males only, or females only, are usually regarded as masculine.

Ex.—"Heirs are often disappointed." "The English are a proud people." "The poets of America."

Rem. 4.—The distinction of gender is not observed in speaking of inferior animals, and sometimes even of children.

Ex.—"The bee on its wing." "The child in its cradle."

7. There are three ways of distinguishing the masculine and feminine genders:

1. By using different words:

Ex—Bachelor, maid, spinster; bridegroom, bride; brother, sister; boy, girl; cock, hen; drake, duck; earl, countess; father, mother; gentleman, lady; hart, roe; male, female; man, woman; Mr., Mrs.;

Sir, Madam; nephew, niece; son, daughter; uncle, aunt; Charles, Caroline; Augustus, Augusta.

2. By different terminations:

Ex.—Abbot, abbess; baron, baroness; host, hostess; actor, actress; prior, prioress; benefactor, benefactress; executor, executrix; murderer, murderess; sorcerer, sorceress.

3. By prefixes and suffixes:

Ex.—Man-servant, maid-servant; he-bear, she-bear; male-descendant, female-descendant; cock-sparrow, hen-sparrow; Mr. Smith, Mrs. Smith, Miss Smith; pea-cock, pea-hen.

25. PERSON.

1. Person is that property of a noun or pronoun which distinguishes the speaker, the person spoken to, and the person or object spoken of.

2. There are three persons: First, Second, and Third.

3. The First Person denotes the speaker; as, “I, John, was in the isle that is called Patmos.” “Many evils beset us mortals.”

4. The Second Person denotes the person addressed; as, “James, be more careful.” “Fellow Citizens, the crisis demands the utmost vigilance.”

5. The Third Person denotes the person or object spoken of; as, “Milton was a poet;” “Rome was an ocean of flame.” “I am reading Tennyson's Poems.”

Rem. 1.—The writer or speaker often speaks of himself, or the person he addresses, in the third person; as, “Mr. Johnson has the pleasure of informing Mr. Mason that he has been elected Honorary Member of the Oriental Society.”

Rem. 2.—A noun in the predicate is of the third person, though the subject may be of the first or second.

Ex.—“You are the man wanted.” “We are strangers.” “I am he whom you saw.”

26. NUMBER.

1. Number is that property of a noun which distinguishes one from more than one.
2. There are two numbers: Singular and Plural.
3. The Singular Number denotes but one; as, apple, flower, boy, girl.
4. The Plural Number denotes more than one; as, apples, flowers, boys, girls.

27. FORMATION OF THE PLURAL.

1. Nouns whose last sound will unite with the sound represented by s, form their plurals by adding s only to the singular; as, book, books; boy, boys; desk, desks.
2. Nouns whose last sound will not unite with the sound represented by s, form their plurals by adding es to the singular; as, church, churches; box, boxes; witness, witnesses.
3. Nouns ending in y preceded by a consonant, change y into i, and add es; as, glory, glories; mercy, mercies.
4. Most nouns ending in f change f to v, and add es; those ending in fe change f to v, and add s; as, beef, beees; wife, wives.
5. Most nouns ending in o preceded by a consonant, add es; as, cargo, cargoes. Nouns ending in o preceded by a vowel, add s; as, folio, folios.
6. Some nouns form their plurals irregularly; as, man, men; ox, oxen; tooth, teeth; mouse, mice.
7. Letters, figures, marks, and signs add 's'; as, "Mind your p's and q's;" the 9's and 11's; the 's; the +'s; "Those ȝ's and ȝȝ's."
8. In compound words, the part which is described by the rest is generally pluralized; as, brothers-in-law, courts-martial; wagon-loads, ox-carts.

9. Compound words from foreign languages form their plurals according to (1) and (2); as, tête-à-têtes, piano-fortes, ipse-dixit, scire-faciases.

10. Some compound words have both parts made plural; as, man-servant, men-servants; knight-templar, knight-templars; ignis-fatuu*s*, ignes-fatui.

11. Compound terms composed of a proper noun and a title, may be pluralized by adding a plural termination to either the name or the title, but not to both; as, the Miss Browns, the Misses Brown; the Messrs. Thompson; "May there be Sir Isaac Newtons in every science."

12. When the title is preceded by a numeral, the name is always pluralized; as, the three Miss Johnsons; the two Dr. Bensons; the two Mrs. Kendricks.

13. Some nouns have two plurals, but with a difference in meaning; as, brother, brothers (of the same family), brethren (of the same society); die, dies (stamps for coining), dice (for gaming); fish, fishes (individuals), fish (quantity, or the species); genius, geniuses (men of genius), genii (spirits); index, indexes (tables of contents), indices (algebraic signs); penny, pennies (pieces of money), pence (how much in value); pea, peas (individuals), pease (in distinction from other vegetables).

14. Proper nouns, and words generally used as other parts of speech, are changed as little as possible, and usually add s only in forming their plurals; as, Mary, Marys; Sarah, Sarahs; Nero, Neros; "The novel is full of ohs, bys, whys, *also*s, and nos." There is good authority, however, for using Maries, Neroes, whies, noes.

15. Many nouns from foreign languages retain their original plurals, changing us to i; um and on to a; is to es or ides; a to æ or ata; and x or ex to ces or ices; as, calculus, calculi; arcanum, arcana; criterion, criteria; thesis, theses; ephemeris, ephemerides; nebula, nebulæ; calix, calices; index, indices.

28. GENERAL REMARKS ON NUMBER.

1. Abstract nouns, and names of material substances, have no plural forms; as, silver, vinegar, hemp, tar, frankness, darkness.

When different kinds of the same substance are referred to, a plural form may be used; as, sugars, vinegars, wines, oils.

2. Some nouns have no singular forms; as, ashes, assets, bellows, billiards, compasses, clothes, drawers, lees, scissors, shears, tongs. News and molasses have the plural form, but are regarded as singular. Lungs, bowels, and a few others, have a singular form denoting a part of the whole; as, "The left lung."

3. Some nouns have no singular forms, but are singular or plural in meaning; as, alms, amends, corps, mumps, measles, nuptials, odds, riches, series, suds, tidings, wages, and some others.

4. The names of some of the sciences are either singular or plural in meaning, according as they denote the science or the objects of which the science treats; as, ethics, mechanics, mathematics, optics, pedagogics, physics, etc.

5. Some nouns are alike in both numbers; as, sheep, deer, vermin, couple, salmon, trout, dozen, gross, hose, yoke.

29. CASE.

Case is the relation of a noun or pronoun to other words. Nouns have four cases: Nominative, Possessive, Objective, and Absolute, or Nominative Absolute.

Rem.—The term case is also applied to the form of a noun or pronoun when used independently, or as a part of a sentence.

30. NOMINATIVE CASE.

The Nominative Case is the use of a noun or pronoun as the subject or the predicate of a proposition.

Ex.—"The sun is shining." "That man is a sailor." In the first sentence, "sun" is in the nominative case, because it is used as the subject of the proposition; in the second, "sailor" is in the nominative case, because it is used as the predicate of the proposition.

31. POSSESSIVE CASE.

1. The Possessive Case is the use of a noun or pronoun to denote ownership, authorship, origin, or kind.

Ex.—Susan's book; Gray's Botany; the sun's rays; boys' hats; men's clothing.

2. The Possessive Case Singular is formed by annexing 's' to the nominative; as, John's, Clarence's.

3. The Possessive Case Plural is formed by annexing the apostrophe only, when the nominative plural ends with s; as, boys'; "The Ohio State Teachers' Association."

Rem. 1.—Plural nouns not ending with s, form their possessive case by annexing ''s'; as, men's hats; children's shoes.

Rem. 2.—In compound names, the possessive sign is annexed to the last word; as, "Daniel Webster's speeches;" in complex names it is annexed to the last word; as, "The Bishop of Dublin's palace;" in a series of terms, and common possession, it is annexed to the last term; as, "Day & Martin's Blacking;" in a series of terms, and separate possession, it is annexed to each term; as, "Webster's and Worcester's Dictionaries."

Rem. 3.—When a noun in the possessive case is limited by a noun in apposition with it, or by a descriptive phrase, the possessive sign is annexed to the noun immediately preceding the object possessed, though not always to the name of the possessor; as, "Her Majesty, Queen Victoria's government;" "The captain of the Fulton's wife died yesterday." Here "captain" is in the possessive case, and "Fulton" in the objective, governed by the preposition "of."

Rem. 4.—In compound words, the sign of possession is placed at the end; as, "The knight-templar's costume;" "My brother-in-law's residence."

Rem. 5.—"For conscience's sake," "For goodness's sake," etc., are idiomatic exceptions to the general rule for forming the possessive case singular.

Rem. 6.—The sign ['] is a contraction of is or es; as, John's, King's; anciently written, Johnis, Kingis, or Johnes, Kinges.

32. OBJECTIVE CASE.

The Objective Case is the use of a noun or pronoun as the object of a transitive verb in the active voice, or of a preposition.

Ex.—“John studies grammar.” “The book is on the table.” In the first sentence, “grammar” is the object of the transitive verb “studies;” in the second, “table” is the object of the preposition “on.”

Rem.—A noun or pronoun used to complete the meaning of a transitive verb is called a direct object; as, “I bought a book.” When added to a verb to denote that to or for which any thing is or is done, or that from which any thing proceeds, it is called an indirect object; as, “I bought him a book.” In this sentence, “book” is the direct and “him” the indirect object of “bought.” When an indirect object precedes the direct, the preposition should be omitted; when it follows, it should be expressed; as, “I gave him an apple;” “I gave an apple to him.”

33. ABSOLUTE CASE.

The Absolute or Nominative Absolute Case is the use of a noun independent of any governing word.

Ex.—“John, bring me a book;” “Your fathers, where are they?” “Honor being lost, all is lost.”

Rem. 1.—A noun or pronoun in this case has the same form that it would have were it in the nominative case. Hence, the case may, with propriety, be called nominative absolute—this term indicating both the form and the use of the word.

Rem. 2.—A noun may be in the nominative absolute case:

1. By direct address; as, “Charles, come to me.” This use is sometimes called the Vocative Case.

2. By mere exclamation; as, “Oh, Popular Applause!”

3. By pleonasm, or by placing the noun before the sentence in which an affirmation is made concerning it; as, "Gad, a troop shall overcome him."

4. With a participle; as, "The sun being risen, we pursued our journey."

5. By position; i. e., by using it as the heading of a chapter, as the superscription to a letter, etc.; as, "A Flood;" "Louis Agassiz."

34. NOUNS IN APPPOSITION.

A noun limiting the meaning of another noun, denoting the same person, place, or thing, is, by apposition, in the same case.

Ex.—"Washington the general became Washington the statesman." "We visited New York, the metropolis of the United States." "In her brother Abraham's house."

35. DECLENSION.

The Declension of a noun is its variation to denote number and case.

EXAMPLES.

Singular.	Plural.		Singular	Plural.
Nom. Boy,	Boys,		Nom. Fly,	Flies,
Poss. Boy's,	Boys',		Poss. Fly's,	Flies',
Obj. Boy.	Boys.		Obj. Fly.	Flies.
Nom. Charles,	—		Nom. Goodness,	—
Poss. Charles's,	—		Poss. Goodness',	—
Obj. Charles.	—		Obj. Goodness.	—

36. PARSING.

Parsing consists, (1) in naming the part of speech; (2) in telling its properties; (3) in pointing out its relation to other words; (4) in giving the rule for its construction.

37. ORDER OF PARSING.

1. A Noun, and why?
2. Common or Proper, and why?
3. Gender, and why?
4. Person, and why?
5. Number, and why?
6. Case, and why?
7. Rule for construction.

38. MODELS FOR PARSING.

I. "Mary sings."

Mary . . . is a noun; it is a name; proper, it is the name of a particular person; feminine gender, it denotes a female; third person, it denotes the person spoken of; singular number, it denotes but one; nominative case, it is used as the subject of the proposition, "Mary sings." Rule I. "The subject of a proposition is in the nominative case."

II. "Horses are animals."

Animals . is a noun; common, it can be applied to any one of a class or kind; common gender, it denotes either males or females; third person; plural number, it denotes more than one; nominative case, it is used as the predicate of the proposition, "Horses are animals." Rule II. "A noun or pronoun used as the predicate of a proposition, is in the nominative case."

III, "The poet Milton was blind."

Milton . . is a noun; proper; masculine gender, it denotes a male; third person; singular number; nominative case, in apposition with "poet." Rule IV. "A noun or pronoun used to limit the meaning of a noun or pronoun, by denoting the same person, place, or thing, is in the same case."

IV. "Henry's lesson is learned."

Henry's . is a noun; proper; masculine gender; third person; singular number; possessive case, it denotes possession, and modifies "lesson." Rule III. "A noun or pronoun used to limit the meaning of a noun denoting a different thing, is in the possessive case."

V. "John studies grammar."

Grammar is a noun; common; neuter gender; third person; singular number; objective case, it is used as the object of the transitive verb "studies." Rule VI. "The object of a transitive verb in the active voice, or of its participles, is in the objective case."

VI. "The book lies on the table."

Table . . is a noun; common; neuter gender; third person; singular number; objective case, it is used as the object of the preposition "on." Rule VII. "The object of a preposition is in the objective case."

VII. "William, open the door."

William . is a noun; proper; masculine gender; second person; singular number; absolute case, it is the name of a person addressed. Rule V. "A noun or pronoun used independently, is in the absolute case."

Note.—For models for parsing participial nouns, see § 90.

39. EXERCISES.

1. The wind blows.
2. The sun shines.
3. Horses run.
4. The vessel sails.
5. Scholars study.
6. Grass grows.
7. Fire burns.
8. Liberty is sweet.
9. St. Helena is an island.
10. Lead is a metal.
11. Cicero was an orator.
12. Grammar is a science.
13. The storm's fury is past.
14. Henry's health is good.
15. The king's palace is on fire.
16. Jane borrowed Sarah's book.
17. Mr. Johnson sells boys' hats.
18. The defeat of Xerxes' army was the downfall of Persia.
19. John struck James. 20. Joseph bought the book. 21. Peter studies algebra. 22. The horse kicked the boy. 23. The man wrote a letter. 24. Samuel lives over the river. 25. Martha went with Susan. 26. James is going to Cincinnati. 27. The boy ran by the mill. 28. "Friends, Romans, Countrymen! lend me your ears!" 29. "To arms! they come! the Greek! the Greek!" 30. "My daughter! oh, my daughter!" 31. "Your fathers, where are they?" 32. "My son, have you seen him?"

Parse all the nouns in the following sentences:

1. Johnson the doctor is a brother of Johnson the lawyer.
2. Shakespeare lived in Queen Elizabeth's reign.
3. "Ah, Warwick! Warwick! wert thou as we are!"
4. Temperance is a virtue.
5. "King Agrippa, believest thou the prophets?"
6. The inferior animals are divided into five classes: quadrupeds, fowls, fishes, reptiles, and insects.
7. The little army fought bravely on that day.
8. Where are the Platos and Aristotles of modern times?
9. I have seen Mr. Squires, the book-seller and stationer.

Correct all errors in the following sentences:

1. I have two brother-in-laws.
2. There were three knight-templars in the procession.
3. Nebulas are sometimes called star-dust.
4. I saw the two Mrs. Jackson.
5. He called at Steele's the banker's.
6. The Jones' were all there.
7. The boys slate was broken.
8. The mens' wages should be paid promptly.
9. She is reading in her sister's Susan's book.
10. He studied O. B. Pierce' Grammar.
11. He has octavoes, quartoes, and folioes, among his books.
12. There are three chimnies on that house.
13. We regard them as singular phenomenons.

THE ADJECTIVE.

40. ORAL LESSON.

Here are some apples, nice for eating: what shall we call them? Ans.—Ripe apples. I have just eaten one, and it tasted sweet: what else can we call them? Ans.—Sweet apples. They are quite soft: what else can we call them? Ans.—Mellow apples. Write on your slates, “Ripe, sweet, mellow apples.” All these words denote some quality of the apple: what shall we call them? Ans.—Quality-words. A very good name.

Let us count the apples: one apple, two apples, three apples, four apples. Let us also number them: the first apple, the second apple, the third apple, the fourth apple. Write these numbers on your slates, as I write them on the blackboard—one, two, three, four: first, second, third, fourth. What shall we call these words? Ans.—Number-words.

When I speak of the apple nearest me, I say, “This apple;” when, of one farther from me, “That apple.” Do the words this and that denote any quality of the apples? Ans.—They do not. What do they do, then? Ans.—They point them out. Very well: what shall we call them? Ans.—Pointing-out-words.

You see that all the words we have used, in some manner describe “apples.” Some denote quality; some, number; some merely point out. What is the word “apple?” Ans.—A noun. Then they all describe a noun. What are all of these words? Ans.—Adjectives.

The “quality-words” we will call Descriptive Adjectives, because they describe by denoting some quality. The “number-words” and “pointing-out-words” do not denote quality. We will call them Definitive Adjectives.

Write, “This is a good book.” What is “good?” Ans.—An adjective. Why? Ans.—It describes the word “book.” What kind? Ans.—Descriptive. Why? Ans.—It denotes a quality belonging to the book. Write, “These two books are mine.” What are “these” and “two?” Ans.—Adjectives. Why? Ans.—They describe “books.” What kind? Ans.—Definitive. Why? Ans.—They define without denoting any quality.

Write, “Every man can do some good.” What are “every” and “some?” Ans.—Adjectives. Why? Ans.—They limit nouns. What kind? Ans.—Definitive. Why? Ans.—They define without denoting any quality.

41. DEFINITION.

An Adjective is a word used to describe or define a noun; as, wise men, that book, three steamships, the fourth stanza.

42. CLASSES.

Adjectives may be divided into two general classes: Descriptive and Definitive.

43. DESCRIPTIVE ADJECTIVES.

1. A Descriptive Adjective limits or describes a noun by denoting some quality belonging to it.

Ex.—A round table, a square table, a sour apple, a sweet apple, a good boy, a bad boy, an Italian sunset, twinkling stars, thick-warbled songs.

Rem. 1.—Words commonly used as other parts of speech, sometimes perform the office of descriptive adjectives, and should be parsed as such.

Ex.—A gold ring, a silver cord, the California pine, a make-believe patriot, double-distilled nonsense. “The West is as truly American, as genuinely Jonathan, as any other part of our country.”

Rem. 2.—An adjective is frequently limited by a word joined to it by a hyphen. The compound term thus formed is called a Compound Adjective, and should be parsed as a single word.

Ex.—A high-sounding title, an ill-matched pair.

Rem. 3.—Adjectives derived from verbs are called Participial Adjectives. They are usually placed before the nouns which they modify.

Ex.—We walked across a plowed field, and soon came to the flowing spring.

Rem. 4.—When a descriptive adjective represents a noun understood, or not expressed, the article must be prefixed; as, “The wise are provident;” “The good are happy.” Adjectives used should be parsed as adjectives used as nouns.

Tell which of the adjectives in the following sentences are Descriptive, and which are Compound and Participle:

1. The unfortunate man was a hard-working mechanic. 2.
- The fields looked beautiful. 3. English books are costly. 4.
- The howling storm is passed. 5. The soil is very productive.
6. The water falls into a marble basin. 7. I prefer a New England winter to an Australian summer.

44. DEFINITIVE ADJECTIVES.

1. A Definitive Adjective limits or defines the application of a noun without expressing any of its qualities.

Ex.—The Ohio, that man, three dollars, the third seal, a two-fold reference. “All men are mortal.” “Each soldier received his pay.”

2. Definitive Adjectives are divided into three classes: Articles, Pronominal Adjectives, and Numeral Adjectives.

45. ARTICLES.

1. “The” is called the Definite Article, because it definitely points out the object which it defines or restricts; as, “The book is on the table;” “The horse ran over the bridge.”

2. “A” or “An” is called the Indefinite Article, because it defines or restricts in an indefinite or general manner; as, “A book is on a table;” “A horse ran over a bridge.”

“An” should be used before words beginning with a vowel sound; “A,” before words beginning with a consonant sound. They are spoken of as one article, because they are merely an earlier and a later form of the same word.

Rem.—An article sometimes limits not a noun alone, but a noun as limited by other words; as, “The old men retired early; the young men remained until midnight.” The article here limits the complex ideas "old men" and "young men." "An early spring is no sign of a fruitful season." The article here limits the complex ideas "early spring" and "fruitful season."

46. PRONOMINAL ADJECTIVES.

1. Pronominal Adjectives are definitives, most of which may, without an article prefixed, represent a noun understood; as, all men, each soldier, yonder mountain.
2. They may be divided into three classes: Demonstratives, Distributives, and Indefinites.

47. DEMONSTRATIVES.

Demonstratives point out objects definitely. They are: this, that, these, those, former, latter, both, same, yon, yonder.

1. This (plural these) distinctly points out an object as near in place or time; as, "This desk and these books."
2. That (plural those) distinctly points out an object as not near, or not so near as some other object; as, "That desk and those books."
3. In speaking of two objects, that should refer to the former, and this to the latter; as, "These horses are larger than those."
4. Former and latter are used to designate which of two objects previously mentioned is referred to; as, "The cry of danger to the Union was raised to divert their assaults upon the Constitution. It was the latter, and not the former, which was in danger."
5. Both implies the one and the other; as, "Both forts were taken;" "James and Silas were both tardy."
6. Same denotes an identical object or one of like kind; as, "That is the same man we saw yesterday;" "Both tables are made of the same wood."

7. Yon and yonder denote in view, but at a distance; as, "Yon house on the hill;" "Yonder mountain is a volcano."

48. DISTRIBUTIVES.

Distributives represent objects as taken separately. There are four distributives: each, every, either, neither.

1. Each can be applied to one of two or any greater number; as, "Each warrior drew his battle blade;" "Useless each without the other."

2. Every denotes all taken separately; as, "They received every man a penny;" "Every person in the room was astonished."

3. Either should be applied to one of two objects only; as, "Either of the two roads leads to town;" "You may have either house."

4. Neither means not either; as, "Which of the two shall I take? both? one? or neither?"

49. INDEFINITES.

Indefinites refer to objects in a general way, without pointing out any one in particular. The principal indefinites are: all, any, another, certain, divers, enough, few, little, many, much, no, none, one, orn, other, several, some, sundry, which, whichever, whichever, what, whatever, whatsoever.

1. All describes objects taken together; as, "All the men were at work in the fields;" "All men are mortal."

2. Any denotes a single one of many, or some; as, "Have you any wheat to sell?" "Neither go into the town, nor tell it to any in the town."

3. Another, or other, means not the same; as, "He took another road;" "He will let out his vineyard to other husbandmen."

4. Certain denotes one or some; as, "And there came a certain poor widow, and she threw in two mites;" "And I, Daniel, was sick certain days."

5. Divers means unlike, various, numerous; as, "A prey of divers colors of needle-work;" "Divers miracles."

6. Enough denotes a sufficiency; as, "I have enough for my brother;" "Enough has been said already."

7. Few denotes a small number; as, "Many shall be called, but few chosen;" "I have a few old books."

8. Little means small in quantity, amount, or duration; as, "A little learning is a dangerous thing."—Pope. "A little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep."

9. Many denotes a large number; as, "Many men of many minds;" "The mutable, rank-scented many."—Shakespeare.

10. Much denotes a large quantity; as, "There is much wealth in this town;" "Thou shalt carry much seed out into the field, and shalt gather but little in."

11. No means not any, none. When used as a noun in the plural number, it means those who vote in the negative; as, "The noes have it."

12. None means not one, or not any; as, "Ye shall flee when none pursueth you;" "Thou shalt have none assurance of thy life." Use "no one" when one only is meant; "none" when more than one are referred to.

13. One corresponds to another; as, "They love one another," i. e., each person loves the other.

14. Own implies possession; as, "My own home;" "Our own dear mother."

15. Several denotes any small number more than two; as, "Several victories." Also, single, individual; as, "I'll kiss each several paper for amends."

16. Some denotes an indeterminate number or quantity; as, "Some money;" "I have brought some books."

17. Sundry means various, divers; as, "Sundry foes;" "For sundry weighty reasons."—Shakespeare.

50. NUMERAL ADJECTIVES.

1. Numerical Adjectives are those which express number and order definitely; as, four, fourth, fourfold.
2. They are divided into three classes: Cardinal, Ordinal, and Multiplicative.
3. Cardinal Numerals denote simply the number of objects; as, two, thirteen, fifty, a thousand.
4. Ordinal Numerals mark the position of an object in a series; as, second, thirteenth, fiftieth, the thousandth.
5. Multiplicative Numerals denote how many fold; as, twofold, fourfold.

GENERAL REMARKS.

1. When such, many, only, but, much, and not are followed by the indefinite article a or an, the phrases such a, many a, etc., limit singular nouns; as, "If you repay me not on such a day;" "Many a time;" "He is but a man;" "Not a drum was heard." These phrases should be parsed as single words.
2. When definitive adjectives are used in connection with descriptive, the former should be placed first; as, "That valuable property;" "Ten small houses."
3. A cardinal numeral used as a noun, requires no article: an ordinal should have the article prefixed; as, "Were not ten cleansed?" "The tenth was rescued."
4. Each other and one another are sometimes called reciprocals, because they are reciprocally related; as, "They mutually assist each other;" "They help one another." Parse "each" and "one" as adjectives used as nouns, in apposition with "they" taken distributively; i. e., as representing a number of individuals taken separately. Use "each" in referring to two individuals, and "one" in referring to more than two. Parse "other" and "another" as adjectives used as nouns in the objective case after the verbs that precede them.

5. Adjectives which vary in form to denote number, should agree in that property with the nouns they limit. Say, "this sort," not "these sort."

51. COMPARISON.

1. Comparison is a variation of the adjective to express different degrees of quality; as, wise, wiser, wisest; good, better, best.

2. There are three Degrees of Comparison: the Positive, the Comparative, the Superlative.

3. The Positive degree ascribes to an object the simple quality, or an equal degree of the quality; as, "A mild winter;" "She is as good as she is beautiful."

4. The Comparative degree ascribes to one of two objects a higher or lower degree of the quality than that expressed by the positive; as, "A milder winter than usual;" "Mary is less studious than Emma."

5. The Superlative degree ascribes the highest or lowest degree of the quality to one of more than two objects; as, "The mildest winter ever known;" "The least skillful rider could do no worse."

Rem. 1.—The suffix ish, and the words rather, somewhat, etc., denote the possession of a small amount of the quality; as, bluish, rather young, somewhat uncomfortable.

Rem. 2.—The words altogether, far, by far, vastly, much, very, exceedingly, a most, a little, too, very, slightly, greatly, etc., denote a high degree of the quality without implying comparison; as, very useful, exceedingly welcome, a most valuable invention.

Rem. 3.—Adjectives denoting qualities which can not exist in different degrees, can not, with propriety, be compared; but when not taken in their full sense, they may be used in the comparative and superlative degrees.

Ex.—Blind, deaf, perfect, right, level, square, straight, perpendicular, equal, naked, honest, sincere, hollow, empty, dead. "My sincerest regards." "Our sight is the most perfect of our senses."

52. COMPARATIVES AND SUPERLATIVES.

1. In Ascending comparison, the comparative and superlative degrees are regularly formed,

1st. By adding to the positive of monosyllables, r or er for the comparative, and st or est for the superlative; as, wise, wiser, wisest; hard, harder, hardest.

2d. By prefixing to the positive of adjectives of more than one syllable, more for the comparative, and most for the superlative; as, honorable, more honorable, most honorable.

Rem. 1.—Most adjectives of two syllables ending in y or le, after a consonant, or accented on the second syllable, form their comparative and superlative degrees like monosyllables; as, holy, holier, holiest; gentle, gentler, gentlest.

Rem. 2.—Some adjectives of two syllables, ending in a vowel or liquid sound, form their comparative and superlative degrees like monosyllables; as, handsome, handsomer, handsomest; narrow, narrower, narrowest.

Rem. 3.—Some words are expressed in the superlative degree by adding the suffix most; as, hindmost, innermost.

2. In Descending comparison, the comparative is formed by prefixing less, and the superlative by prefixing least, to the positive; as, wise, less wise, least wise.

3. Some adjectives are compared irregularly; as, good, better, best; bad, worse, worst.

Rem. 1.—Monosyllables are sometimes compared by prefixing more and most; as, "A foot more light, a step more true."—Scott.

Rem. 2.—Two or more adjectives modifying the same word, may be compared by prefixing more and most to the first; as, "The more nice and elegant parts;" "Most potent, grave, and reverend seigniors."—Shakespeare.

53. ORDER OF PARSING.

1. An adjective, and why?
2. Descriptive or Definitive, and why?
3. Compare it, if it admits of comparison.
4. Degree of comparison, and why?
5. What does it describe or define?
6. Rule.

54. MODELS FOR PARSING.I. "Every diligent boy received merited praise."

Every . . . is an adjective, it is a word used to describe or define the meaning of a noun; definitive, it defines without expressing any quality; distributive pronominal, it represents objects taken separately; it can not be compared, and belongs to "boy." Rule XII. "An adjective or participle belongs to some noun or pronoun."

Diligent . is an adjective; descriptive; it describes a noun by denoting some quality; compared, pos. diligent, comp. more diligent, sup. most diligent: positive degree, and belongs to "boy." Rule XII.

Merited . is an adjective; descriptive; compared, pos. merited, comp. more merited, sup. most merited: positive degree, and belongs to "praise." Rule XII.

II. "Many a fine intellect is buried in poverty."

Many a . . . is an adjective; definitive; indefinite pronominal; it refers to objects in a general way: it can not be compared, and belongs to "intellect." Rule XII.

Fine . . . is an adjective; descriptive; compared, pos. fine, comp. finer, sup. finest; positive degree, and belongs to "intellect." Rule XII.

III. "The first two engravings are American harvest scenes."

The . . . is an adjective; definitive; definite article; it can not be compared, and belongs to "engravings." Rule XII.

First . . . is an adjective; definitive; numeral; it denotes number: ordinal; it marks the position of an object in a series: it can not be compared, and belongs to "engravings." Rule XII.

Two . . . is an adjective; definitive; numeral; cardinal; it denotes the number of objects: it can not be compared, and belongs to "engravings." Rule XII.

American is an adjective; descriptive; it can not be compared, and belongs to "scenes." Rule XII.

Harvest . is an adjective; descriptive; it can not be compared, and belongs to "scenes." Rule XII.

IV. "The weather is pleasant."

Pleasant . is an adjective; descriptive; compared, pos. pleasant, comp. more pleasant; sup. most pleasant: positive degree, and belongs to "weather." Rule XII.

55. EXERCISES.

Parse the nouns and adjectives in the following sentences:

25. My opening eyes with rapture see
The dawn of this returning day.
26. With many a weary step, and many a groan,
Up the high hill he heaves a huge round stone.—Pope.

56. CAUTIONS.

Caution I.—Do not use a before vocals, or an before subvocals and aspirates.

Ex.—1. An hundred cents make one dollar. 2. Mr. Perry is an humorous person. 3. She is an heroine. 4. We traveled through a open country. 5. We are now a united people. 6. That is a historical fact. (Use an before h when the following syllable is accented.)

Caution II.—Omit the article before a word used as a title or as a mere name.

Ex.—1. A rascal formerly meant a servant. 2. He is a better mechanic than a sailor. 3. They gave him the title of a duke. 4. We shall vote for Mr. Webster as a senator. 5. What kind of a man is he? 6. I have a sort of a misgiving about it.

Caution III.—Observe that the denotes a particular one, or is used to distinguish one class or species from another, and that a denotes one, but not a particular one.

Ex.—1. The dime is the tenth part of the dollar. 2. An eagle is the bird of prey. 3. A telephone is a modern invention. 4. The subject of his lecture was a steam engine. 5. A lion is the king of beasts. 6. A horse which you saw belongs to me.

Caution IV.—Do not use them for these, this here for this, or that 'ere for that.

Ex.—1. He bought ten of them horses. 2. I do not like this here weather. 3. What have you done with that 'ere umbrella? 4. Did you put them books on that 'ere table? 5. I wish you would write them rules on the blackboard.

Caution V.—Avoid double comparatives and superlatives.

Ex.—1. He seems more cheerfuller to-day. 2. He is the most miserablest man I ever saw. 3. More sharper than a serpent's tooth is vile ingratitude. 4. That is far more preferable than to be imprisoned. 5. Worser evils than poverty can be imagined. 6. "This was the most unkindest cut of all."

Caution VI.—In most constructions, place ordinal adjectives before cardinals.

Ex.—1. Sing the two first and the three last verses. 2. I built the five first houses on that street. 3. Repeat the three first rules. 4. You may have cherries on the two first trees in the three first rows.

Caution VII.—Do not use adverbs as adjectives.

Ex.—1. We have arrived safely. 2. I feel badly this morning. 3. The country looks beautifully in June. 4. Things now look more favorably. 5. This rose smells sweetly. 6. The relative should be placed as nearly as possible to its antecedent.

Caution VIII.—Use such adjectives as express the exact meaning intended.

Ex.—1. I will sell either of the four boats for ten dollars. 2. Neither of my three brothers went to college. 3. He paid all of the laborers two dollars a day. 4. None of the two horses pleases me. 5. They worship both the sun, moon, and stars. 6. Every member are expected to contribute liberally. 7. Such as desire may remain. 8. There were not fewer than twenty tons of sugar in the warehouse when it was burned. 9. There are less boys in school now than formerly.

THE PRONOUN.

57. ORAL LESSON.

Notice what I write: "John took John's hat, and put John's hat on John's desk." Do you think this is a correct sentence? Ans.—No, sir, we do not. What words are unnecessarily repeated? Ans.—"John" and "hat." Write the sentence on your slates as you think it should be written. Sarah, you may read what you have written. (Sarah reads "John took his hat, and put it on his desk." The teacher writes it on the blackboard.) Now, the words used in the place of "John" and "hat" are called Pronouns, which means "instead of nouns." What shall we call all words used instead of nouns? Ans.—Pronouns.

I will write again: "I write, you read, but he whispers." What are the words "I," "you," and "he"? Ans.—Pronouns. Why? Ans.—Because they are used instead of nouns. What person is "I"? Ans.—First person, because it stands for the person speaking. What person is "you"? Ans.—Second person, because it stands for the person spoken to. What person is "he"? Ans.—Third person, because it stands for the person spoken of. Those words which show by their form the person of the nouns they represent are called Personal Pronouns. What kind of pronouns are these words? Ans.—Personal Pronouns.

Write this sentence: "The man who was with me is a lawyer." What is "me"? Ans.—A pronoun. What other pronoun is there in the sentence? Ans.—"Who." That is right—and what word does "who" stand for? Ans.—Man. But "who" can be used to represent the first, second, or third person; as, "I who speak to you;" "You who listen;" "He who whispers." It does not change its form to denote person, but relates to some noun, and must be of the same person and number as the noun to which it relates. It is therefore called a Relative Pronoun. What shall we call all similar words? Ans.—Relative Pronouns.

Write this sentence: "Who has lost a pencil?" The word "who" is here used in asking a question. We will call it an Interrogative Pronoun. What shall we call those pronouns which are used in a similar manner? Ans.—Interrogative Pronouns.

Write this sentence: "That book is mine." What two words can I use instead of "mine"? Ans.—"My book." "Mine," then, stands for both the possessor and the thing possessed. We will call it a Possessive Pronoun. What shall we call all words used in a similar manner? Ans.—Possessive Pronouns.

58. DEFINITION.

1. A Pronoun is a word used instead of a noun; as, his book, my house; "Whom did you see?"

2. The Antecedent of a pronoun is the noun, or equivalent expression, instead of which the pronoun is used. It usually precedes, but sometimes follows, the pronoun.

Ex.—"The poor widow lost her only son." Here "widow" is the antecedent of "her." "True to his flag, the soldier braved even death." "Soldier" is the antecedent of "his."

3. The Antecedent may be a noun, a different pronoun, a phrase, or a clause.

Ex.—"A pupil that is studious will learn." "Pupil" is the antecedent of "that." "He who runs may read." "He" is the antecedent of "who." "He desired to pray, but it was denied him." "To pray" is the antecedent of "it." "He has squandered his money, and he now regrets it." "He has squandered his money" is the antecedent of "it."

4. The Antecedent may be omitted; in which case it is said to be understood.

Ex.—"Who steals my purse steals trash." "The person," or "he," understood, is the antecedent of "who."

59. PROPERTIES.

1. The Properties of a pronoun are Gender, Person, Number, and Case.

2. The gender, person, and number of a pronoun are always the same as those of its antecedent, but its case depends upon the construction of the clause in which it is found.

60. CLASSES.

Pronouns are divided into four classes: Personal, Possessive, Relative, and Interrogative.

61. PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

1. Personal Pronouns both represent nouns and show by their form whether they are of the first, second, or third person. They are either Simple or Compound.

2. The Simple Personal Pronouns are I, thou, he, she, and it, with their declined forms, we, our, us, my, mine, ye, you, your, thy, thine, thee, his, him, her, its, they, their, them.

3. The Compound Personal Pronouns are formed by adding self or selves to some form of the Simple Personals; as, myself, yourselves, himself, themselves.

62. DECLENSION.

1. The Simple Personal Pronouns are declined as follows:

FIRST PERSON.

Singular.		Plural.
Nom. I,		Nom. We,
Poss. My or mine,		Poss. Our,
Obj. Me.		Obj. Us.

SECOND PERSON.

	Singular.	Plural.		Singular.	Plural.
Nom.	Thou,	Ye,		Nom.	You, You,
Poss.	Thy or thine,	Your,		Poss.	Your, Your,
Obj.	Thee,	You.		Obj.	You, You.

THIRD PERSON.

	Singular.		Plural.
	MAS. FEM. NEUT.		NEUT. OR COM.
Nom.	He, She, It,		Nom. They,
Poss.	His, Her, Its,		Poss. Their,
Obj.	Him, Her, It.		Obj. Them.

2. The Compound Personal Pronouns are declined as follows:

FIRST PERSON.

	Singular.		Plural.
Nom. and Obj.	Myself.		Nom. and Obj. Ourselves.

SECOND PERSON.

	Singular.		Plural.
Nom. and Obj.	Thyself or Yourself.		Nom. and Obj. Yourselves.

THIRD PERSON.

	Singular.		Plural.
	MAS., FEM., AND NEUT.
Nom. and Obj.	{ Himself, Herself, Itself.		Nom. and Obj. Themselves.

GENERAL REMARKS.

1. Mine and thine were formerly used before words commencing with a vowel sound, in preference to my and thy. They are still used thus in poetry; as, “Thine eyes I see thee raise.”

2. Thou, thy, thine, thee, thyself, and ye, though used in the Bible, and other sacred writings, are now seldom used except in poetry and in solemn style. They may be regarded as antiquated forms. You, your, yours, and yourself are now preferred.

3. You, originally plural, and still requiring a verb in the plural number, is used to represent singular as well as plural nouns.

4. We is often used in place of I, in royal proclamations, editorials, and when the speaker or writer wishes to avoid the appearance of egotism; as, "We, George III., King of Great Britain and Ireland, do proclaim," etc. "We formerly thought differently, but have changed our mind."

5. It is sometimes used in the nominative without referring to any particular antecedent; and in the objective for euphony alone; as, "It thunders;" "It seems to me;" "It is a true saying;" "Come and trip it on the green."

6. The compound personal pronouns are used in the nominative and objective cases only. To express emphatic distinction in the possessive case, the word own is used instead of self or selves; as, "Let every pupil use his own book;" "Successful merchants mind their own business, not that of their neighbors."

7. The English language being destitute of a pronoun of the third person singular and common gender, usage has sanctioned the employment of the masculine forms he, his, him, for that purpose; as, in speaking of scholars generally, we say, "A thorough scholar studies his lesson carefully."

8. When reference is made to an assemblage containing males only, or females only, the masculine or feminine forms should be used, as the case may require.

9. When pronouns of different persons are used, the second should precede the third, and the third the first; as, "You, and he, and I were boys together."

63. ORDER OF PARSING.

1. A pronoun, and why?
2. Personal, and why?
3. Simple or Compound.
4. What is its antecedent?
5. Gender, person, and number? Rule.
6. Decline it.
7. Case, and why?
8. Rule.

64. MODELS FOR PARSING.

I. "I have seen him."

I is a pronoun; personal; it shows by its form whether it is of the first, second, or third person: simple; its antecedent is the name, understood, of the person speaking: —gender, first person, singular number, to agree with its antecedent: Rule IX. "Pronouns must agree with their antecedents in gender, person, and number;" declined, singular, nom. I, poss. my, obj. me; plural, nom. we, poss. our, obj. us: nominative case. Rule I.

Him is a pronoun; personal; simple; its antecedent is the name, understood, of the person spoken of: masculine gender, third person, singular number, to agree with its antecedent: Rule IX: declined, sing., nom. he, poss. his, obj. him; plural, nom. they, poss. their, obj. them: objective case. Rule VI.

II. "James, lend me your book."

Me is a pronoun; personal; simple; its antecedent is the name, understood, of the speaker: —gender, first person, singular number, to agree with its antecedent: Rule IX: decline it; objective case, it is the indirect object of the transitive verb "lend." Rule VI.

III. "The soldiers helped themselves."

Themselves is a pronoun; compound personal; it is formed by adding selves to one of the declined forms of a simple personal: its antecedent is "soldiers:" masculine gender, third person, plural number, to agree with its antecedent: Rule IX: decline it: objective case, it is the object of the transitive verb "helped." Rule VI.

IV. "I, myself, heard him say so."

Myself . . . is a pronoun; compound personal; its antecedent is the name, understood, of the speaker: — gender, first person, singular number, to agree with its antecedent: Rule IX: decline it: nominative case, in apposition with "I." Rule IV.

65. EXERCISES.

Parse the nouns, personal pronouns, and adjectives in the following sentences :

1. He and I attend the same school. 2. She gave her sister a new book. 3. Have you seen him to-day? 4. I saw it with my own eyes. 5. You, yourself, told me so. 6. The wicked is snared in the work of his own hands. 7. I bought the book, and read it. 8. They live in our house. 9. I see them on their winding way. 10. For we dare not make ourselves of the number, or compare ourselves with some that commend themselves; but they, measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves among themselves, are not wise.

11. My country, 't is of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee, I sing.

12. Thou great Instructor, lest I stray,
Teach thou my erring feet thy way.

66. POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS.

1. Possessive Pronouns are words used to represent both the possessor and the thing possessed. They are: mine, thine, his, hers, ours, yours, theirs.

2. To denote emphatic distinction, my own is used for mine, his own for his, thy own for thine, our own for ours, your own for yours, their own for theirs.

Ex.—"This book is my own;" "Stand, the ground's your own, my braves!" "Do not borrow or lend pencils: each scholar should have one of his own."

Rem.—Two sets of models are given for parsing Possessive Pronouns. The first method is to be preferred when the pronoun can not be separated into two words, one being a personal pronoun, the other the name of the thing possessed. Both methods are sanctioned by good authorities.

67. ORDER OF PARSING.

1. A pronoun, and why?
2. Possessive, and why?
3. What is its antecedent?
4. Gender, person, and number, and why? Rule.
5. Case, and why? Rule.

68. MODELS FOR PARSING.

- I. "That book is hers, not yours."

FIRST METHOD.

Hers . . . is a pronoun; possessive; it represents both the possessor and the thing possessed; its antecedent is "book;" neuter gender, third person, singular number, to agree with its antecedent: Rule IX: nominative case, it is used as the predicate of the proposition, "That book is hers;" Rule II.

Yours . . . is parsed in a similar manner; equivalent to "your book."

SECOND METHOD.

Hers . . . is a pronoun; possessive; it is equivalent to "her book." Parse "her" as a personal pronoun in the possessive case, according to Rule III, and "book" as predicate-nominative, according to Rule II.

II. "The ground's your own."

FIRST METHOD.

Your own is a pronoun; possessive; its antecedent is "ground;" neuter gender, third person, singular number; nominative case; it is used as the predicate of the proposition, "The ground's your own." Rule II.

SECOND METHOD.

Your own is a pronoun; possessive; it is equivalent to "your ground." Parse "your" as a personal pronoun in the possessive case, according to Rule III, and "ground" as the predicate-nominative, according to Rule II.

69. EXERCISES.

Parse the possessive pronouns in the following sentences:

1. The farm is neither his nor theirs.
2. Is that horse of yours lame yet?
3. I did not hear that lecture of yours last evening.
4. He is an old friend of ours.
5. This book is not mine; it must be his or hers.
6. That carriage of theirs is a very fine one.
7. Friend of mine, why so sad?

70. RELATIVE PRONOUNS.

1. A Relative Pronoun is used to represent a preceding word or phrase, called its antecedent, to which, it joins a limiting clause; as, "The man whom you saw is my father."

Rem. I.—The antecedent is a word or phrase on which the relative clause depends. It may be either a definite or an indefinite object. When the object is indefinite, the relative clause stands alone; as, "Who steals my purse steals trash."

Rem. 2.—The difference between personal and relative pronouns is shown by the following distinctions: 1. Personal pronouns have a distinct form for each grammatical person; as, first person, I; second person, thou or you; third person, he, she, or it: the relatives do not change their form for person. 2. A personal pronoun may be the subject of an independent sentence; as, “He is well:” a relative can never be thus used; it is always found in a dependent clause; as, “Laws which are unjust should be repealed.”

Rem. 3.—Relatives serve two purposes in a sentence; one, to represent nouns in any relation; the other, to join a limiting clause to the antecedent. The first is a pronominal, the second, a conjunctive use.

2. Relative pronouns are either Simple or Compound.

3. The Simple Relatives are who, used to represent persons; which and what, to represent things; that, to represent both persons and things; and as, to take the place of who, which, or that, after such, many, and same.

Rem. 1.—What is sometimes used as a definitive adjective as well as a relative, in the same sentence: in which case it is placed before the noun it limits; as, “I send you what money I have,” i. e., “I send you the money which I have.” When the noun it limits is understood, what takes its place, and should be parsed, first as a pronominal adjective, and secondly as a relative.

Rem. 2.—That is a relative when who, whom, or which can be substituted for it; as, “He that [who] is slow to wrath, is of great understanding.” It is a pronominal adjective when it immediately precedes a noun, expressed or understood; as, “That book is yours;” “I did not say that.” It is a conjunction when it joins a dependent clause to its principal; as, “I know that my Redeemer liveth.”

Rem. 3.—What, when a relative, can be changed into that which, or the thing which, and is called a double relative; as, “Tell we what [that which] you know;” “I got what [the thing which] I desired.” That, or the thing, should be parsed as the antecedent part of what, and which as the relative. The antecedent part, that, is usually a pronominal adjective, either limiting a noun expressed, or representing it understood.

Rem. 4.—Besides being a relative, what may be an interrogative pronoun; as, “What did you say?”—a pronominal adjective; as, “What book have you?”—an interjection; as, “What! is thy servant a dog, that he should do this?”—an adverb; as, “What [partly] by force, and what by fraud, he secures his ends.”

71. DECLENSION.

Singular and Plural.		Singular and Plural.
Nom.	Who,	Nom.	Which,
Poss.	Whose,	Poss.	Whose,
Obj.	Whom.	Obj.	Which.

The Compound Relatives are formed by adding ever, so, and soever to the simple relatives. They are: whoever, whoso, whosoever, whichever, whichsoever, whatever, and whatsoever.

Rem.—Whoever, whoso, and whosoever, are equivalent to he who, or any one who; as, “Whoever studies will learn,” i. e., “Any one who studies will learn.” Whichever and whichsoever are equivalent to any which; as, “Whichever way you may take will lead to the city,” i. e., “Any way which you may take,” etc. Whatever and whatsoever are equivalent to any thing which; as, “I am pleased with whatever you may do,” i. e., “I am pleased with any thing which you may do.” Compound relatives are indeclinable, and should be parsed like the simple relative what.

72. ORDER OF PARSING.

1. A Pronoun, and why?
2. Relative, and why?
3. Name its antecedent.
4. Simple or Compound?
5. Gender, person, and number, and why? Rule.
6. Decline it.
7. Case, and Rule.

73. MODELS FOR PARSING.

I. "A man who is industrious will prosper."

Who . . . is a pronoun; relative; it represents a preceding word or phrase, to which it joins a limiting clause: its antecedent is "man:" simple: masculine gender, third person, singular number, to agree with its antecedent: Rule IX: nominative case; it is used as the subject of the subordinate proposition "who is industrious:" Rule I.

II. "I am he whom ye seek."

Whom . . is a pronoun; relative; its antecedent is "he:" simple: masculine gender, third person, singular number: Rule IX: objective case; it is the object of the transitive verb "seek." Rule VI.

III. "Happy is the man that findeth wisdom."

That . . . is a pronoun; relative; its antecedent is "man:" simple: masculine gender, thirl person, singular number: Rule IX: nominative case; it is the subject of the subordinate proposition "That findeth wisdom:" Rule I.

IV. "The horse which you sold me is lame."

Which . . is a pronoun; relative; its antecedent is "horse:" simple: masculine gender, third person, singular number; Rule IX: objective case; it is the object of the transitive verb "sold:" Rule VI.

V. "I remember what you said."

What . . . is a pronoun; relative; it is a double relative, equivalent to that which—"that" being the antecedent part, and "which," the relative. Parse "that" as a "pronominal adjective used as a noun," in the objective case after "remember."

Which . . is a pronoun; relative; its antecedent is "that:" neuter gender, third person, singular number; objective case; object of the transitive verb "said:" Rule VI.

VI. "That is the man whose house we occupy."

Whose . . is a pronoun; relative; its antecedent is "man;" masculine gender, third person, singular number; Rule IX: possessive case; modifies "house;" Rule III.

VII. "Whoever studies will learn."

Whoever is a pronoun; relative; compound; it is equivalent to he who, or any one who—"he" being the antecedent part, and "who" the relative. Parse "he" as a personal pronoun, subject of "will learn," or "one" as a "pronominal adjective used as a noun," subject of "will learn," and "who" as a relative, by preceding models.

VIII. "Whatever purifies, sanctifies."

Whatever is a pronoun; relative; compound; it is equivalent to that which. Parse "that" and "which" according to Model V—"that" being the subject of "sanctifies;" "which," of "purifies."

IX. "Whoso keepeth the law is a wise son."

Whoso . . is a pronoun; relative; compound; it is equivalent to he who, or any one who. Parse according to Model VII.

X. "As many as came were baptized."

As . . . is a pronoun; relative; its antecedent is "many;" simple: common gender, third person, plural number; Rule IX: nominative case; it is used as the subject of the subordinate proposition "as came," i. e., "who came;" Rule I.

74. EXERCISES.

Parse the relative pronouns in the following sentences:

1. Those who sow will reap.
2. He that hateth, dissembleth with his lips.
3. They that forsake the law, praise the wicked; but such as keep the law, contend with them.
4. There is no class of persons that I dislike so much as those who slander their neighbors.
5. The house which you admire so much, belongs to the man whom we see yonder.

6. Whatever is, is right. 7. Whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do. 8. He will do what is right. 9. This is the dog that worried the cat that killed the rat that ate the malt that lay in the house that Jack built. 10. A kind boy avoids doing whatever injures others.

75. INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS.

1. The Interrogative Pronouns are who, which, and what, when used in asking questions; as, “Who goes there?” “Which is yours?” “What did you say?”

2. The Subsequent of an Interrogative Pronoun is that part of the answer which is represented by it. An Interrogative must agree with its subsequent in gender, person, and number.

Rem. 1.—When a definite object is referred to, which and what are pronominal adjectives, limiting the name of the object inquired for; as, “Which lesson shall we learn?” “What book shall we study?” When an indefinite object is referred to, the interrogative takes its place; as, “Which is mine?” “What say you?”

Rem. 2.—The interrogatives who and which are declined like relative pronouns.

Rem. 3.—Apply Rule IX in parsing interrogatives, changing “antecedents” to “subsequents.”

76. ORDER OF PARSING.

1. A pronoun, and why?
2. Interrogative, and why?
3. Name its subsequent, if expressed.
4. Gender, person, and number. Rule.
5. Decline it.
6. Case, and why? Rule.

77. MODELS FOR PARSING.

I. "Who goes there?"

Who . is a pronoun; interrogative; it is used in asking a question: its subsequent is indefinite: gender and person indeterminate: singular number, to agree with its subsequent: Rule IX: nominative case; it is used as the subject of the sentence "Who goes there?" Rule I.

II. "Which is yours?"—The large one.

Which is a pronoun; interrogative; its subsequent is "one:" neuter gender, third person, singular number; Rule IX: nominative case; it is used as the subject of the sentence "Which is yours?" Rule I.

III. "What is that man?"—A blacksmith.

What . is a pronoun; interrogative; its subsequent is "blacksmith;" masculine gender, third person, singular number; Rule IX; nominative case; it is used as the predicate of the sentence "What is that man?" Rule II.

78. EXERCISES.

Parse the interrogative pronouns in the following sentences:

1. Who saw the horse run? 2. Whose house is that on the hill yonder? 3. Whom did he call?—James. 4. For whom did he inquire? 5. Which will you have, the large or the small book?
6. Whom did you take me to be? 7. What shall I do?—Wait. 8. What can be more beautiful than that landscape? 9. Which is the lesson? 10. Who told you how to parse "what"?

Parse the relative and interrogative pronouns in the following sentences:

1. Who is in the garden?—My father. 2. I do not know who is in the garden. 3. Tell me what I should do. 4. What vessel is that? 5. Always seek for what you need the most.

6. Whose house was burned last night?—Mr. Hubbard's.
7. The boy closed the shutters, which darkened the room.
8. What is his name? 9. Whoever enters here should have a pure heart. 10. I gave all that I had.

Parse the nouns, pronouns, and adjectives in the following sentences:

1. Virtue is the condition of happiness.
2. Ye are the light of the world.
3. That garment is not well made.
4. One ounce of gold is worth sixteen ounces of silver.
5. The prayers of David, the son of Jesse, are ended.
6. Every man went to his own house.
7. The army is loaded with the spoils of many nations.
8. Be of the same mind one toward another.

9. He sacrificed every thing he had in the world: what could we ask more?
10. Who's here so base that would be a bondman?
11. I speak as to wise men: judge ye what I say.
12. Liberty was theirs as men: without it they did not esteem themselves men.
13. The death of Socrates, peacefully philosophizing with his friends, is the most pleasant that could be desired.

14. O Popular Applause! what heart of man
Is proof against thy sweet, seducing charms?
15. What black, what ceaseless cares besiege our state:
What strokes we feel from fancy and from fate.
16. Unveil thy bosom, faithful tomb;
Take this new treasure to thy trust;
And give these sacred relics room
To slumber in the silent dust.
17. Thy spirit, Independence, let me share,
Lord of the lion-heart and eagle-eye:
Thy steps I'll follow with my bosom bare;
Nor heed the storm that howls along the sky.—Smollett.
18. The gay will laugh
When thou art gone; the solemn brood of care
Plod on, and each one as before will chase
His favorite phantom: yet all these shall leave
Their mirth and their employment, and shall come
And make their bed with thee.—Bryant.

79. CAUTIONS.

Caution I.—Do not omit the subjects of declarative and interrogative sentences.

Ex.—1. Am sorry you can not go with me. 2. Hope you are well. 3. Came home late last night. 4. What say? 5. Why stay here? 6. Going home late, found the door locked. 7. Read "Snow Bound;" like it very much.

Caution II.—Do not omit the sign of possession in forming the possessive case of nouns, nor use it in forming the possessive case of pronouns.

Ex.—1. Mr. Arter sells boys hats. 2. The girls bonnets were blown into the lake. 3. That house is her's. 4. Frances' mother is an actress. 5. Have you seen Mr. Pierce' new house. 6. Who's horse ran away?

Caution III.—Do not use the objective-case forms of pronouns as subjects or predicates.

Ex.—1. Him and me study arithmetic. 2. It is me, and not her, who wishes to see you. 3. You, and him, and me were boys together. 4. Me and the doctor were there. 5. Did you say it was me who broke the window?

Caution IV.—Do not use "who" as the object of a transitive verb or preposition.

Ex.—1. Who are you talking to? 2. Tell me who you work for. 3. He is a man who I do not like. 4. Who did your sister marry?

Caution V.—Do not use "which" as a relative to represent persons, or "who" to represent animals, children, or objects without life.

Ex.—1. Those which are rich should not be proud. 2. The dog whom you bought, was stolen. 3. They have found the child who was lost. 4. It was old dog Hero who was killed. 5. They which study will learn.

Caution VI.—Do not use improper forms of possessive pronouns.

Ex.—1. Is that book your'n or her'n? 2. I think it is her'n. 3. That book is his'n. 4. He had no team; so he borrowed our'n. 5. You did not see his horses or our'n, did you?

Caution VII.—Avoid the use of different kinds of pronouns in the same construction.

Ex.—1. The boys lost my ax, so I borrowed thine. 2. If you will go, I will pay thy expenses. 3. I hope you will put money into thy purse. 4. I will show thee what we have, and you may take which will please you. 5. Learn thy lesson, then amuse yourself.

Caution VIII.—Do not use a pronoun and its antecedents as subjects of the same sentence.

Ex.—1. The girls they all screamed. 2. Mr. Snell he has gone to Paris. 3. The dogs they barked, and the horses they ran. 4. Many words they darken speech. 5. Ella Jones she is my classmate.

80. ORAL LESSON.

The teacher writes on the blackboard, "A horse runs," and asks, "What does the horse do?" Ans.—A horse runs. What else may a horse do? Ans.—A horse trots, walks, gallops, eats, drinks, etc. Write these words on your slates. Are they the names of things? Ans.—They are not: they are the names of actions. What shall we call them? Ans.—Action-words. A very good name, but grammarians call them Verbs.

Write on your slates, "John studies." What is the subject of the sentence? Ans.—"John." What is the predicate? Ans.—"Studies." Does the sentence tell what John studies? Ans.—It does not. Write "grammar" after the verb "studies." The sentence now reads, "John studies grammar." In this sentence, the meaning of "studies" is completed by the word "grammar." What element is that word? Ans.—An objective element.

A verb which requires an objective element to complete its meaning, is called a transitive verb; a verb which does not require an objective element to complete its meaning, is called an intransitive verb. What is "studies" in the sentence "John studies grammar?" Ans.—A transitive verb. Why? Ans.—Because its meaning is completed by an objective element. What is "run," in the sentence "John runs?" Ans.—An intransitive verb. Why? Ans.—Because its meaning is not completed by an objective element.

Write this sentence on your slates: "The fields look green." What is the subject of this sentence? Ans.—"Fields." What is the predicate? Ans.—"Green." What is the office of the word "look"? Ans.—It asserts the predicate "green" of the subject "fields." Correctly answered. Its use is copulative; and all copulative words are called copulative verbs. What is "look" in this sentence? Ans.—A copulative verb. What is "seems" in the sentence "He seems afraid"? Ans.—A copulative verb. Why? Ans.—Because it asserts the predicate of the subject.

81. DEFINITION.

A Verb is a word which expresses being, action, or state; as, I am; George writes; The house stands.

Rem.—The being, action, or state, may be stated abstractly or represented as belonging to a subject; as, "To write"; "Boys write"; "To seem"; "He seems discouraged."

82. CLASSES WITH RESPECT TO USE.

1. With respect to their use, Verbs may be divided into Copulative, Transitive, and Intransitive.

2. A Copulative Verb is used to join a predicate to a subject, and to make an assertion; as, "Sugar is sweet;" "He seems honest."

Rem.—The copula to be is the only pure copulative. The verbs become, seem, appear, stand, walk, and other verbs of motion, position, and condition, together with the passive verbs is named, is called, is styled, is elected, is appointed, is constituted, is made, is chosen, is esteemed, and some others, are frequently used as copulatives.

Ex.—"The road became rough;" "The men appeared cheerful;" "He is styled the Czar of all the Russias;" "Sir Walter Scott is called the Wizard of the North;" "Gen. Washington was elected first President of the United States."

3. A Transitive Verb requires an object to complete its meaning; as, "The hunter killed a bear;" "The scholar learned his lesson;" "That house has seven gables."

4. An Intransitive Verb does not require an object to complete its meaning; as, "Flowers bloom;" "Grass grows;" "The wind blows furiously."

Rem. 1.—The action expressed by a transitive verb has reference to some object external to the subject, upon which it terminates: the action expressed by an intransitive verb has no such reference, but affects the subject only. If an object is required to complete its meaning, a verb is transitive, otherwise intransitive. A verb in the passive form is transitive if its subject in the passive voice can be made its object in the active.

Ex.—"That boy studies algebra." The verb "studies" is transitive, because its meaning is completed by the object "algebra." "That boy studies." The verb "studies" is transitive, because some word, as lesson, grammar, etc., is required to complete its meaning. "The wind blow." The verb "blow" is intransitive, because the action expressed by it affects the subject only, and does not require the addition of an object to complete its meaning. "The letter was written by me," i. e., I wrote the letter. The verb "was written" is transitive, because its subject in the passive voice becomes its object in the active.

Rem. 2.—A verb which represents its subject as causing to do what the verb expresses, is said to be used in a causative sense.

Ex.—"The farmer burns wood," i. e., "The farmer causes wood to burn." "The pirate sank the ship," i. e., "The pirate caused the sinking of the ship." The verbs "burns" and "sank" are used in a causative sense.

Rem. 3.—Some verbs are transitive in one signification, and intransitive in another.

Ex.—"It breaks my chain;" "Glass breaks easily;" "He returned the book;" "I returned home;" "The vessel ran the blockade;" "The horses ran."

Rem. 4.—An intransitive verb becomes transitive when it is followed by an object like itself in meaning.

Ex.—"He lives a noble life;" "And he dreamed yet another dream;" "Those men are playing a game of chess;" "Grinned horribly a ghastly smile."

83. CLASSES WITH RESPECT TO FORM.

1. With respect to their form, Verbs are either Regular or Irregular.

2. A Regular Verb forms its past indicative and perfect participle by adding d or ed to the present indicative, or simplest form of the verb; as, love, love-d, love-d; count, count-ed, count-ed.

3. An Irregular Verb does not form its past indicative and perfect participle by adding d or ed to the present indicative; as, see, saw, seen; go, went, gone.

84. PROPERTIES.

The Properties of Verbs are Voice, Mode, Tense, Number, and Person.

85. VOICE.

1. Voice is that form of the transitive verb which shows whether the subject acts or is acted upon.

2. Transitive Verbs have two voices: an Active and a Passive Voice.

3. The Active Voice represents the subject as acting upon an object; as, "John struck James;" "The boy was studying;" "The cat caught the mouse."

4. The Passive Voice represents the subject as being acted upon; as, "James was struck by John;" "The mouse was caught;" "The lesson was studied."

5. The Passive Voice is formed by prefixing some form of the neuter verb to be to the perfect participle of a transitive verb.

Rem. 1.—The direct object of a verb in the active voice becomes its subject in the passive.

Ex.—"The boy shut the door" (active); "The door was shut by the boy" (passive); "He saw the comet;" "The comet was seen by the astronomer."

Rem. 2.—Certain verbs are sometimes used, with a passive signification, in the active voice.

Ex.—"This stick splits easily;" "Butter sells for forty cents;" "This ground plows well;" "The stone breaks readily;" "I have nothing to wear;" "He has some ax to grind;" "He has no money to spend foolishly;" "The house is building;" "Wheat sells for one dollar a bushel."

Rem. 3.—A few verbs sometimes assume the passive form, though used in an active sense.

Ex.—"The melancholy days are come," i. e., have come; "Babylon is fallen," i. e., has fallen; "She is gone," i. e., has gone; "The hour is arrived," i. e., has arrived;" "He was come now," he said, "to the end of his journey."

Rem. 4.—The passive voice is used when the agent is unknown, or when we wish to conceal it and call attention to the act and its object alone; as, "The robbery was committed (by some person unknown, or known but not mentioned) in broad daylight;" "This wall was built to protect the banks of the river." When we wish to make the agent prominent, the active voice should be used; as, "The escaped convict committed the robbery in broad daylight."

86. EXERCISES.

Tell which of the verbs, in the following sentences, are in the active voice, and which in the passive:

1. Sarah loves flowers.
2. John was astonished at the news.
3. William saw a meteor.
4. A meteor was seen.
5. I have written a letter.
6. That poem was written by Saxe.
7. He should have waited longer.
8. The heavens declare the glory of God.
9. He found the money.

87. THE PARTICIPLE.

1. A Participle is a word derived from a verb, partaking of the properties of a verb and of an adjective or a noun.

Rem.—The participle is so called from its partaking of the properties of a verb and of an adjective or a noun. It is the attributive part of the verb, used without assertion. It is not a verb, consequently neither mode nor tense belongs to it. It simply denotes continuance or completion of action, being, or state, relatively to the time denoted by the principal verb of the sentence in which it is found.

2. There are three Participles: the Present, the Perfect, and the Compound. The present and the compound have both an active and a passive form and use. The perfect has an active and a passive use.

3. The Present Participle denotes the continuance of action, being, or state; as, loving, being loved.

Rem.—The present participle always ends in ing. It may be used as an assumed attribute, or be affirmed of a subject. In the sentence, “Leaning my head upon my hand, I began to picture to myself the miseries of confinement,” “leaning” depends upon or modifies “I.” It is an assumed attribute. “In the sentence, “I was leaning my head upon my hand,” “leaning” is affirmed of the subject “I.” The present participle may also be used:

1st. As an adjective; as, "Twinkling stars." When thus used, it is called a participial adjective; and when it denotes a quality rather than an act, it usually admits of comparison; as, "A most loving companion."

2d. As a noun; as, "I am fond of reading." "Reading," in this sentence, is a participial noun, and is the object of the preposition "of." By some grammarians, a participial noun is called an "infinitive in ing." or a "gerund."

3d. As a noun, with the modifications of a verb; as, "Describing a past event as present, has a fine effect in language." In this sentence, the participial noun "describing" is modified by "events," an objective element. Participial nouns may also be modified by adverbs; as, "I am fond of traveling rapidly." Here, "traveling" is modified by "rapidly," an adverbial element.

4. The Perfect Participle denotes the completion of action, being, or state; as, seen, appointed.

Rem.—This participle generally ends in d, ed, t, n, or en. It is frequently used as an adjective, but never as a noun, and is usually, but not always, found in compound forms of the verb.

Ex.—"He died, lored by all;" "Her promise, made cheerfully, was kept faithfully;" "I have written a letter;" "You should have known better;" "That house was built in 1780."

5. The Compound Participle denotes the completion of action, being, or state, at or before the time represented by the principal verb; as, "Having written the letter, he mailed it."

Rem.—This participle is formed by placing having or having been before the perfect participle; as, "Having bought the horse, he went home;" "The lessons having been recited, the school was dismissed." It may be used as a noun; as, "I am accused of having plotted treason;" "He is charged with having been engaged in the slave-trade." It is also formed by placing having been before the present participle; as, "Having been loving."

88. EXERCISES.

Give the present, perfect, and compound participles of the following verbs:

Rely, find, help, study, recite, inquire, answer, plow, cultivate, join, emulate, spell, grow, paint, resemble, hope, suffer, sit, see, go, come, lay, arrive, exhaust, enjoy, write, read, learn, ventilate.

Write five sentences, each containing a present participle.

Model.—"Mary is studying her lesson."

Write five sentences, each containing a perfect participle.

Models.—"I have learned my lesson." "The army, flushed with victory, marched onward."

Write five sentences, each containing a present and a perfect participle.

Model.—"A boy playing on the sea-shore, found an oar lost from a boat."

Write five sentences, each containing a compound participle.

Model.—"The notes having been paid, the mortgage was canceled."

Write five sentences, each containing a participial adjective.

Model.—"Rolling stones gather no moss."

Write five sentences, each containing a participial noun.

Models.—"Skating is good exercise." "Much depends upon his observing the rule."

89. ORDER OF PARSING.

1. A Participle, and why?
2. From what verb is it derived?
3. Present, perfect, or compound, and why?
4. To what does it belong?
5. Rule.

90. MODELS FOR PARSING.

I. "I heard the wolves howling in the forest."

Howling is a participle: it partakes of the properties of a verb and of an adjective: it is derived from the verb "howl;" present participle; it denotes continuance: it belongs to "wolves." Rule XII.

II. "Take this letter, written by myself."

Written is a participle: it is derived from the verb "write;" perfect participle; it denotes completion: it belongs to "letter." Rule XII.

III. "The train having left, we returned home."

Having left is a participle: it is derived from the verb "leave;" compound participle; it denotes the completion of an act before the time represented by the principal verb: it belongs to "train." Rule XII.

IV. "Their leader having been killed, the robbers fled."

Having been killed is a participle: it is derived from the verb "kill;" compound participle: it belongs to "leader." Rule XII.

V. "Whispering is forbidden."

Whispering is a noun; participial; it is derived from the verb "whisper;" neuter gender; third person; singular number; nominative case. Rule I.

91. EXERCISES.

Parse the nouns, pronouns, adjectives, and participles in the following sentences:

1. I have heard the bells tolling.
2. He saw the letter opened.
3. Gambling is a crime.
4. Boys like running, jumping, and skating. 5. The vessel anchored in the bay, has lost her sails. 6. Having sold my farm, I shall remove to Iowa. 7. The burning of the capitol was a wanton outrage 8. Have you not seen strong men weeping? 9. The general having been captured, the army was defeated. 10. Your remaining here would ruin us all.

11. Said but once, said but softly, not marked at all, words revive before me in darkness and solitude.—De Quincey. 12. A man hardened in depravity would have been perfectly contented with an acquittal so complete, announced in language so gracious.—Macaulay.

13. I heard the ripple washing in the reeds,
And the wild water lapping on the crags.—Tennyson.

14. Toiling, rejoicing, sorrowing,
Onward through life he goes,
Something attempted, something done,
Has earned a night's repose.—Longfellow.

92. AUXILIARIES.

1. Auxiliary Verbs are those which are used in the conjugation of other verbs.

2. They are: do, be, have, shall, will, may, can, must.

Rem. 1.—Do, be, have, and will are often used as principal verbs; as, "He does well;" "I am;" "We have cares and anxieties;" "He willed me a thousand dollars."

Rem. 2.—The auxiliaries were originally used as principal verbs, followed by the infinitives of what are now called the principal verbs; as, "I can [to] read;" "You may [to] go;" "He has [to] come." The sign to is now dropped, and the infinitive is regarded as the principal verb; the auxiliaries being used merely to show the relations of mode and tense.

Rem. 3.—The auxiliaries, when used as such, except must, which is used in the present tense only, have two tenses: the present and the past.

94. DEFINITION.

1. Mode is the manner in which the action, being, or state is expressed.

2. There are five modes: the Indicative, Subjunctive, Potential, Imperative, and Infinitive.

95. INDICATIVE MODE.

The Indicative Mode asserts a thing as a fact, or as actually existing; as, "The man walks;" "The house was burned."

Rem.—The indicative mode may be used in interrogative and exclamatory sentences; also, in subordinate propositions, to denote what is actual, or what is assumed as actual; as, “Is he a merchant?” “The rascal has stolen my horse!” “I learn that you have removed from town.”

96. SUBJUNCTIVE MODE.

The Subjunctive Mode asserts a thing as doubtful, as a wish, a supposition, or a future contingency; as, “If this be true, all will end well;” “Had I the wings of a dove;” “I shall leave, if you remain.”

Rem. 1.—The subjunctive mode is so called because it is used in subjoined or subordinate propositions only. It represents an ideal act, or a real act placed under a condition of more or less doubt, and is joined to the verb of the principal proposition by the subordinate connectives if, though, except, lest, that, unless, and some others. These connectives are called the signs of the subjunctive.

Rem. 2.—The sign is frequently omitted, in which case the auxiliary or copula precedes the subject; as, “Had I time,” i. e., If I had time; “Were I a king,” i. e., If I were a king.

Rem. 3.—In a subordinate proposition expressing a condition or a supposition, the verb may be in either the indicative or the subjunctive mode. Use the subjunctive mode, when it is intended to express doubt or denial; use the indicative mode, when the thing supposed is a fact or is assumed to be a fact.

Ex.—If I go, I shall return:” I may go, or I may not; doubt is implied. “If he were honest, he would pay me:” the supposition is that he is not honest. “If he had been there, I should have seen him:” I deny that he was there. In these sentences, the verbs are in the subjunctive mode, doubt or denial being implied. In the sentences, “If he goes, you must stay,” and “If he was there, he fought bravely,” “goes” and “was” are in the indicative mode, neither doubt nor denial being implied.

Rem. 4.—Comparatively few modern writers observe the distinction between the indicative and the subjunctive modes in stating suppositions. The directions given in Rem. 3 state the usage of the best writers.

97. POTENTIAL MODE.

The Potential Mode asserts the power, necessity, liberty, duty, or liability of acting or being in a certain state; as, "You can read;" "He must go;" "You may retire;" "They should be more careful."

Rem. 1.—The potential mode, like the indicative, is used in interrogative and exclamatory sentences; also, in subordinate propositions, to represent what is assumed as actual, or what has not been realized; as, "I know that I may be disappointed;" "He says that I may study algebra."

Rem. 2.—The signs of the potential mode are the auxiliaries may, can, must, might, could, would, and should.

1. Can or could implies power or ability within one's self; as, "He can do it," i. e., he has ability to do it without assistance from others.

2. May or might implies an agency without or beyond one's self; hence, possibility, probability, permission, wishing—the act being contingent on something beyond one's own will or power; as, "He may go," i. e., all hinderances are removed: "You may all go to the picnic," denotes permission: "O, that he might return," denotes a wish that all hinderance to his return be removed.

3. Must denotes necessity; as, "We must submit to the laws," i. e., there is a necessity for our doing so.

4. Should denotes that the act or state is not dependent upon the doer's will, but on that of another; hence, duty or obligation; as, "He should pay his debts," i. e., it is his duty, or he is under a moral obligation to pay his debts.

5. Would implies inclination, wish, or desire; as, "He would pay his debts, if he could," i. e., he has the inclination or the desire.

98. IMPERATIVE MODE.

The Imperative Mode expresses a command, an exhortation, an entreaty, or a permission; as, "Charge, Chester, charge!" "Do come to see us;" "Lead us not into temptation;" "God said, Let there be light."

Rem. 1.—The imperative mode may usually be known by the omission of the subject; as, "Write" [thou, you, or ye]. It denotes a command, when a superior speaks to an inferior; an exhortation, when an equal speaks to an equal; a prayer or supplication, when an inferior addresses a superior. It is used mostly in principal propositions, and is made subordinate in direct quotations only; as, "He said, Be silent."

Rem. 2.—The expressions "Let Ellen come," "Let him go," etc., are made up of the imperative of the verb let, and the objective case of a noun or pronoun, limited by an infinitive. They are equivalent to "Permit [thou] Ellen to go," etc.

Rem. 3.—These expressions are sometimes abridged by dropping the verb let, changing the infinitive to the imperative, and the objective case to the nominative; as, "Come one, come all," i. e., Let one come, let all come: "Sing we to our God above," i. e., Let us sing to our God above. In such cases, the noun or pronoun should be parsed as the subject of the proposition, the imperative agreeing with it in number and person. This use of the imperative is not uncommon.

Ex.—"Ruin seize thee, ruthless king."—Gray. "Laugh those who may, weep those who must."—Scott. "Then turn we to her latest tribune's name."—Byron. "Proceed we therefore to our subject."—Pope. "Come the eleventh plague, rather than this should be."—Cowley. "Be it enacted."—Statutes of Ohio. "Somebody call my wife."—Shakespeare. "Hallowed be thy name."

Rem. 4.—The imperative mode is sometimes used to denote a wish, a demand, a grant, a concession, or a precaution.

Ex.—"Let all the earth fear the Lord." "Give me that knife." "Let it be lawful, that law do no wrong."—Shakespeare. "Let it be admitted." "Look, that he hide no weapon."—Bulwer.

99. INFINITIVE MODE.

The Infinitive Mode expresses the action, being, or state, without affirming it; as, to write; to have written; "He rose to speak."

Rem. 1.—The infinitive may usually be known by the sign to placed before it. This sign is omitted after the verbs bid, dare, feel, hear, help, let, make, need, see, and a few others; as, “Bid them be quiet;” “Let them come on;” “See him run.”

Rem. 2.—The infinitive, as an abstract noun, may be the subject or predicate of a sentence; may be in apposition with a noun; and may be the object of a transitive verb or preposition; as, “To lie is disgraceful;” “To work is to pray;” “Delightful task, to rear the tender thought;” “I love to read;” “Can save the son of Thetis from to die.”

Although the infinitive has the construction of a noun, it may govern an object, or be modified by an adverb. It is never limited by an adjective attribute, but may have a predicate adjective belonging to it; as, “To converse is pleasant;” “To suffer all this wrong is hard.”

Tell the mode of the verbs in the following sentences:

1. A great storm is raging. 2. You may go or stay. 3. Bring me some flowers. 4. Hope thou in God. 5. If he study, he will excel. 6. If he studies, it is when he is alone. 7. Were I rich, I would purchase that property. 8. Who will go with me? 9. Do let me see your book.

10. I must not be tardy. 11. Lift up your heads, O ye gates! 12. Blessed are the poor in spirit; for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. 13. He should have told you. 14. They dare not puzzle us for their own sakes. 15. Let us not, I beseech you, deceive ourselves longer.

16. God help us! what a poor world this would be, if this were the true doctrine. 17. If a line is parallel to a line of a plane, it is parallel to that plane. 18. If a plane intersect two parallel planes, the lines of intersection will be parallel. 19. “Could he have kept his spirit to that flight, he had been happy.”—Byron.

20. Reign thou in hell, thy kingdom; let me serve
In heaven, God ever blest.—Milton.

21. Place me on Sunium's marble steep,
 Where nothing, save the waves and I,
 May hear our mutual murmurs sweep;
 There, swan-like, let me sing and die.—Byron.

TENSE.

101. DEFINITION.

1. Tense denotes the time of an action or event.
2. There are three divisions of time: Past, Present, and Future. Each division has two tenses: an absolute and a relative.
3. The Absolute Tenses are the Present, the Past, and the Future. They denote indefinite or incomplete action.
4. The Relative Tenses are the Present Perfect, the Past Perfect, and the Future Perfect. They denote completed action.

102. PRESENT TENSE.

The Present Tense denotes present time; as, “I walk;” “The army is marching.”

Rem. 1.—The present tense is used in expressing a general truth, or what is habitual; as, “Perseverance conquers all things;” “The mail arrives at six P. M.”

Rem. 2.—The historical present is the present used for the past, to describe more vividly what took place in past time; as, “Tacitus describes the manners and customs of the ancient Germans;” “Ulysses wakes, not knowing where he was.”—Pope.

“threw traces the descent of Joseph; Luke traces that of

Rem. 3.—The present of the speaker or hearer is what is meant by present time. The present of the reader may not be the same as that of the writer.

Rem. 4.—When preceded by a relative pronoun, or by conjunctive adverbs of time, the present tense is sometimes future in its reference; as, “He will please all who employ him;” “The flowers will bloom when spring comes.”

103. PRESENT PERFECT TENSE.

The Present Perfect Tense represents an action or event as past, but connected with present time; as, “I have learned my lesson.”

Rem. 1.—Have, the sign of the present perfect tense, originally denoted possession. It retains this meaning when used as a principal verb. As an auxiliary, it denotes completion; as, “The hunters have killed a wolf;” “A man has fallen from the bridge.”

Rem. 2.—When preceded by a conjunctive adverb of time, the present perfect tense sometimes denotes future time; as, “He will forward the goods as soon as he has received them.”

104. PAST TENSE.

The Past Tense expresses what took place in time wholly past; as, “I wrote;” “I was sailing.”

Rem.—The past indicative, like the present, denotes what was habitual; as, “We walked five miles every morning.” In the progressive form, it denotes an act in past time, but not completed; as, “He was driving furiously when I saw him.”

The past potential denotes (1) a duty or obligation, without reference to time; as, “Judges should be merciful;” (2) a habit or custom; as, “He would be absent a week at a time;” (3) ability possessed in past time; as, “He could walk yesterday;” (4) present possibility or power; as, “I could write [now] if I would;” (5) a future possibility; as, “If I should write to you [hereafter], you must answer immediately.”

105. PAST PERFECT TENSE.

The Past Perfect Tense represents an act as ended or completed in time fully past; as, "The cars had started before we reached the depot."

Rem. 1.—The past is frequently used instead of the past perfect, to denote the completion of an act at or before a certain past time mentioned; as, "The boat left before midnight."

Rem. 2.—The past perfect subjunctive and past perfect potential deny the action or event; as, "If I had started sooner, I should have overtaken you."

106. FUTURE TENSE.

The Future Tense expresses what will take place in future time; as, "I shall return soon;" "The lion shall eat straw like the ox."

Rem. 1.—Shall and will are the signs of the future tense. Shall expresses the action or event (1) as a duty commanded; as, "He shall pay you;" "Thou shalt not steal:" (2) as a prediction; as, "I shall make a thousand dollars:" (3) as future; as, "I shall leave at noon."

Will expresses the action or event (1) as something determined upon; as, "I will go: no power on earth can prevent me;" "The cause will raise up armies:" (2) as future; as, "You will feel better to-morrow."

Rem. 2.—Shall, in the first person, and will, in the second and third, are usually employed to denote futurity; as, "We shall arrive there by noon;" "You will be glad to see us;" "He will be with us."

Will is used, in the first person, to denote determination; and shall, in the second and third, to denote necessity; as, "I will write to you;" "I will not do it, come what may;" "Neither he nor you shall go without me."

107. FUTURE PERFECT TENSE.

The Future Perfect Tense represents an action as finished or ended at or before a certain future time; as, “I shall have finished my task at three o’clock;” “We shall have dined before you arrive.”

108. TENSES IN ALL THE MODES.

1. The Indicative Mode has the six tenses.
2. The Subjunctive Mode has three tenses: the present, past, and past perfect.
3. The Potential Mode has four tenses: the present, present perfect, past, and past perfect.
4. The Imperative Mode has one tense: the present.
5. The Infinitive Mode has two tenses: the present and present perfect.

Rem.—Tense does not properly belong to the infinitive mode. Its tenses are mere forms, without regard to time. The present tense denotes progressive or completed action or state, with reference to past, present, or future time; the present perfect, a completed action or state in an unlimited manner.

109. SIGNS OF THE TENSES: ACTIVE VOICE.

INDICATIVE MODE.

Present, Simple form of the verb.

Past, When regular, add ed to the simple form.

Future, Prefix shall or will to the simple form.

Present Perfect, Prefix have, hast, or has to the perfect participle.

Past Perfect, . . . Prefix had or hadst to the perfect participle.

Future Perfect, Prefix shall have or will have to the perfect participle.

SUBJUNCTIVE MODE.

POTENTIAL MODE.

Present, Prefix may, can or must to the simple form.

Past, Prefix might, could, would, or should to the simple form.

Present Perfect, Prefix may, can, or must have to the perfect participle.

Past Perfect, . . Prefix might, could, would, or should have to the perfect participle.

IMPERATIVE MODE.

Present, Let, or a command.

INFINITIVE MODE.

Present, Prefix to to the simple form.

Present Perfect, Prefix to have to the perfect participle.

PARTICIPLES.

Present, Add ing to the simple form.

Perfect, When regular, add ed or d to the simple form.

Compound, . . Prefix having to the perfect participle.

110. FORMS OF THE VERB.

1. Verbs have five forms, which may be considered subdivisions of the tenses: the Common, the Emphatic, the Progressive, the Passive, and the Ancient, or Solemn Style.

2. The Common Form represents an act as a custom, or as completed without reference to its progress; as, "I write;" "I shall write."

3. The Emphatic Form represents an act with emphasis; as, "I do write;" "He did go;" "He declared that he did not do it."

Rem.—This form is used in the present and past indicative and subjunctive, and in the present imperative. It is formed by prefixing the present and past tenses of to do to the simple form of the verb.

4. The Progressive Form is used to denote action or state in progress; as, "I am writing;" "He had been singing."

Rem.—The progressive form may be used in all the modes and tenses, and is formed by prefixing the various modes and tenses of the verb to be to the present participle of the principal verb.

5. The Passive Form denotes the reception of an act by its subject; as, "I am struck;" "John was punished;" "I shall be loved."

Rem.—The passive form is used in all the modes and tenses, and is formed by prefixing the various modes and tenses of the verb to be to the perfect participle of the principal verb.

6. The Ancient Form, or Solemn Style, is used in the Bible, in religious worship, and sometimes in poetry and burlesque; as, "Thou art the man;" "So shalt thou rest;" "Thou art a pretty fellow."

III. PERSON AND NUMBER.

1. The Person and Number of verbs are their modifications to mark their agreement with their subjects.

2. A subject in the second person singular, generally requires the verb, or its auxiliary, to end in t, st, or est; as, "Thou shalt not steal;" "Thou canst read;" "Thou runnest."

3. A subject in the third person singular, generally requires the verb, or its auxiliary, to end in s, es, or eth; as, "Julia reads;" "The horse goes;" "God lovethe us."

4. The personal terminations in the plural are the same as the first person singular, except in the verb to be.

5. A verb must agree with its subject in person and number.

Rem. 1.—When two or more nominatives, differing in person, are taken collectively, the verb prefers the first to the second, and the second to the third. When they are connected by or or nor, or are taken separately, it prefers the person of the nominative next to it. Courtesy requires the first place to be given to the second person, and last place to the first.

Ex.—"You, he, and I have to remain;" "You and he have to learn that long lesson;" "You or I am mistaken;" "Thou and thy friends are to make reparation."

Rem. 2.—A verb must be in the singular number when its subject conveys the idea of unity.

Ex.—"Rain falls;" "The army is marching;" "Dombey & Son [the title of a book] was written by Dickens;" "The ten dollars [a single sum] was duly paid;" "Descent and fall [words alike in meaning] to us is adverse."

Rem. 3.—A verb must be in the plural number when its subject conveys the idea of plurality.

Ex.—"The rains descend;" "The multitude pursue pleasure;" "Either the magistrate or the laws are at fault;" "You, he, and I are here."

112. UNIPERSONAL VERBS.

A Unipersonal Verb is one by which an act or state is asserted independently of any particular subject; as, "It snows;" "It cleared off;" "It befores us to be careful."

Rem.—Meseems, meseemed, methinks, methought, may be regarded as unipersonal verbs, equivalent to it seems, it seemed to me, I think, I thought.

113. CONJUGATION.

1. The Conjugation of a verb is the correct expression, in regular order, of its modes, tenses, voices, persons, and numbers.
2. There are four forms of conjugation: the Regular, the Emphatic, the Progressive, and the Interrogative.
3. The Principal Parts of a verb are: the present indicative, the past indicative, and the perfect participle.
4. The Synopsis of a verb is its variation in form, through the different modes and tenses, in a single number and person.

Rem.—The auxiliaries are all irregular verbs. Their forms may be found in the paradigm for their conjugation.

121. DEFECTIVE AND REDUNDANT VERBS.

1. Defective Verbs are those which want some of the Principal Parts.

Ex.—Beware, from be and aware, used mostly in the imperative mode, but may be used wherever be would occur in the conjugation of the verb to be; as, “Beware the awful avalanche!” “If angels fell, why should not men beware?”

Ought, used in both present and past tenses; as, “I know I ought to go,” (now); “I knew he ought to have gone,” (then).

Quoth, used for said; as, “‘Not I,’ quoth Sancho.” It always stands before its subject. Quod is also used in the same sense, by old authors.

Wit, in the sense of know; as, “To wit,” i. e., namely. Wot, wis, wert, wote, derived from wit, are found in old authors.

2. The Auxiliaries are also defective, wanting the perfect participle.

3. Redundant Verbs are those which have more than one form for their past tense or perfect participle.

Ex.—Cleave; cleft, clore; or clave; clever, or cleaved.

122. ORDER OF PARSING.

1. A Verb, and why?
2. Regular or Irregular, and why?
3. Give its principal parts.
4. Copulative, transitive or intransitive, and why?
5. Voice, and why?

125. CAUTIONS.

Caution 1.—General truths should be expressed in the present tense.

Ex.—1. I have always thought that dew fell. 2. He proved that the earth was round. 3. I should think it was time for the bell to ring. 4. He told me that every star was a sun. 5. I did not know that brass was made of zinc and copper. 6. Heat will radiate best from rough substances.

Caution II.—Do not use the perfect participle to express past time, nor the past-tense form instead of the perfect participle.

Ex.—1. I come here last Saturday. 2. John done it: I seen him. 3. I have saw an old friend to-day. 4. The bridge had fell: it was broken in two. 5. The cars have ran off the track. 6. The bells ringed when we come into town. 7. The letter was wrote in haste. 8. He has went and brought some snow into the house. 9. The wind has blowed the fence down.

10. His face has wore a sad expression for some time. 11. He laid down a while. 12. Charles winned the prize. 13. The vessel springed a leak. 14. He climb the tree and shaked the chestnuts down. 15. Have the cattle been drove to pasture? 16. The cloth was weaved beautiful. 17. The boy had swam the river.

Caution III.—In the use of words in sentences, a due regard should be paid to expressed or implied relations of time.

Ex.—1. He was tardy every day this week. 2. After I learned my lesson, I took a walk. 3. They have visited us last week. 4. He was under obligations to have assisted me. 5. John was absent all this afternoon. 6. I know the family more than twenty years. 7. I shall live here ten years next October.

Caution IV.—Do not use is n't or aint for is not, have n't or haint for have not, 'taint for it is not, might of for might have, etc.

Ex.—1. I haint learned my lesson. 2. 'Taint right to disturb the meeting. 3. Aint you going east this summer? 4. You might of known that I aint well. 5. He could of helped you, and you should of made him do so.

Caution V.—Never use will for shall, nor would for should, etc.

Ex.—1. I shall go; no one will prevent me. 2. I should be sorry if you would be sick. 3. If I would earn money, I would save it. 4. I will not be at home to-morrow evening. 5. We will receive our pay next week. 6. Would we have a pleasant time if we should go?

Caution VI.—Do not use improper passive forms.

Ex.—1. He was retired from active service. 2. He is possessed of a large amount of bank stock. 3. He was just returned from Boston when I saw him. 4. Evening was come before we reached the shore. 5. The men were all agreed on that.

Caution VII.—In expressing a supposition, use the subjunctive mode to denote doubt or denial, and the indicative mode to express a fact or any thing assumed as a fact.

Ex.—1. If he was rich, he would be generous. 2. Though he falls, he shall not be utterly cast down. 3. If it rains, I shall not go. 4. Be careful lest thou fallest into bad company. 5. If he play, he wins. 6. If he is not engaged, he will go with you.

THE ADVERB.

126. ORAL LESSON.

Write this sentence on your slates: "Jane sang a song." What element is "song"? Ans.—An objective element. Why? Ans.—Because it completes the meaning of the predicate. Write "Jane sang a song sweetly." Does "sweetly" complete the meaning of the predicate? Ans.—It does not. What word is modified by it, however? Ans.—"Sang." How does it modify "sang"? Ans.—It tells how Jane sang.

Write this sentence: "You are very kind." What word is modified by "very"? Ans.—"Kind." What part of speech is "kind"? Ans.—An adjective. Write, "A letter, hastily written, was sent me yesterday." What does "hastily" modify? Ans.—"Written." What part of speech is "written"? Ans.—A participle. Write, "The letter was written very hastily."

What does "very" modify? Ans.—"Hastily." What does "hastily" modify? Ans.—"Was written."

Those words, and all others used in a similar manner, are called Adverbs.

127. DEFINITION.

An Adverb is a word used to modify the meaning of a verb, adjective, participle, or an adverb; as, "She sings sweetly;" "The roads are very rough;" "The ranks were quickly broken;" "He reads tolerably well."

Rem. 1.—An adverb is equivalent to a phrase consisting of a preposition and its object, limited by an adjective.

Ex.—"He walks rapidly," i. e., He walks in a rapid manner. "He lives there," i. e., He lives at that place. "The work is intensely interesting," i. e., The work is interesting in an intense degree.

Rem. 2.—An adverb sometimes modifies a phrase or a clause.

Ex.—"He sailed nearly round the globe;" "The old man likewise came to the city." In the first sentence, nearly limits the phrase "round the globe;" and in the second, likewise modifies the entire proposition.

128. CLASSES.

1. With respect to their meaning and use, adverbs are divided into five classes: Adverbs of Time, Place, Cause, Manner, and Degree.

2. Adverbs of Time answer the questions, When? How long? How often?

Ex.—After, again, ago, always, anon, early, ever, never, forever, frequently, hereafter, hitherto, immediately, lately, now, often, seldom, soon, sometimes, then, when, while, weekly, until, yet, etc.

Rem.—To-day, to-morrow, to-night, yesterday, yesternight (formerly written yester day and yester night), are nouns, not adverbs. When used as modifiers, they should, in most instances, be parsed as nouns in the objective case, without a governing word. (See Rule VIII.)

Ex.—"He will come to-day;" "They all left yesterday;" "We had a severe storm yesternight."

3. Adverbs of Place answer the questions, Where? Whither? Whence?

Ex.—Above, below, down, up, hither, thither, here, there, where, herein, therein, wherein, hence, thence, whence, every-where, no-where, somewhere, far, yonder, back, forth, aloof, away, aboard, aloft, ashore, backwards, forwards, first, secondly, wherever, etc.

Rem.—There is sometimes used as an expletive to introduce a sentence; as, "There were giants in those days;" "Breathes there a man with soul so dead?"

4. Adverbs of Cause answer the questions, Why? Wherefore?

Ex.—Wherefore, therefore, then, why.

5. Adverbs of Manner answer the question, How?

Ex.—Amiss, asunder, anyhow, well, badly, easily, foolishly, sweetly, certainly, indeed, surely, verily, nay, no, not, nowise, haply, perhaps, perchance, peradventure, probably, etc.

Rem.—Most adverbs of manner are formed by adding ly to adjectives or participles; as, wise, wisely; united, unitedly.

6. Adverbs of Degree answer the questions, How much? How little?

Ex.—As, almost, altogether, enough, even, equally, much, more, most, little, less, least, wholly, partly, only, quite, scarcely, nearly, excellently, too, chiefly, somewhat, etc.

7. Adverbs which show the manner of the assertion are called modal adverbs; as, verily, truly, not, no, yes, etc.

8. When, where, why, etc., when used in asking questions, are called interrogative adverbs.

9. An Adverbial Phrase is a combination of words used as a single adverb.

Ex.—"In general;" "hand in hand;" "by and by;" "through and through;" "no more;" "for the most part;" "as usual," etc. Such combinations may be parsed as single adverbs.

10. Conjunctive Adverbs are those which connect sentences used as modifiers and the term modified.

Ex.—"I shall see you again when I return;" "Go where glory waits thee;" "I have been to Boston since I saw you last;" "Pay your bills before you leave;" "The book remained where I left it;" "I will go as soon as I have eaten my dinner."

Rem. 1.—The clause introduced by a conjunctive adverb modifies some word in the principal clause; the conjunctive adverb itself modifies some word in the subordinate clause. In the sentence, "He defends himself when he is attacked," the clause "when he is attacked" modifies "defends;" "when" modifies "is attacked," and connects the two clauses.

Rem. 2.—The principal conjunctive adverbs are: as, after, before, how, since, therefore, till, until, when, wherefore, while, and why.

129. COMPARISON.

Many adverbs admit of comparison.

1. Derivatives ending in ly are usually compared by prefixing more and most, less and least to the simple form; as, wisely, more wisely, most wisely; firmly, less firmly, least firmly.

2. Three adverbs are compared by adding er and est to the simple form, viz.: fast, faster, fastest; often, oftener, oftenest; soon, sooner, soonest.

3. Some adverbs are compared irregularly; as, well, better, best; ill, worse, worst; little, less, least; much, more, most, etc.

GENERAL REMARKS.

1. Some adverbs seem to be used independently; as, yes, no; why, well, etc., in certain constructions. They may be parsed as modifying the entire proposition, the preceding sentence, something understood, or, as independent.

Ex.—"Have you my book?—No." "Why, that is strange." "Well, I am surprised." "Yea, the Lord sitteth King forever."

2. Certain words are used sometimes as adverbs and sometimes as adjectives. They are adverbs when they modify verbs, adjectives, and other adverbs, and adjectives when they modify nouns or pronouns.

Ex.—"I can remain no longer;" "Let no man deceive you." In the first sentence, "no" is an adverb, modifying "longer;" in the second, it is an adjective, modifying "man."

3. In such expressions as "He works for hire only," "One man only was injured," "only" is an adjective, modifying the preceding noun. "He sells drugs and books also." Here "also" is an adverb, modifying "sells" understood. "He sells drugs, and he also sells books."

130. ORDER OF PARSING.

1. An Adverb, and why?
2. Compare it.
3. Tell what it modifies.
4. Rule.

131. MODELS FOR PARSING.

I. "He acted wisely."

Wisely is an adverb; it is used to modify the meaning of a verb: compared, wisely, more wisely, most wisely: it is an adverb of manner, and modifies "acted": Rule XVIII: "Adverbs modify verbs, adjectives, participles, and adverbs."

II. "Why do you laugh?"

Why is an adverb; it is not compared: interrogative adverb, and modifies "do laugh": Rule XVIII.

III. "They walk hand in hand."

Hand in hand is an adverbial phrase; it is a combination of words used as a simple adverb: it modifies "walk": Rule XVIII.

IV. "I shall certainly recover."

Certainly . . . is an adverb; modal; it shows the manner in which the assertion is made: it modifies "shall recover": Rule XVIII.

V. "I will go whenever you wish."

Whenever . . . is an adverb; conjunctive adverb; it connects two clauses, and modifies "wish": Rule XVIII.

132. EXERCISES.

Parse the adverbs in the following sentences:

1. They lived very happily. 2. Why do you look so sad ?
3. When spring comes, the flowers will bloom. 4. How rapidly the moments fly! 5. He signed it then and there. 6. I have read it again and again. 7. He will do so no more. 8. The mystery will be explained by and by. 9. Perchance you are the man.
10. Whither has he gone? 11. They were agreeably disappointed. 12. He lives just over the hill yonder. 13. Henceforth let no man fear that God will forsake us. 14. I saw him before he left. 15. I will not be unjust. 16. I have not seen him since I returned from New York. 17. Doubtless, ye are the people. 18. Perhaps I shall go.

133. CAUTIONS.

Caution I.—Do not use adjectives as adverbs.

- Ex.—1. I feel tolerable well, I thank you. 2. She dresses neat. 3. I was exceeding glad to hear from you. 4. He was that angry he could scarce speak. 5. You do not speak distinct enough. 6. You ought to read slower. 7. He was near famished. 8. We walked careful over the rough ground. 9. You ought to value his friendship higher.

Caution II.—Avoid the use of two negatives to express negation.

Ex.—1. The train don't wait for no one. 2. We did n't find nobody at home. 3. The boys don't want no holidays. 4. You don't look no older than you did ten years ago. 5. Nothing can't be done about it now. 6. The doctor said she would never be no better. 7. I had n't no money left when I got home.

THE PREPOSITION.

134. ORAL LESSON.

Write this sentence on your slates: "Mr. Olds is a wealthy man." What element is "wealthy"? Ans.—An adjective element. What does it modify? Ans.—"Man." Write this sentence: "Mr. Olds is a man of wealth." You see that "of wealth," in this sentence, has the same meaning as "wealthy" in the other. What part of speech is "wealth"? Ans.—A noun. The word "of" connects "man" and "wealth," and shows the relation between the ideas expressed by them. In this case, the relation is that of possession: "man" possesses "wealth." Words used in this manner are called Prepositions, because they are usually placed before nouns.

In the sentence "We live in London," what words tell where we live? Ans.—"In London." These words constitute what is called a phrase, and form an adverbial element. The word limited by the phrase is called the antecedent term of relation, and the noun following the preposition, the subsequent term, or object. The antecedent term may be any thing which can be modified, but the subsequent term must be the objective case of a noun or something used as a noun.

In the sentence, "I recite in the afternoon," what is the antecedent term of relation? Ans.—"Recite." Why? Ans.—Because it is the word which is modified by the phrase "in the afternoon." What is the subsequent term, or object? Ans.—"Afternoon." Why? Ans.—Because it is the object of the preposition "in."

135. DEFINITION.

A Preposition is a word used to show the relation between its object and some other word; as, "The man of Uz;" "Ellen is walking in the garden."

Rem. 1.—A preposition and its object form a separable phrase, which modifies some word or combination of words, called the antecedent term of the relation expressed by the preposition; the object of the preposition being the subsequent term. In the sentence, "The house stands on a hill," "stands" is the antecedent term of relation, and "hill" the subsequent.

Rem. 2.—Two prepositions are frequently combined and used as one; as, "He came from over the sea;" "The church stands over against the school-house." In such cases, parse the two prepositions as one, calling the combination a complex preposition.

Rem. 3.—Sometimes the object of a preposition is omitted; as, "The boys went out;" "The regiment marched by." In such cases, parse the preposition as an adverb.

Rem. 4.—The antecedent term is sometimes omitted; as, "'From Vermont?' asked the landlord;" "'As to that,' said the dial-plate." In such cases, parse the preposition as showing the relation between its object and an antecedent term understood.

For, in the complex phrases, "For him to lie," "For you to deceive," etc., may be parsed as an introductory preposition.

Rem. 5.—When the relations between objects of thought are so obvious that they need no expression, the prepositions are usually omitted; as, "I came home yesterday;" "He is worth a million;" "The bridge is a mile long." In such cases, the subsequent term of relation is said to be in the objective case without a governing word.

136. LIST OF PREPOSITIONS.

- Save; "Silent is all save the dropping rain."
- Since; "The Lord hath blessed thee since my coming."
- Till, until; "Not till the next morning did the boys appear."
- Through; "Then stept she down through town and field."
- Throughout; "There was much anxiety felt throughout the land."
- To; "Let the old tree go down to the earth."
- Toward, towards; "He turned me toward the moonlight."
- Under; "He stands erect under the curved roof."
- Unto; "Verily, I say unto you."
- Up; "He sailed up the river."
- Upon; "They were walking upon the hurricane deck."
- With; "The sky was red with flame."
- Within; "Something of ambition and pride stirred within him."
- Without; "The morning broke without a sun."

Rem. I.—The following prepositions, less commonly used, may be added to the foregoing list:

Abaft, aloft, alongside, afore, adown, aloof, aneath, aslant, atween, awixt, despite, inside, outside, maugre, minus, plus, per, sans, underneath, versus, via, as for, along with, despite of, from among, from before, from betwixt, from off, from under, off of, over against, round about, but for; and the participial forms excepting, regarding, bating, touching, respecting, etc., when followed by objects.

Rem. 2.—But, for, since, and some others, are frequently used as conjunctions; as, “I must go, for it is late.”

137. ORDER OF PARSING.

1. A Preposition, and why?
2. What relation does it show?
3. Rule.

138. MODELS FOR PARSING.

I. “The horse ran over the hill.”

Over is a preposition; it is a word used to show the relation between its object and some other word: it shows the relation between “hill” and “ran:” Rule XIX: “A preposition shows the relation of its object to the word upon which the latter depends.”

II. “He came out from under the bridge.”

From under is a complex preposition; it shows the relation between “bridge” and “came.” Rule XIX.

139. EXERCISES.

Parse the prepositions in the following sentences:

1. Will you go with me into the garden? 2. In my Father's house are many mansions. 3. We went over the river, through the corn-fields, into the woods yonder. 4. I am not satisfied as to that affair. 5. All came but Mary. 6. The Rhone flows out from among the Alps. 7. He went from St. Louis, across the plains, to California. 8. Light moves in straight lines, and in all directions from the point of emission. 9. They went aboard the ship.
10. Night, sable goddess! from her ebon throne,
In rayless majesty, now stretches forth
Her leaden scepter o'er a slumbering world.—Young.

140. CAUTION.

Caution.—Care should be taken to select such prepositions as express the relations intended.

Ex.—Among, amongst, are applicable to more than two objects; as, “He divided the estate among the four brothers;” between, betwixt, are applicable to two objects only; as, “He divided the estate between the two brothers.”

During should be used when the event continues through all the period mentioned; as, “I have examined law papers during the day;” in, at, or within, when the event does not continue during the whole period; as, “I alluded to that in my remarks this morning;” “The principal must be paid within the year.”

Of denotes possession of a quality or thing; as, “He is a friend of mine;” to denotes that the quality or thing is directed towards something else; as, “He has been a friend to me.”

In or at is used before the names of countries, cities, and towns; as, “She lives in New York;” “They reside at Glendale;” “We stayed in London.”

Into should be used after verbs denoting entrance; as, “He came into the office;” “He put the knife into his pocket.”

At is generally used after to be, not followed by a predicate; as, “They are at home;” “She is at church.” When a predicate is understood, or clearly implied, to should be used; as, “I have been to Cincinnati,” i. e., I have been (traveling) to Cincinnati.

Of, not about, should be used after boast and brag; as, “He boasts of his wealth;” “He brags of his strength.”

Upon should follow bestow and dependent; as, “Many favors were bestowed upon me;” “He is dependent upon his friends.”

From should follow differ and dissent; as, “I differ from you;” “I dissent from that decision.”

Of should follow diminution; as, “Any diminution of expenses is impossible.”

In should follow confide; as, “I confide in you.”

Of should be used when we are disappointed in obtaining a thing; as, “I was disappointed of money;” in, when we are disappointed in the quality of a thing, or the character of a person; as, "I am disappointed in that mower;" "I am disappointed in Mr. Johnson."

With denotes an instrument; by, a cause: with, the immediate, by, the remoter means; as, "A man is killed with a sword, and dies by violence;" "He walks with a cane by moonlight."

Correct the following exercises:

1. Divide the money among the two boys.
2. I will pay you sometime during next week.
3. Washington was a friend of his country.
4. He put the money in his pocket.
5. Where is the key to that trunk?
6. We arrived in Cleveland on Friday.
7. I differ with you on that question.
8. Never depart out of the straight path.
9. He went out of a fine morning, with a bundle in his hand.
10. I wish I had staid to home.
11. He depends on his daily labor for his support.
12. He boasted about his standing in society.
13. My father and mother are to church.
14. The still, sultry morning was followed with a hail-storm.
15. He was eager of making money.
16. I can make no diminution in my tuition rates.
17. He has gone west, accompanied with his wife.
18. We ought to profit from the errors of others.
19. You look different to what I supposed.

THE CONJUNCTION.

141. ORAL LESSON.

In the sentence, "Emma and Eva study algebra," what is the subject? Ans.—"Emma and Eva." Why? Ans.—Because something is affirmed of them. That is right. They are both subjects of the same predicate; and to indicate that they both sustain the same relation to the rest of the sentence, they are joined by the word "and." This is called a Conjunction, because its use is to join words. It is a cōordinate conjunction, because it joins elements of the same rank or name.

In the sentence, "Emma or Eva studies algebra," "or" is a conjunction, but it denotes opposition of meaning. If Emma studies algebra, Eva does not. Those words which connect other words, but denote opposition of meaning, are called subordinate conjunctions.

In the sentence, "Both Emma and Eva study algebra," "both" and "and" are called correlative conjunctions, because each answers or refers to the other.

142. DEFINITION.

A Conjunction is a word used to connect words, sentences, and parts of sentences.

Ex.—"The horse and wagon were captured, but the driver escaped;" "He lives out of town, and on a farm." In the first sentence, "and" connects "horse" and "wagon," and "but" connects the two propositions, "the horse and wagon were captured" and "the driver escaped." In the second sentence, "and" connects the phrases "out of town" and "on a farm."

Rem.—Conjunctions sometimes merely introduce sentences; as, "And it came to pass in those days;" "That the times are hard, is undeniable."

143. CLASSES OF CONJUNCTIONS.

1. Conjunctions are divided into two general classes: Coördinate and Subordinate.

2. Coördinate Conjunctions are those which join elements of the same rank or name.

Rem.—Coördinate conjunctions form no part of the material of which a sentence is composed—their use being to unite the material into a single sentence. They may be classified as follows:

1. Copulative, denoting addition merely; as, and, also, further, moreover, etc.

2. Adversative, denoting opposition of meaning; as, but, still, yet, only, however, notwithstanding, etc.

3. Alternative, denoting that which may be chosen or omitted; as, else, otherwise, or, nor, either, etc.

4. Illative, implying a consequence or inference following from what has been said; as, hence, thence, then, therefore, wherefore, for, because, so, consequently, accordingly, etc.

3. Subordinate Conjunctions are those which join elements of different ranks or names.

Rem.—Subordinate conjunctions may be classified as follows:

1. Causal, denoting effect, condition, reason, result, or purpose; as, that, so that, if, unless, except, as, because, since, although, though, for, whereas, inasmuch as, lest, etc.

2. Temporal, denoting time; as, cre, after, before, until, whilst, when, etc.

3. Local, denoting rest in, or motion to or from place; as, where, there, whence, thence, whither, thither, etc.

4. Of manner or degree, denoting likeness, equality, and excess or deficiency; as, as, as if, how, although, than, so as, etc.

Rem. 1.—Correlative Conjunctions are coördinate or subordinate conjunctions used in pairs, one referring or answering to the other; as, both . . . and, as . . . as, if . . . then, so . . . as, notwithstanding . . . yet, though . . . yet, either . . . or, nor . . . nor, neither . . . nor, etc.

Ex.—1. He is both learned and wise. 2. I am as tall as you. 3. As it was then, so it is now. 4. Though deep, yet clear. 5. If he confessed it, then forgive him.

Rem. 2.—Many of the subordinate conjunctions are frequently used as adverbs or conjunctive adverbs. (See Sec. 128.)

Rem. 3.—Certain combinations of words have the force of connectives, and should be parsed as conjunctions or conjunctive adverbs. They are: as if, as well as, except that, forasmuch, as, but also, but likewise, notwithstanding that, not only, etc.

Ex.—1. Facts may be transmitted by tradition as well as by history. 2. You talk as if you were an idiot.

144. ORDER OF PARSING.

1. A conjunction, and why?
2. Coördinate or subordinate, and why?
3. What does it connect?
4. Rule.

145. MODELS FOR PARSING.

I. "He came and went like a pleasant thought."

And . . . is a conjunction; it connects words; coördinate; it denotes addition: it connects "came" and "went." Rule XX: "Coördinate conjunctions join similar elements."

II. "He learns, because he is studious."

Because . is a conjunction; subordinate; it joins dissimilar elements; it connects "learns" and "he is studious." Rule XXI.

III. "Neither James nor John had his lesson."

Neither . . nor . are conjunctions; correlative; one refers or answers to the other: "neither" introduces the sentence, and "nor" connects "James" and "John." Rule XX.

IV. "Unto us was the gospel preached as well as unto them."

As well as is a conjunction; copulative; it connects and emphatically distinguishes the two phrases, "unto us" and "unto them;" Rule XX.

146. EXERCISES.

Parse all the words in the following sentences:

1. I am a poor man, and argue with you, and convince you.
2. He'd sooner die than ask you, or any man, for a shilling.
3. Talent is something, but tact is every thing.
4. Neither military nor civil pomp was wanting. 5. The truth is, that I am tired of ticking. 6. I remember a mass of things, but nothing distinctly.

7. I alone was solitary and idle. 8. Both the ties of nature and the dictates of policy demand this. 9. There was no reply, for a slight fear was upon every man. 10. No man more highly esteems or honors the British troops than I do. 11. The soldier marches on and on, inflicting and suffering, as before. 12. There may be wisdom without knowledge, and there may be knowledge without wisdom.

13. Not a having and resting, but a growing and becoming, is the true character of perfection as culture conceives it.—Shairp. 14. Men must be taught as if you taught them not.—Pope. 15. Essex had neither the virtues nor the vices which enable men to retain greatness long.—Macaulay. 16. How long didst thou think that his silence was slumber?—Scott.

17. Vice is a monster of so frightful mien,
As to be hated needs but to be seen;
But seen too oft, familiar with her face,
We first endure, then pity, then embrace.—Pope.

147. CAUTIONS.

Caution I.—Do not use like or with for as, but for than, that for why, or without for unless.

Ex.—1. They live in houses like we do. 2. We ought to be industrious and economical, like our forefathers were. 3. The answer is the same with that in the book. 4. He reads for no other purpose but to pass away the time. 5. This is the reason that I staid at home. 6. I shall not go without you go with me.

Caution II.—Do not use as well as or together with for and, nor how for that, or in its stead.

Ex.—1. I, as well as my sister, were at the concert last evening. 2. Mr. Brown, together with Mr. Shriver, are opening a new coal mine. 3. He told me how that he was going to Oregon. 4. Father said how he believed he would sell his farm.

THE INTERJECTION.

148. DEFINITION.

An Interjection is a word used to denote some sudden or strong emotion; as, "Hark! some one comes." "Pshaw! that is ridiculous."

The principal interjections are the following:

Ah, aha, hurra, huzza; oh, alas, welladay, alack; ha, indeed, zounds; bravò; faugh, fie, fudge, pshaw; heigh-ho; ha, ha, 'ha (laughter); avaunt, begone; hail, all-hail; adieu, farewell, good-by; hallo, ahoy, lo, hark; hist, whist, hush, tush; avast, hold; eh? hey?

Rem. 1.—Interjections have no definite meaning or grammatical construction. They occur frequently in colloquial or impassioned discourse; but are expressions of emotion only, and can not be used as signs of thought. As their name imports, they may be thrown in between connected parts of discourse, but are generally found at the commencement of sentences.

Rem. 2.—Other parts of speech, when used as exclamations, may be treated as interjections; as, "What! art thou mad?" "My stars! what can all this be?" "Revenge! about,—seek,—burn,—fire,—kill,—slay!—let not a traitor live!" In most cases, however, words thus used may be parsed otherwise; as, "'Magnificent!' cried all at once." "Magnificent" may be parsed as an adjective, the predicate of the sentence, "It is magnificent." "Behold! your house is left unto you desolate!" "Behold" may be parsed as a verb in the imperative mode.

149. ORDER OF PARSING.

1. An Interjection, and why?
2. Rule.

150. MODEL FOR PARSING.

I. "O, let me live.

O . . . is an interjection; it denotes some strong emotion: Rule XXII: "An interjection has no dependence upon other words."

151. EXERCISES.

Parse all the words in the following sentences:

1. Ha! laughest thou? 2. Heigh! sirs, what a noise you make here. 3. Huzza! huzza! long live lord Robin! 4. Hah! it is a sight to freeze one. 5. Let them be desolate for a reward of their shame which say unto me, Aha! aha!
6. Oh, that the salvation of Israel were come out of Zion!
7. Alas! all earthly good still blends itself with home!
8. Tush! tush! man, I made no reference to you.
9. Hark! what nearer war-drum shakes the gale?
10. Soft! I did but dream!
11. What! old acquaintance! could not all this flesh
Keep in a little life? Poor Jack, farewell!
I could have better spared a better man.—Shakespeare.

152. MISCELLANEOUS EXERCISES.

1. A mercenary informer knows no distinction. 2. I send you here a sort of allegory. 3. Our island home is far beyond the sea. 4. Love took up the harp of life, and smote on all the chords with might. 5. Your If is the only peace-maker: much virtue in If. 6. He is very prodigal of his ohs and ahs.
7. He looked upward at the rugged heights that towered above him in the gloom. 8. He possessed that rare union of reason, simplicity, and vehemence, which formed the prince of orators. 9. Mark well my fall, and that that ruined me.—Shakespeare. 10. The jingling of the guinea helps the hurt that honor feels.—Tennyson.

11. His qualities were so happily blended, that the result was a great and perfect whole. 12. There is no joy but calm. 13. I must be cruel, only to be kind. 14. Why are we weighed upon with heaviness? 15. Now blessings light on him that first invented sleep: it covers a man all over, thoughts and all, like a cloak.—Cervantes.

16. Many a morning on the moorlands did we hear the cypresses ring—Tennyson. 17. He stretched out his right hand at these words, and laid it gently on the boy's head.—Dickens. 18. He acted ever as if his country's welfare, and that alone, was the moving spirit. 19. The great contention of criticism is to find the faults of the moderns, and the beauties of the ancients. Whilst an author is yet living, we estimate his powers by his worst performance; and when he is dead, we estimate them by his best.—Johnson.

20. I will work in my own sphere, nor wish it other than it is. 21. As his authority was undisputed, so it required no jealous precautions, no rigorous severity. 22. Like all men of genius, he delighted to take refuge in poetry. 23. To know how to say what other people only think, is what makes men poets and sages; and to dare to say what others only dare to think, makes men martyrs or reformers, or both. 24. That done, she turned to the old man with a lovely smile upon her face—such, they said, as they had never seen, and never could forget—and clung with both her arms about his neck.—Dickens.

25. To live in hearts we leave behind,
Is not to die.—Campbell.

26. But war's a game which, were their subjects wise,
Kings would not play at.—Couper.

27. Whoever thinks a faultless piece to see,
Thinks what ne'er was, nor is, nor e'er shall be.—Pope.

28. The Niobe of nations, there she stands,
Childless and crownless, in her voiceless woe;
An empty urn within her withered hands,
Whose holy dust was scattered long ago.—Byron.

29. Can storied urn or animated bust
Back to its mansion call the fleeting breath?
Can Honor's voice provoke the sleeping dust,
Or Flattery soothe the dull, cold ear of death?—Gray.

30. Forth from his dark and lonely hiding-place
 (Portentous sight!) the owlet Atheism,
 Sailing on obscure wings athwart the noon,
 Drops his blue-fringed lids, and holds them close,
 And hooting at the glorious sun in heaven,
 Cries out, "Where is it?"—Coleridge.
31. A thing of beauty is a joy forever;
 Its loveliness increases; it will never Pass into nothingness.—Keats.
32. Dry clank'd his harness in the icy caves
 And barren chasms, and all to left and right
 The bare black cliff clang'd round him, as he based
 His feet on jets of slippery crag that rang
 Sharp-smitten with the dint of armed heels.—Tennyson.
33. Then came wandering by
 A shadow, like an angel with bright hair
 Dabbled in blood; and he shriek'd out aloud:
 "Clarence is come! false, fleeting, perjur'd Clarence!
 That stabbed me in the field by Tewksbury:
 Seize on him, furies, take him to your torments!"—
Shakespeare.
34. There are things of which I may not speak:
 There are dreams that can not die:
 There are thoughts that make the strong heart weak,
 And bring a pallor upon the cheek,
 And a mist before the eye.
 And the words of that fatal song
 Come over me like a chill:
 "A boy's will is the wind's will,
 And the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts."—
Longfellow.
35. These ages have no memory, but they left
 A record in the desert—columns strown
 On the waste sands, and statues fallen and cleft,
 Heap'd like a host in battle overthrown;
 Vast ruins, where the mountain's ribs of stone
 Were hewn into a city: streets that spread
 In the dark earth, where never breath has blown
 Of heaven's sweet air, nor foot of man dares tread,
 The long and perilous ways—the Cities of the Dead.—
Bryant.

PART III.

SYNTAX.

153. PRELIMINARY ORAL LESSONS.

Note to teachers.—The object of these lessons is: (1) To exercise pupils in the construction of simple sentences; (2) To teach the uses and definitions of the elements of a sentence; (3) To teach the analysis of sentences containing elements of the first class.

Use Oral Lesson on page 24 as introductory to these.

LESSON I.

I hold in my hand a piece of chalk: what is its color?
Ans.—It is white. It breaks easily: what else can be said of it? Ans.—It is brittle. It crumbles readily: hence, we say it is friable. Each of the words, white, brittle, friable, expresses some quality belonging to chalk: what shall we call them?
Ans.—Quality-words. We will now unite these quality-words with “chalk,” by the word “is,” thus:

Chalk is white.

Chalk is brittle.

Chalk is friable.

Each of these groups of words is called a Sentence; for “A Sentence is an assemblage of words making complete sense.”

Write the definition on your slates. Now repeat it in concert. Each group is also called a Proposition; for

“A Proposition is a thought expressed in words.”

Write this definition on your slates. Repeat it in concert.

In the proposition "Chalk is white," the noun "chalk" is called the Subject; for

"The Subject of a proposition is that of which something is affirmed."

"White" is called the Predicate; for

"The Predicate of a proposition is that which is affirmed of the subject."

The word "is" is called the Copula; for

"The Copula is a word or group of words used to join a predicate to a subject, and to make an assertion."

In this sentence, it affirms that the quality "white" belongs to "chalk."

Write these definitions on your slates. Repeat them in concert.

In the proposition, "Chalk is brittle," what is the subject?

Ans.—"Chalk." Why? Ans.—It is that of which something is affirmed. What is the predicate? Ans.—"Brittle." Why?

Ans.—It is that which is affirmed of the subject.

Affirm qualities of the following subjects:

Iron, gold, silver, lead, ink, cork, sugar, vinegar, grass, books, lessons.

Model.—Iron is heavy.

Affirm the following qualities of appropriate subjects:

Transparent, opaque, hard, round, square, good, bad, bitter, heavy, rough, smooth, red, yellow, green.

Model.—Glass is transparent.

LESSON II.

In the sentence "Iron is a metal," is any quality affirmed of "iron"? Ans.—There is not. That is right. The predicate "metal" denotes kind or class, not quality. It is a predicate, however, because it is affirmed of the subject "iron."

In the sentence "Horses are animals," what is the subject? Ans.—"Horses." Why? Ans.—Because it is that of which something is affirmed. What is the predicate? Ans.—"Animals." Why? Ans.—Because it is that which is affirmed of the subject. What is the copula? Ans.—The word "are."

Affirm class of the following subjects:

Horses, oxen, coal, wood, hay, oats, wheat, ax, hoe, locomotive, dogs, sheep, copper, gold, apples, trees, wagons, houses.

Model.—Wheat is a vegetable.

Affirm qualities of the same subjects.

LESSON III.

Write this sentence on your slates: "Horses run." You see that the predicate "run" is affirmed directly of the subject without the use of the copula. The copula and predicate are united in one word; for "Horses run" means the same as "Horses are running."

What is the subject in this sentence: "Boys learn"? Ans.—"Boys." What is the predicate? Ans.—"Learn." Why? Ans.—It is that which is affirmed of the subject. Words which affirm any thing of subjects are called Verbs. What are the words "run" and "learn"? Ans.—Verbs. Why? Ans.—Because they affirm something of their subjects.

Write sentences, using the following verbs as predicates:

Walk, sing, whistle, swim, wrestle, play, write, study, plow, reap, drive, neigh, cackle, whine, snarl, gobble, quarrel, fight.

Model.—Cattle walk.

LESSON IV.

Write on your slates, and then repeat in concert:

"An Element is one of the distinct parts of a sentence."

The Subject and Predicate are called Principal Elements, because no sentence can be formed without them.

The Copula is not an element: it is used merely to join a predicate to a subject, and to make an assertion.

Separating a sentence into its elements is called Analysis. We will now analyze some sentences according to the following

M O D E L S .

I. "Apples are ripe."

Apples . . is the subject; it is that of which something is affirmed: Ripe is the predicate; it is that which is affirmed of the subject; are is the copula.

II. "Birds fly."

Birds . . . is the subject; (why?): fly is the predicate (why?).

E X E R C I S E S .

1. Ink is black.
2. Gold is yellow.
3. Lead is a metal.
4. Birds sing.
5. Vessels sail.
6. Trees are plants.
7. Fishes swim.
8. Elihu was tardy.
9. Mary was studious.
10. Enoch may be angry.
11. Snow falls.
12. Houses stand.

L E S S O N V.

Write this sentence on your slates: "Horses eat." While you were writing did you not think some word should be added, representing what horses eat? Ans.—We did. What word shall we add? Ans.—Oats. Write "oats" after the verb. This word completes the meaning of the verb, and is called an Objective Element, or Object. In the sentence "Pupils study arithmetic," what word completes the meaning of the predicate or verb? Ans.—"Arithmetic." What element is it? Ans.—An objective element. Why? Ans.—Because it completes the meaning of the verb.

Write ten sentences, each containing an objective element.

Model.—Indians hunt buffaloes.

Analyze the sentences you have written, using this model:

"Children love play."

Children is the subject; (why?): love, the predicate; (why?): the predicate is modified by play, an objective element.

Analyze also the following sentences:

1. Heat melts lead.
2. Men love money
3. I study botany.
4. Haste makes waste.
5. Cats catch mice.
6. Mr. Jones sells calicoes.
7. Clouds bring rain.

LESSON VI.

Write this sentence on your slates: "Apples are ripe." What is the subject of the sentence? Ans.—"Apples." Why? Ans.—It is that of which something is affirmed. What is the word "apples"? Ans.—It is a noun. Why? Ans.—It is a name. What is the predicate? Ans.—"Ripe." Why? Ans.—It is that which is affirmed of the subject. Now write these words: "Ripe apples." Is this a sentence? Ans.—It is not. Why? Ans.—There is nothing affirmed. That is correct. The word "ripe" is here used to modify the meaning of "apples," as an attribute, not as a predicate: that is, it is assumed, or taken for granted, that it belongs to "apples." All words which modify the meaning of nouns in this manner, are called Adjective Elements.

Write this sentence: "Ripe apples are cheap." What is "ripe"? Ans.—An adjective element. Why? Ans.—It modifies the meaning of a noun. "Samuel's hat is torn." What element is "Samuel's"? Ans.—An adjective element. Why? Ans.—It modifies the meaning of the noun "hat." "Mr. Smith, the mason, is sick." What is "mason"? Ans.—An adjective element. Why? Ans.—It modifies the meaning of "Mr. Smith," a noun. What are the words "Samuel's" and "mason"? Ans.—They are nouns. Nouns, then, are adjective elements when they modify nouns.

Write five sentences, limiting the subjects by adjective elements denoting quality.

Models.—Cross dogs bite. Cold winter comes.

Write five sentences, limiting their subjects by adjective elements denoting number.

Models.—Two boys fought. Three men left.

Write five sentences, limiting their subjects by words which merely point them out.

Models.—That boy is studious. This boy is lazy.

Write five sentences, limiting their subjects by nouns.

Models.—Eli's uncle is rich. Mr. Tod the lawyer is young.

Write five sentences, limiting both subjects and objects by adjective elements.

Model.—Emma's mother bought a new bonnet.

Analyze the following sentences, using these models:

I. “Milton the poet was blind.”

Milton is the subject; blind is the predicate; “Milton” is modified by poet, an adjective element, and “poet” by the, an adjective element; was is the copula.

II. “Evil communications corrupt good manners.”

Communications is the subject; corrupt, the predicate; “communications” is modified by evil, an adjective element; “corrupt,” by manners, an objective element; and “manners,” by good, an adjective element.

EXERCISES.

1. Sarah's book is lost.
2. Mrs. Elkins the milliner found Sarah's book.
3. Old people love quiet.
4. Young children love play.
5. I like ripe cherries.
6. You have found my pencil.

LESSON VII.

Write this sentence on your slates: “Birds sing sweetly.” Does “sweetly” denote what the birds sing? Ans.—It does not; it tells how they sing. That is right. “Sweetly” does not complete the meaning of “sing,” like an objective element; but it modifies its meaning in another way. All words used in such a manner are called Adverbial Elements. Words which modify adjectives are called adverbial elements also.

In this sentence, "The storm rages violently," what is the subject? Ans.—"Storm." What is the predicate? Ans.—"Rages." What is "violently"? Ans.—An adverbial element. Why? Ans.—It modifies a verb, but does not complete its meaning.

In the sentence, "Very large vessels were seen," what is modified by "very"? Ans.—"Large." What is "large"? Ans.—An adjective. What element, then, is "very"? Ans.—An adverbial element. Why? Ans.—It modifies an adjective. Adverbial elements also modify other adverbial elements.

Write ten sentences, modifying the verbs by adverbial elements.

Model.—The wind blows furiously.

Write ten sentences, containing adjective elements modified by adverbial elements.

Model.—James recited a very long lesson.

Analyze the following sentences, using these models:

I. "The wind blows violently."

Wind is the subject; blows, the predicate; "wind" is modified by the, an adjective element; "blows" is modified by violently, an adverbial element.

II. "Emma has a very severe headache."

Emma is the subject; has, the predicate; "has" is modified by headache, an objective element; "headache" by a and severe, adjective elements; and "severe" by very, an adverbial element.

EXERCISES.

1. A sluggard sleeps soundly.
2. The horses were much fatigued.
3. Very loud reports were heard.
4. That boy spends his money foolishly.
5. You may go now.
6. He then left the country.
7. The river rose rapidly.
8. The troops marched forward.
9. Their parents live there.
10. How far did the horses run?
11. He acted wisely.
12. Mr. Mason is a truly good man.
13. He will be heard from presently.
14. The men were very much fatigued.
15. The doctor will be here immediately.

154. DEFINITIONS.

1. Syntax treats of the construction of sentences.
2. A Sentence is an assemblage of words making complete sense.

Ex.—Birds fly. Man is mortal. “The great throat of the chimney laughed.” “When the farmer came down in the morning, he declared that his watch had gained half an hour in the night.”

3. A Proposition is a thought expressed in words.

Ex.—The weather is pleasant. The boy seems frightened.

Rem.—The term sentence is applied to any assemblage of words so arranged as to make complete sense; proposition, to the thought which those words express.

4. Propositions are either Principal or Subordinate.

5. A Principal Proposition is one which makes complete sense when standing alone.

6. A Subordinate Proposition is one which does not make complete sense when standing alone, but which must be connected with another proposition.

Ex.—“The man that does no good, does harm.” Here “the man does harm” is the principal proposition, for it makes complete sense when standing alone: “that does no good” is a subordinate proposition, for it does not make complete sense when standing alone.

7. A Phrase is an assemblage of words forming a single expression, but not making complete sense.

Ex.—Till lately; in haste; since then; year by year; little by little; to see; to have seen; to be seen.

8. A Discourse is a series of sentences on the same subject, arranged in logical order.

9. A Paragraph is a series of sentences on the same branch of a subject.

10. An Element is one of the component parts of a sentence.

11. Analysis is the separation of a sentence into its elements.

12. Synthesis is the construction of sentences from words.

S E N T E N C E S .

155. CLASSIFICATION WITH RESPECT TO USE.

1. With respect to use, sentences are divided into four classes : Declarative, Interrogative, Imperative, and Exclamatory.

2. A Declarative Sentence is one used to affirm or deny something.

Ex.—Fishes swim. Fishes do not walk.

Rem.—Direct Discourse is telling what somebody thinks or says, by using his own words; as, "Our teacher said, 'Be frank, honest, and truthful!'"

Indirect Discourse is giving the substance of what somebody thinks or says, but not using his own words; as, "Our teacher said, that we should be frank, honest, and truthful!"

3. An Interrogative Sentence is one used to ask a question.

Ex.—Are you angry? Where does that man live?

Rem.—A Direct Question is one which can be answered by yes or no; as, "Has the money been paid?"

An Indirect Question is one which can not be answered by yes or no; as, "Who paid the money?"

4. An Imperative Sentence is one used to express a command or an entreaty.

Ex.—Bring me that book. Do not strike me.

5. An Exclamatory Sentence is one used in exclamations, or in the expression of strong emotion.

Ex.—Oh, how glad I am to see you!

156. EXERCISES.

Tell to which class each of the following sentences belongs:

Model.—"The dews bring their jewels."

This is a declarative sentence; it is used to affirm something.

1. The days are calm.
2. How many quarts are there in a gallon?
3. The winds bring perfumes.
4. Study diligently.
5. He waved his arm.
6. And the fellow calls himself a painter!
7. He deserved punishment rather than pity.

8. O, how careless you are! 9. What was the Rubicon? 10. How brightly the sun shines! 11. Alas for the man who has not learned to work! 12. Bring forth the prisoner now. 13. I had a dream which was not all a dream.—Byron. 14. A plague of all cowards, still say I.—Shakespeare.

15. Attend to the duties I have assigned you. 16. Many fell by thy arm: they were consumed in the flame of thy wrath. 17. When shall it be morn in the grave, to bid the slumberer awake? 18. The Commons, faithful to their system, remained in a wise and masterly inactivity:—Mackintosh.

157. CLASSIFICATION WITH RESPECT TO FORM.

1. With respect to form, sentences are divided into three classes: Simple, Complex, and Compound.

2. A Simple Sentence consists of a single proposition.

Ex.—Flowers bloom. Who is he? Tread lightly. How glad I am!

3. A Complex Sentence is one some element of which contains a subject and a predicate.

Ex.—Flowers bloom when spring returns. He who is diligent shall be rewarded. I hear that you have sold your farm, and that you are going to California.

Rem.—The propositions in complex sentences are called Clauses. They are named and numbered according to the order of their subordination.

Ex.—“I believe that he is honest.” In this sentence, “I believe” is the principal clause, and “that he is honest” is the subordinate.

4. A Compound Sentence consists of two or more simple or complex sentences, joined by coördinate conjunctions.

Ex.—Spring comes, and the flowers bloom. “I go, but I return.” “Though Truth is fearless and absolute, yet she is meek and modest.”

Rem. 1.—The simple or complex sentences, of which compound sentences are composed, are called Members. They are numbered according to their place in the sentence.

Ex.—“Every man desires to live long; but no man would be old.” In this sentence, “every man desires to live long” is the first member, and “no man would be old” is the second.

Rem. 2.—The clauses of complex sentences are connected by relative pronouns, conjunctions, and conjunctive adverbs. The members of compound sentences are connected by conjunctions.

Rem. 3.—The connectives are sometimes omitted; as, “I thought [that] he was absent;” “Talent is power, [but] tact is skill.”

Rem. 4.—A sentence whose members are complex, is a compound-complex sentence.

158. MODELS FOR CLASSIFICATION.

I. “The nights are tranquil.”

This is a sentence; it is an assemblage of words making complete sense: declarative; it is used to affirm something: simple; it consists of a single proposition.

II. "Shall I return the book which you lent me?"

This is a sentence; interrogative; it is used to ask a question: complex; it is composed of a principal and a subordinate proposition: "Shall I return the book" is the principal proposition, and "which you lent me," the subordinate, limiting "book." "Which" is the connective.

III. "She counseled him, that when he arose in the morning, he should beat them without mercy."—Bunyan.

This is a sentence; declarative; complex; "She counseled him" is the principal proposition; "that he should beat them without mercy" the first subordinate, modifying "counseled"; and "when he arose in the morning," the second subordinate, modifying "beat." "That" and "when" are connectives.

IV. "Pope had perhaps the judgment of Dryden; but Dryden certainly wanted the diligence of Pope."—Johnson.

This is a sentence; declarative; compound; it is composed of two propositions, joined by a coördinate connective: "Pope had perhaps the judgment of Dryden" is the first member, and "Dryden certainly wanted the diligence of Pope" is the second. "But" is the connective.

159. EXERCISES.

1. Thy feet are fetterless. 2. Level spread the lake before him. 3. He waved his broad felt hat for silence. 4. A soldier of the Legion lay dying in Algiers. 5. It sank from sight before it set.—Whittier. 6. Ye softening dews, ye tender showers, descend! 7. None will flatter the poor. 8. Ye are the things that tower. 9. The house was wrapped in flames.

10. Hope and fear are the bane of human life. 11. The village all declared how much he knew.—Goldsmith. 12. He that refuseth instruction despiseth his own soul. 13. Is it for thee the lark ascends and sings? 14. How dreadful is this place, for God is here! 15. He dares not touch a hair of Catiline. 16. What can compensate for the loss of character? 17. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil.

18. Time slept on flowers, and lent his glass to Hope. 19. All were sealed with the seal which is never to be broken till the great day. 20. O God, we are but leaves on thy stream, clouds in thy sky. 21. Talk to the point, and stop when you have reached it.

22. "It was now the Sabbath-day, and a small congregation of about a hundred souls, had met for divine service, in a place more magnificent than any temple that human hands had ever built to Deity."—Wilson.

23. I know thou art gone where the weary are blest,
And the mourner looks up and is glad.

24. What matter how the night behaved?
What matter how the north wind raved?—Whittier.

25. Bird of the broad and sweeping wing,
Thy home is high in heaven,
Where the wide storms their banners fling,
And the tempest clouds are driven.—Percival.

ELEMENTS.

160. PRINCIPAL ELEMENTS.

1. The Principal Elements of a proposition are those which are necessary to its construction. They are the Subject and the Predicate.

2. The Subject of a proposition is that of which something is affirmed.

Ex.—"Time is precious." "Time" is the subject; it is that of which "precious" is affirmed.

3. The Predicate of a proposition is that which is affirmed of the subject.

Ex.—"Time is precious." "Precious" is the predicate; it is that which is affirmed of the subject.

Rem.—In these definitions, the term "affirm" is meant to include say, ask for, command, entreat, or exclaim.

4. The subject may be a word, a phrase, or a clause.

Ex.—Winter is coming. H is a letter. To steal is base. “Put as you go,” is a good rule. “Why will he persist?” is often asked.

Rem.—The subject of a proposition may be known by its answering the question formed by using Who? or What? with the predicate.

Ex.—“John is careless.” Who is careless? Ans.—“John.” “John,” therefore, is the subject. “To be sick is disagreeable.” What is disagreeable? Ans.—“To be sick.” “To be sick,” therefore, is the subject.

5. The Copula is some form of the verb to be (is, was, has been, might be, etc.), or a copulative verb. Its office is to affirm the predicate of the subject.

Ex.—“Silence is impressive.” “Is” is the copula, and “impressive” the predicate. “Gold is a metal.” “Is” is the copula, and “metal” the predicate. “He may have been injudicious.” “May have been” is the copula, and “injudicious” the predicate. “The fields look green.” “Look” is the copula, and “green” the predicate.

6. In affirming action, being, or state, the copula and predicate are generally united in one word, or one form, called a verb.

Ex.—Pupils study. I am. The house stands. Rain is falling. Letters are written.

7. The copula is sometimes followed by the infinitive of the verb to be or of some other copulative verb; as, “The boy seems to be sick;” “The detective was to appear inattentive.” The infinitive depends upon the copula, and is an adverbial element; the entire expression is called a strengthened copula.

8. The Predicate may be a word, a phrase, or a clause.

Ex.—Horses gallop. Wheat is a vegetable. The sun was shining. “To obey is to enjoy.” He seems honest. My desire is, that you attend school.

Rem.—The predicate is sometimes erroneously called the attribute of a proposition, and the copula and predicate, taken together, the predicate.

161. MODELS FOR ANALYSIS.

I. "Birds sing."

Birds is a sentence; declarative; simple.

Birds is the subject; it is that of which something is affirmed; sing is the predicate; it is that which is affirmed of the subject.

II. "Scholars should be studious."

Scholars is a sentence; declarative; simple.

Scholars is the subject; studious is the predicate; should be is the copula.

III. "Franklin was a philosopher."

Franklin is a sentence; declarative; simple.

Franklin is the subject; philosopher is the predicate; was is the copula.

IV. "He was considered responsible."

He is a sentence; declarative; simple.

He is the subject; responsible is the predicate; was considered is the copula.

V. "Be truthful."

Thou or you, understood, is the subject; truthful is the predicate; be is the copula.

162. EXERCISES IN ANALYSIS.

1. Children play.
2. Virtue ennobles.
3. Spring has come.
4. Winter has departed.
5. You may go.
6. Mary might have sung. 7. Horses can run. 8. Flowers are blooming. 9. Money may be loaned. 10. Books will be bought. 11. Stars were shining. 12. John should have been studying.

13. Glass is brittle. 14. Water is transparent. 15. Savages may be merciful. 16. Men should be just. 17. Samuel should have been obedient. 18. Geography is interesting. 19. Job was patient. 20. I will be industrious. 21. They have been successful.

22. Iron is a metal. 23. Flies are insects. 24. Napoleon was a general. 25. Ostriches are birds. 26. "Men would be angels; angels would be gods." 27. They may have been truants. 28. Howard was a philanthropist. 29. He might have been a lawyer. 30. George had been a captain.

31. John looks cold. 32. I feel aguish. 33. Ants appear industrious. 34. Washington was elected president. 35. Varice has become his master. 36. He seems dejected. 37. He became wealthy. 38. It was deemed inexpedient.

163. ARRANGEMENT OF ELEMENTS.

1. Arrangement is the correct placing of elements.
2. Elements are arranged in Natural or Inverted order.
3. The Natural order of arrangement is that which is most customary.
4. The Inverted order of arrangement is any departure from the natural order.

Rem.—In inverted order, the elements are said to be transposed.

5. The Natural order of arrangement is:

In Declarative Sentences:

1. Subject . . . Predicate; as, "Winds blow."
2. Subject . . . Copula . . . Predicate; as, "Chalk is white."
3. Subject . . . Auxiliary . . . Predicate; as, "You may go."

In Interrogative Sentences:

1. Copula . . . Subject . . . Predicate; as, "Is he wise?"
2. Auxiliary . . . Subject . . . Predicate; as, "May I go?"
3. Predicate . . . Subject; as, "Say you so?"
4. Subject . . . Predicate; as, "Who remained?"

In Imperative Sentences:

1. Predicate . . . Subject; as, "Go thou."
2. Copula . . . Subject . . . Predicate; as, "Be ye merciful."

In Exclamatory Sentences, the arrangement is the same as in declarative, interrogative, and imperative sentences.

6. The Inverted order is used when the predicate is made emphatic.

Rem.—Inversion occurs in declarative and exclamatory sentences. The usual order of arrangement is: Predicate . . . Copula . . . Subject; as, "Great was our wonder;" "Known unto God are all his works."

164. EXERCISES IN SYNTHESIS.Affirm actions of the following subjects:

Winds, waters, stars, fire, light, acorns, sheep, rabbits, fishes, men, women, boys, girls, children, thunder, lightning, storms, nobles, kings, merchants.

Models.—Winds blow. Storms rage.

Affirm quality of the following subjects:

Apples, cherries, peaches, fruit, books, desks, winter, spring, summer, autumn, sugar, quinine, vinegar, grammar, writing, evenings, darkness, chemistry, geography.

Models.—Apples are ripe. Quinine is bitter.

Ascertain all the distinguishing properties of five substances. Affirm them of the substances to which they belong.

Models.—Chalk is white; chalk is opaque; chalk is brittle; chalk is incombustible, etc.

Affirm class or kind of the following subjects:

Oranges, horses, hens, flies, Henry, Washington, ships, gold, silver, sharks, water, air, table.

Model.—Oranges are fruit. Henry is a clerk.

165. SUBORDINATE ELEMENTS.

1. A Modifier is a word, phrase, or clause joined to a term to limit or restrict its meaning or application.

Ex.—A wealthy man. Chairs to mend. A man who is wealthy.

2. Subordinate Elements are those which modify other elements. They are distinguished as Objective, Adjective, and Adverbial.

166. OBJECTIVE ELEMENT.

An Objective Element is a word or group of words which completes the meaning of a transitive verb in the active voice, or of its participles. It is usually called the object.

Ex.—Heat melts metals. Men love money. I wish to be quiet. Alice knew that we were not at home. Him they sought.

Rem. 1.—The objective element answers the question formed by using Whom? or What? with the predicate, or with the subject and predicate.

Ex.—“John writes letters.” Writes what? Ans.—“Letters” = the object. “Brutus killed Cæsar.” Brutus killed whom? Ans.—“Cæsar” = the object.

Rem. 2.—By “completing the meaning of a verb” is meant restricting its application, by stating that on which its action terminates. In the sentence “John writes,” the predicate “writes” is taken in its most general sense: what John writes is not mentioned. In the sentence “John writes letters,” the application of the predicate is restricted to the single act of writing letters. “Letters” being the object on which the act of writing terminates, it is called the objective element.

Rem. 3.—Some verbs are followed by two objects: one denoting a person or thing; the other, the rank, office, occupation, or character, of the person, or the species of the thing.

Ex.—They elected Charles captain. He called him a scoundrel. He makes the sea his home. They declared self-government a delusion.

Rem. 4.—Another class of verbs is followed by two objects: one denoting a person or thing; the other, that to or from which the act tends. The former is called the direct, the latter the indirect object. (See, also, Sec. 32, Rem.)

Ex.—He taught me arithmetic. He sold me a horse. I gave him money. They sent John a telegram.

167. MODELS FOR ANALYSIS.

VI. "Columbus discovered America."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

Columbus is the subject; discovered is the predicate. The predicate is modified by America, an objective element.

VII. "Whom did you see?"

This is a sentence; interrogative; simple.

You is the subject; did see is the predicate. The predicate is modified by whom, an objective element.

VIII. "Bring me flowers."

This is a sentence; imperative; simple.

Thou or you, understood, is the subject; bring is the predicate. The predicate is modified by me, an indirect, and by flowers, a direct objective element.

IX. "They have chosen Mr. Ames speaker."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

They is the subject; have chosen is the predicate. The predicate is modified by Mr. Ames, a direct objective element, and by speaker, an objective element, denoting office.

168. EXERCISES IN ANALYSIS.

1. He examined the books. 2. Silas studied geology. 3. They watched the storm. 4. You must obey the laws. 5. We earn money. 6. Merchants sell goods. 7. Engineers run locomotives. 8. Blacksmiths shoe horses.
9. Farmers sow grain. 10. Give me music. 11. They chose him. 12. We have chosen him director. 13. Bring him a book. 14. Whom did you call? 15. I sold him a horse. 16. He taught me algebra. 17. Henry gave Eli his velocipede. 18. The teacher has appointed John monitor. 19. God called the light day. 20. They made him their leader.

169. EXERCISES IN SYNTHESIS.

Sentences containing objective elements are arranged as follows:

Declarative; Subject . . Predicate . . Object; as, “I found it.”

Interrogative; 1. Object . . Predicate . . Subject; as, “What see you?” 2. Object . . Auxiliary . . Subject . . Verb; as, “What did you see?”

Imperative; Predicate . . Object; as, “Practice economy.”

Rem. I.—In inverted order, the arrangement of declarative sentences is:

Object . . Subject . . Predicate; as, “Him they found.”

Write sentences containing an objective element, using the following words as subjects:

Men, boys, heat, lightning, horses, locomotives, scythe, knife, shears, clerks, merchants, blacksmith, tailor, mason, doctors, lion, oxen, eagles.

Models.—Men drive horses. Boys fly kites. Merchants sell goods.

Write sentences containing two objects, using the above or any other nouns.

Models.—Charles calls doctors physicians. Frank calls a sleigh a cutter. I consider William a genius.

Write sentences containing a direct and an indirect object, using the following verbs:

Ask, buy, bring, do, draw, deny, find, get, leave, make, pass, pour, promise, provide, present, sell, send, show, refuse, teach, tell, throw, write.

Models.—Emma asked me a question. He bought Charles a pony.

Change each of the verbs, in the sentences written last, into the passive voice, making either object the subject.

Models.—I was asked a question. A pony was bought for Charles.

Analyze the sentences you have written.

170. ADJECTIVE ELEMENT.

An Adjective Element is a word or group of words which modifies a noun or any expression used as a noun.

Ex.—A good man. Mr. Myers, the banker. Friend, Hiram. “If you can: a sensible if.” “Done gone,” a vulgarism, is frequently heard. My book is on Ellen’s desk. A letter, written in haste. She came, laughing.

Rem. 1.—An adjective element is a definitive or descriptive term used to modify the meaning of a noun or its substitute. The relation which a predicate attribute sustains to the subject is affirmed: the relation which an adjective element sustains to the term it modifies is assumed, or taken for granted.

Ex.—“That man is wealthy.” The predicate “wealthy” is affirmed to belong to “man.” “A wealthy man.” The attribute “wealthy” is here assumed to belong to “man,” and is an adjective element.

Rem. 2.—An adjective element, containing a single word, may be:

1. An Adjective; as, “Ripe apples.”
2. A Participle; as, “Hats made to order.”
3. A Noun in Apposition; as, “Powers, the sculptor.”
4. A Possessive; as, “Eli’s pen.” “His hat.”

171. MODELS FOR ANALYSIS.

X. "Small lakes are abundant."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

Lakes is the subject; abundant is the predicate; are is the copula. The subject is modified by small, an adjective element.

XI. "The steamship Hibernia has arrived."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

Steamship is the subject; has arrived is the predicate. The subject is modified by the and Hibernia, both adjective elements.

XII. "My brother broke Stephen's slate."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

Brother is the subject; broke is the predicate. The subject is modified by my, an adjective element. The predicate is modified by slate, an objective element, and "slate" is modified by Stephen's, an adjective element.

XIII. "The old man, laughing, said 'Yes.'"

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

Man is the subject; said is the predicate. The subject is modified by the, old, and laughing, adjective elements. The predicate is modified by Yes, an objective element.

172. EXERCISES IN ANALYSIS.

1. A large house was burned.
2. I wrote a long letter.
3. This land is government property.
4. Many hands make quick work.
5. A wise son maketh a glad father.
6. Man's necessity is God's opportunity.
7. Mr. Hodge, the farmer, hired Mr. Olds, the mason.
8. Great wits jump.
9. He is a vain, conceited blockhead.
10. I want the largest apple.
11. Mary has chosen the better part.
12. Carlo's barking wakened the family.
13. I saw six swans.
14. This is my fortieth birthday.
15. Every man received a penny.

173. EXERCISES IN SYNTHESIS.

Adjectives and possessives are usually placed before, and participles and nouns in apposition, after the nouns they modify.

Write seven sentences, limiting the subject by one of the following adjectives:

Round, square, oval, rough, smooth, transparent, translucent, white, green, sour, sweet, old, young, new, wise, foolish, lucky, unlucky, careful, careless.

Models.—A round table was purchased. A square box was found.

Write seven sentences, limiting both subject and object by an adjective.

Model.—A stout horse draws heavy loads.

Write seven sentences, limiting the subject or object by the possessive case of one of the following nouns:

Elephant, swan, hawk, sparrow, summer, winter, father, mother, uncle, aunt, John, Samuel, Celia, Harriet, Jackson, teacher, doctor, pupil, merchant.

Models.—An elephant's tusks are white. A swan's movements are graceful.

Write seven sentences, limiting the subject or object, or both, by a noun in apposition.

Models.—Mr. Sledge, the blacksmith, is sick. Wilson, the burglar, robbed Wilson, the banker.

Analyze the sentences you have written.

174. ADVERBIAL ELEMENT.

An Adverbial Element is a word or group of words used to modify a verb, participle, adjective, or adverb.

Ex.—The stranger was very kind. The wind blows fiercely. Come here. Who goes there?

Rem. 1.—Adverbial elements, when they modify the meaning of verbs, usually denote some circumstance of time, place, cause, degree, or manner.

Ex.—He calls frequently. There is no night there. Why are you angry? The teacher labored faithfully.

Rem. 2.—Adverbial elements, which modify the manner of the assertion, and not the predicate itself, are called modal adverbs.

Ex.—He has not come. Perhaps I shall go. He was absent, probably. He will certainly resign.

175. MODELS FOR ANALYSIS.

XIV. "He is strictly honest."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

He is the subject; honest is the predicate. The predicate is modified by strictly, an adverbial element.

XV. "The sun shines brightly."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

Sun is the subject; shines is the predicate. The subject is modified by the, an adjective element; the predicate by brightly, an adverbial element.

XVI. "He is not handsome."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

He is the subject; handsome is the predicate. The copula is modified by not, an adverbial element.

176. EXERCISES IN ANALYSIS.

1. The birds sing sweetly.
2. We struck the vessel just amidships.
3. I now demand your votes.
4. He formerly lived here.
5. The fire went out.
6. He seems very sad.
7. The boy wrote the letter carelessly.
8. They have been long absent.
9. I shall certainly defend you.

177. EXERCISES IN SYNTHESIS.

In the natural order of arrangement, the adverbial element is placed after the word or group of words it limits.

Ex.—He denied the charge vehemently.

Rem.—In inverted order, the adverbial element is placed between the subject and predicate, or at the head of the sentence.

Ex.—He vehemently denied the charge. Vehemently did he deny the charge.

Write seven sentences, limiting the predicates by an adverbial element of manner.

Models.—She writes rapidly. He does his work thoroughly.

Write seven sentences, limiting the predicates by an adverbial element of place.

Models.—He lives there. Where do you live?

Write seven sentences, limiting the predicates by an adverbial element of time.

Models.—I was very happy then. When will you come?

Write seven sentences, limiting the predicates by an adverbial element of cause or degree.

Models.—Why are you sad? The work is scarcely commenced.

Write seven sentences, limiting the copulas by a modal adverb.

Models.—He is certainly insane. James is not a truant.

Write seven sentences, containing adjectives modified by adverbial elements.

Models.—That tree is very tall. It is a remarkably fine gem.

Analyze the sentences you have written.

178. ATTENDANT ELEMENTS.

Attendant or Independent Elements are words or expressions not used as principal or subordinate elements of the sentences in which they are found. They are:

1. Nouns and pronouns in the nominative absolute case; as, "Children, obey your parents;" "Rome, her glory has departed;" "He having arrived, we returned."
2. Interjections and nouns used in broken exclamations; as, "Pshaw, what nonsense!" "Wretched man that I am!"
3. Expletives, and words used to introduce sentences in a peculiar way; as, "Now, Barabbas was a robber;" "There is no report of any disaster;" "It is a shameful thing to tell a lie."
4. All phrases and clauses which have no perceptible connection with the rest of the sentence.

Rem.—Attendant elements should be omitted in the analysis of the sentences containing them. They have no grammatical connection with other words, except in certain constructions in which they are used as antecedents of pronouns. Sometimes the entire group of words of which they form a part has the force of an adverbial element.

Ex.—"Gad, a troop shall overcome him." The attendant element "Gad," is the antecedent of the pronoun "him." "They having left, order was restored." The attendant element "they," is connected with "having left," and the combination has the force of the adverbial clause "after they left."

179. WORDS, PHRASES, AND CLAUSES.

1. Elements are divided into three classes: Words, Phrases, and Clauses.
2. An element may consist of a single word.

Ex.—"A careless boy seldom learns his lesson." In this sentence, all the elements are single words.

3. An element may consist of a phrase, which may be an infinitive or a preposition and its objects.

Rem.—There are two kinds of phrases: Separable and Inseparable.

A Separable Phrase is one whose words should always be parsed separately; as, "He rode in a wagon." The three words composing the phrase "in a wagon," should be parsed separately—"in" as a preposition; "a" as an adjective; "wagon" as a noun.

An Inseparable Phrase is one whose words need not be separated in parsing; as, "I will come by and by;" "He labors in vain." The phrases "by and by" and "in vain" may be parsed as single words. All the forms of the infinitive mode are inseparable phrases.

4. An element may consist of a clause, or subordinate proposition.

Ex.—"A man who is indolent will not prosper;" "I learn that you are out of employment." The subordinate propositions "who is indolent" and "you are out of employment" are clauses.

180. MODELS FOR ANALYSIS.

SINGLE WORDS.

XVII. "Tumultuous murder shook the midnight air."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

Murder is the subject, shook is the predicate. The subject, "murder," is modified by tumultuous, an adjective element; the predicate "shook" is modified by air, an objective element; "air" is modified by the and midnight, adjective elements.

181. EXERCISES.

1. Thou hast uttered cruel words.
2. Every heart knows its sorrows.
3. Gratitude is a delightful emotion.
4. This generous bounty was well bestowed. 5. The best men often experience disappointments. 6. A disposition so amiable will secure universal regard. 7. His brother's offense will not condemn him.

182. PHRASES—ADJECTIVE ELEMENTS.

XVIII. "A life of prayer is a life of heaven."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

Life is the subject; is is the predicate; is is the copula. The subject, "life," is modified by a, an adjective element, and by the phrase of prayer, an adjective element. The predicate, "life," is modified by a, an adjective element, and by the phrase of heaven, an adjective element.

183. EXERCISES.

1. Black crags behind thee pierce the clear blue sky. 2. Vicissitudes of good and evil fill up the life of man. 3. He had a remarkably good view of their features. 4. He shakes the woods on the mountain side. 5. The fate of gods may well be thine.—Byron. 6. He had endured three months of nights.—Ware. 7. His architecture has become a mere framework for the setting of delicate sculpture.—Ruskin.

184. PHRASES—ADVERBIAL ELEMENTS.

XIX. "Many actions apt to procure fame, are not conducive to our ultimate happiness."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

Actions is the subject; conducive is the predicate; are is the copula. The subject, "actions," is modified by many and apt, adjective elements; "apt" is modified by the phrase to procure, an adverbial element, and "to procure," by fame, an objective element. The copula, "are," is modified by not, a modal adverbial element; and the predicate, "conducive," by the phrase to happiness, an adverbial element, and "happiness," by our and ultimate, adjective elements.

XX. "I will go to-morrow."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

I is the subject; will go is the predicate. The predicate, "will go," is modified by the phrase [] to-morrow, an adverbial element—to-morrow being a noun in the objective case without a governing word. (See Sec. 219, Rule VIII.)

Rem.—The symbol "[]" is to be used in written analysis only. It indicates a relation usually represented or expressed by a preposition. In oral analysis, the pupil should pay no attention to this symbol, but use the form of words given in the model.

185. EXERCISES.

1. I bow reverently to thy decrees.
2. Heaven burns with the descending sun.
3. The panther's track is fresh in the snow.
4. His home lay low in the valley.
5. We one day descried some shapeless object floating at a distance.
6. The horses ran two miles without stopping.
7. We sailed south four days.
8. See what a grace is seated on his brow.—Shakespeare.
9. There is a very life in our despair.—Byron.
10. Eternal sunshine settles on his head.—Goldsmith.
11. Heaven first taught letters for some wretch's aid.—Pope.

186. PHRASES—INFINITIVES.

XXI. "To love is to obey."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

To love is the subject; it is a phrase; to obey is the predicate; it is a phrase; is is the copula.

XXII. "He wishes to go to the house."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

He is the subject; wishes is the predicate. The predicate, "wishes," is modified by the phrase to go, an objective element; "to go" is modified by the phrase to the house, an adverbial element, and "house" by the, an adjective element.

XXIII. "Clarence seemed to be their leader."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

Clarence is the subject; leader is the predicate; seemed to be is the strengthened copula. The predicate, "leader," is modified by "their," an adjective element. "Seemed" is modified by the phrase "to be," an adverbial element.

187. EXERCISES.

1. To doubt the promise of a friend is a sin. 2. He has gone to his office to write a letter. 3. How pleasant it is to see the sun. 4. Not to know me argues yourselves unknown.—Milton. 5. 'Tis not in mortals to command success.—Addison. 6. Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast.—Congreve. 7. I was not hardened enough to venture a quarrel with him then.—Cowley. 8. A thousand years scarce serve to found a state.—Byron.

188. CLAUSES.

XXIV. "The credulity which has faith in goodness, is a sign of goodness."

This is a sentence; declarative; complex. "Credulity is a sign of goodness" is the principal clause, and "which has faith in goodness," the subordinate.

Credulity is the subject of the principal clause; sign is the predicate; is is the copula. The subject, "credulity," is modified by the, an adjective element, and by the clause which has faith in goodness, an adjective element; "sign," the predicate, is modified by a, an adjective element, and by the phrase of goodness, an adjective element. Which is the subject of the subordinate clause; has is the predicate. The predicate, "has," is modified by faith, an objective element, and by the phrase in goodness, an adverbial element.

XXV. "I thought, when I saw you last, that I should never see you again."

This is a sentence; declarative; complex. "I thought" is the principal proposition; "when I saw you last" and "that I should never see you again," are subordinate propositions.

I is the subject of the principal proposition; thought is the predicate. The predicate, "thought," is modified by the clause when I saw you last, an adverbial element, and by the clause that I should never see you again, an objective element. I is the subject of the objective clause; should see is the predicate; "should see" is modified by you, an objective element, and by never and again, adverbial elements. I is the subject of the adverbial clause; saw is the predicate; "saw" is modified by you, an objective element, and by when and last, adverbial elements. When and that are connectives, joining the clauses they introduce to "thought."

189. EXERCISES.

1. Soon rested those who fought. 2. All said that Love had suffered wrong. 3. He builds a palace of ice where the torrents fall. 4. It was now a matter of curiosity who the old gentleman was. 5. The fires of the bivouac complete what the fires kindled by the battle have not consumed. 6. Towards night, the schoolmaster walked over to the cottage where his little friend lay sick.
7. Until you become lost to all feeling of your true interest and your natural dignity, freedom they can have from none but you.—Burke. 8. The sound of the wind among the leaves was no longer the sound of the wind, but of the sea.—Longfellow. 9. These are follies on which it would be greater folly to remark.—Landor.

10. I am now at liberty to confess that much which I have heard objected to my late friend's writings, was well founded.
11. One of his favorite maxims was, that the only way to keep a secret is never to let any one suspect that you have one.
12. How his essays will read, now they are brought together, is a question for the publishers, who have thus ventured to draw out into one piece his "weaved-up follies."—Lamb.
13. Examples may be heaped until they hide
The rules that they were made to render plain.
14. Merciful wind, sing me a hoarse, rough song,
For there is other music made to-night
That I would fain not hear.
15. Woe worth the chase! woe worth the day!
That cost thy life, my gallant gray.—Scott.
16. The mountain arose, with its lofty brow,
While its shadow was sleeping in vales below.—Clark.

190. EXERCISES IN SYNTHESIS.

Write seven sentences, limiting their subjects by an adjective phrase.

Models.—Love of display is a sin. Greed of gain is wrong.

Write seven sentences, limiting their subjects by an adjective clause.

Model.—The house which you see yonder, belongs to my father.

Write seven sentences, limiting their predicates by an objective phrase or clause.

Models.—I wish to remain. He says that he can not walk.

Write seven sentences, limiting their predicates by an adverbial phrase or clause.

Model.—I study to learn. I will come when you call me.

Write seven sentences, introducing attendant elements.

Model.—I think, my dear friend, that you are mistaken.

Analyze the sentences you have written.

KINDS OF ELEMENTS.

191. SIMPLE ELEMENTS.

1. A Simple Element is one which is not restricted by a modifier.

Ex.—"A rich man;" "A man of wealth;" "A man who is wealthy." The word "rich," the phrase "of wealth," and the clause "who is wealthy," are simple adjective elements.

2. The Grammatical Subject is the simple subject.

3. The Grammatical Predicate is the simple predicate.

Rem.—The same distinction may be made in the other elements.

192. MODELS FOR COMPLETE ANALYSIS.

XXVI. "To err is human."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

To err is the grammatical subject; human is the grammatical predicate; is is the copula.

XXVII "I am in danger."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

I is the grammatical subject; am is the grammatical predicate. The predicate, "am," is modified by the phrase in danger, an adverbial element.

193. EXERCISES.

1. Banners were waving.
2. To forgive is divine.
3. It is pleasant to read.
4. Stars have been shining.
5. Weapons were procured.
6. To covet is sinful.
7. To quarrel is disgraceful.
8. To rob is to plunder.
9. Vessels are in sight.

194. COMPLEX ELEMENTS.

1. A Complex Element is one which contains a leading element, restricted in meaning by one or more modifiers.

2. The leading element is called the basis.

Ex.—"A very rich man." "Rich" is the basis of the adjective element, and is modified by "very," an adverbial element. "A man faithful when others were faithless." "Faithful" is the basis of the adjective element, and is modified by the clause "when others were faithless."

Rem.—The basis of an element need not be pointed out or mentioned in analysis.

3. The Complex or Logical Subject is the simple subject taken with all its modifiers.

Rem. 1.—The simple subject, when a noun, may be modified:

1. By an adjective; as, "Loud reports followed."
2. By a participle; as, "The hour appointed has come."
3. By a possessive; as, "George's plan succeeded."
4. By a noun in the same case; as, "Gay the poet is dead."
5. By a phrase; as, "A storm of applause followed."
6. By a clause; as, "Money which I earn is my own."

Rem. 2.—A subject may have all the preceding modifications in the same sentence.

Rem. 3.—When the simple subject is a pronoun, it may have all the modifications of a noun, except that made by a noun or pronoun in the possessive case.

Rem. 4.—An infinitive or participial noun, used as a subject, may be modified (1) as a noun, by a word, phrase, or clause in the nominative case, in apposition with it; (2) as a verb, by the modifiers of a verb.

4. The Complex or Logical Predicate is the simple predicate taken with all its modifiers.

Rem. 1.—The simple predicate, when a verb, may be modified:

1. If transitive, by an object; as, "He saves money."
2. By an adverb; as, "The horse runs swiftly."
3. By a phrase; as, "He lives in Troy;" "He studies to learn."
4. By a clause; as, "He knows where the mushrooms grow."

Rem. 2.—When the predicate is an adjective, a participle, a noun, or any thing used as a noun, it may have all the modifications of the part of speech with which it is classed.

Rem. 3.—The copula is usually, but not always, modified by modal adverbs and adverbs of time.

Rem. 4.—A predicate may have all the modifications given above in the same sentence.

5. A Complex Objective Element is the simple object taken with all its modifiers.

Rem.—A complex objective element may be:

1. A word, modified by words, phrases, or clauses; as, "We found much gold;" "He owns the house on the hill;" "I love those who are frank."
2. A phrase, modified by single words, phrases, or clauses; as, "He desires to learn rapidly;" "He desires to learn to write;" "He desires to repeat what he has heard."
3. A clause, some part of which is modified by another clause; as, "I said that he was present when the assault was made."

6. A Complex Adjective Element is the simple adjective element taken with all its modifiers.

Rem.—A complex adjective element may be:

1. An adjective, modified by an adverb; as, "A very large lot."
2. A participle, with all the modifiers of a verb; as, "The young man was seen clandestinely entering a dram-shop."
3. A noun or pronoun, with the modifications of a noun or pronoun; as, "Mr. Elder's house;" "Thompson, the faithful guardian of our cousins;" "Our own dear native land."

4. A phrase, modified by a word, phrase, or clause; as, "A time to make friends;" "A time to learn to write;" "A time to repeat what you have learned."

5. A clause, some part of which is modified by another clause; as, "A man who is angry whenever his views are controverted."

7. A Complex Adverbial Element is the simple adverbial element taken with all its modifiers.

Rem.—A complex adverbial element may be:

1. An adverb, modified by a single word, phrase, or clause; as, "We rode very rapidly;" "It is too badly done to last;" "He spoke so indistinctly that we could not understand him."

2. A phrase, modified by a single word, phrase, or clause; as, "I am ready to begin the work;" "I shall be ready to commence work by daylight;" "I am ready to go wherever duty calls me."

3. A clause, some part of which is modified by another clause; as, "He is afraid that you will not return before he leaves."

195. MODELS FOR COMPLETE ANALYSIS.

XXVIII. "A lad, made orphan by a winter shipwreck, played among the waste."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

"A lad, made orphan by a winter shipwreck," is the logical subject, and "played among the waste" is the logical predicate.

Lad is the grammatical subject; played is the grammatical predicate. The subject, "lad," is modified by a, a simple adjective element, and by made orphan by a winter shipwreck, a complex adjective element. "Made orphan" is modified by the phrase by a winter shipwreck, an adverbial element: "shipwreck" is modified by a and winter, adjective elements.

The predicate, "played," is modified by the phrase among the waste, an adverbial element, and "waste" by the, an adjective element. "Made orphan" is an abridged proposition, equivalent to "that was made an orphan." (See Sec. 206.)

XXIX. "He who does as he lists, without regard to the wishes of others, will soon cease to do well."

This is a sentence; declarative; complex.

"He will soon cease to do well" is the principal proposition; "who does as he lists, without regard to the wishes of others," the complex subordinate proposition.

"He who does as he lists, without regard to the wishes of others," is the logical subject, and "will soon cease to do well," the logical predicate.

He is the grammatical subject of the principal proposition; will cease is the predicate. The subject, "he," is modified by the clause who does as he lists, etc., a complex adjective element.

Who is the subject of this dependent proposition; does is the predicate; "does" is modified by the clause as he lists, an adverbial element; of which as is the connective, he is the subject, and lists is the predicate; also by the phrase without regard to the wishes of others, a complex adverbial element, of which regard is modified by the phrase to the wishes of others, a complex adjective element. Wishes is modified by the, an adjective element, and by the phrase of others, an adjective element.

"Will cease," the predicate, is modified by soon, an adverbial element, and by the phrase to do well, a complex objective element; of which to do is modified by well, an adverbial element.

18. My soul is an enchanted boat,
Which, like a sleeping swan, doth float
Upon the silver waves of thy sweet singing.—Shelley.

197. COMPOUND ELEMENTS.

A Compound Element consists of two or more independent simple or complex elements, joined by coördinate conjunctions.

Ex.—The moon and stars are shining. You may go or stay.

Rem.—All the elements of a sentence may be compound.

198. MODELS FOR COMPLETE ANALYSIS.

XXX. “Industry, honesty, and economy generally insure success.”

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

“Industry, honesty, and economy” is the logical subject; “generally insure success” is the logical predicate.

Industry, honesty, and economy is the compound grammatical subject; insure is the grammatical predicate. The subject is not modified. The predicate, “insure,” is modified by generally, an adverbial element, and by success, an objective element.

XXXI. "The charities that soothe, and heal, and bless,
Are scattered at the feet of man like flowers."—

Wordsworth.

This is a sentence; declarative; complex. Name the principal and the subordinate clause.

"The charities that soothe, and heal, and bless" is the logical subject: "Are scattered at the feet of man like flowers" is the logical predicate.

Charities is the grammatical subject of the principal proposition; are scattered is the grammatical predicate. The subject, "charities," is modified by the, an adjective element, and by the clause that soothe, and heal, and bless, an adjective element; of which that is the subject, and soothe, and heal, and bless is the compound predicate; and being the connective.

The predicate, "scattered," is modified (1) by the clause at the feet of man, a complex adverbial element; of which "feet" is modified by the, an adjective element, and by the phrase of man, an adjective element; (2) by the phrase like flowers, an adverbial element.

9. All the girls were in tears and white muslins, except a select two or three, who were being honored with a private view of the bride and bridesmaids, up stairs.

10. There was another tap at the door—a smart, potential tap, which seemed to say, "Here I am, and in I'm coming."

11. Not a truth has to art or to science been given,
But brows have ached for it, and souls toiled and striven.

Lytton.

200. CLASSIFICATION OF PHRASES.

1. Complex elements and abridged propositions are sometimes called phrases.

Rem.—The basis of the element, the manner in which it modifies, the connective, or the leading word, determines the name of the phrase.

2. Phrases may be :

- 1. Appositive; as, "Washington, the father of his country."
- 2. Adjective; as, "A man, tenacious of principle."
- 3. Adverbial; as, "He lives just round the corner."
- 4. Prepositional; as, "We walked on the bank of the river."
- 5. Infinitive; as, "He hoped to receive a telegram."
- 6. Participial; as, "Being unwell, he remained at home."
- 7. Absolute; as, "He being sick, I remained."
- 8. Independent; as, "O my ducats!"

Rem. 1.—The infinitive, or participial phrase, when used as subject, is called the Subject Phrase: when used as predicate, the Predicate Phrase.

Rem. 2.—The absolute phrase is an abridged proposition. It usually modifies the predicate of the sentence of which it forms a part, but may modify the subject and predicate combined.

201. CLASSIFICATION OF CLAUSES.

Clauses are classified with reference to their use or position in sentences. They are :

- 1. The Subject Clause: a proposition used as the subject of a sentence; as, "How the accident occurred, is not known."
- 2. The Predicate Clause: a proposition used as the predicate of a sentence; as, "The question is, How did he obtain the money?"

3. The Relative Clause: a dependent proposition introduced by a relative pronoun; as, "The vessel which you see yonder, is a sloop."

4. The Appositive Clause: a proposition put in apposition with a noun; as, "The question, Are we a nation? is now answered."

5. The Interrogative Clause: a proposition introduced by an interrogative word; as, "Who said so?" "What vessel is that?" "Where do you live?"

6. The Objective Clause: a proposition used as an objective element; as, "The chairman declared that the motion was lost."

7. The Adverbial Clause: a proposition used as an adverbial element; as, "I will pay you when I receive my week's wages."

Rem. 1.—Subject, predicate, and objective clauses are used as nouns.

Rem. 2.—Relative clauses are either restrictive or explanatory. If restrictive, the antecedent is usually modified by a, the, or that; as, "The vessel which capsized, was a bark." If explanatory, the antecedent is not so modified; as, "Steamships, which are a modern invention, make quick voyages."

A proposition introduced by a compound relative is frequently equivalent to an adverbial element; as, "He will succeed, whoever may oppose him."

Rem. 3.—Interrogative clauses may be introduced by interrogative pronouns, interrogative adjectives, or interrogative adverbs.

Rem. 4.—Adverbial clauses may be classified as follows:

1. Temporal: dependent clauses denoting time; as, "I was absent when the accident occurred."

2. Local: dependent clauses denoting place; as, "Go where duty calls thee."

3. Causal: dependent clauses denoting cause; as, "He is beloved, for he is good."

4. Final: dependent clauses denoting a purpose or a result; as, "We came that we might assist you;" "Love not sleep, lest thou come to poverty."

5. Comparative: dependent clauses expressing comparison; as, "He is older than I [am];" "Men generally die as they live."

6. Conditional: dependent clauses modifying propositions containing deductions or conclusions; as, "He will be ruined, unless he reform;" "I would pay you, if I could."

7. Concessive: dependent clauses denoting a concession or admission; as, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him."

Rem. 5.—Two clauses which mutually qualify are called correlative; as, "The deeper the well, the cooler the water."

202. EXERCISES.

Classify the phrases and clauses in the following sentences:

1. No one came to his assistance. 2. He were no lion, were not Romans hinds. 3. I would that ye all spake with tongues. 4. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. 5. Launch thy bark, mariner! 6. He made them give up their spoils. 7. Go quickly, that you may meet them.

8. Voltaire, who might have seen him, speaks repeatedly of his majestic stature. 9. The French, a mighty people, combined for the regeneration of Europe. 10. Not many generations ago, where you now sit, circled with all that exalts and embellishes civilized life, the rank thistle nodded in the wind, and the wild fox dug his hole unscared.—Sprague.

11. Very few men, properly speaking, live at present: most are preparing to live another time. 12. I lisped in numbers, for the numbers came. 13. While the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept. 14. Study nature, whose laws and phenomena are all deeply interesting. 15. Its qualities exist, since they are known, and are known because they exist. 16. At ten o'clock, my task being finished, I went down to the river.

17. Some say, that ever 'gainst that season comes
 Wherein our Savior's birth is celebrated,
 This bird of warning singeth all night long:
 And then no spirit dares stir abroad;
 The nights are wholesome: then no planets strike,
 No fairy takes, nor witch hath power to charm,
 So hallowed and so gracious is the time.—Shakespeare.

CONTRACTED SENTENCES.

Sentences are contracted by ellipsis, abridgment, or by substituting a different expression.

Rem.—The object of contraction is to secure conciseness of expression by means of brevity in the construction of sentences.

203. ELLIPSIS.

1. Ellipsis is the omission of one or more words of a sentence. The words omitted are said to be understood.

Rem.—If required in analysis or parsing, the words omitted must be supplied.

2. A Simple Sentence is contracted by omitting all, or nearly all, but the most important part.

1. The subject may be omitted; as, "Come" = Come thou, or do thou come.

2. The predicate may be omitted; as, "Who will go?" He [will go]. "I'll [go] hence to London;" "Ye are Christ's [disciples]."

3. Both subject and predicate may be omitted; as, "Water!" = Give me some water; "Forward!" = March ye forward.

4. The object may be omitted; as, "Whose book have you? John's" = I have John's book.

5. The verb to be, in all its forms, may be omitted; as, "Where now [are] her glittering towers?" "A professed Catholic, he imprisoned the Pope" = Being a professed Catholic, etc.; "England's friend, Ireland's foe" = To be England's friend is to be Ireland's foe.

6. Prepositions and conjunctions may be omitted; as, "Build [for] me here seven altars;" "Woe is [to] me;" "I know [that] you are honest;" "Each officer, [and] each private did his duty."

Rem. A complex sentence, whose subject or predicate is a proposition, may be contracted by changing the proposition to an infinitive or participial phrase; as, "That I may remain here, is my desire" = To remain here is my desire; "My desire is, that I may remain here" = My desire is, to remain here."

3. A Compound Sentence may be contracted by uniting the parts not common to all its members, and using the common parts but once.

Ex.—"Exercise strengthens the constitution, and temperance strengthens the constitution" = Exercise and temperance strengthen the constitution. "Behold my mother and behold my brethren" = Behold my mother and my brethren.

204. MODELS FOR ANALYSIS.

XXXII. "Rest."

This is a sentence; imperative; simple.

Thou, understood, is the subject; rest is the predicate.

XXXIII. "Build me here seven altars."

This is a sentence; imperative; simple.

Thou, understood, is the subject; build is the predicate. The predicate, "build," is modified by altars, an objective element, which is modified by seven, an adjective element. "Build" is also modified by here and the phrase for me, adverbial elements.

XXXIV. "He spake as one having authority."

This is a sentence; declarative; complex.

"He spake" is the principal clause; "as one having authority speaks," the subordinate clause.

He is the subject of the principal clause; spake is the predicate. The predicate, "spake," is modified by the clause as one having authority speaks, an adverbial element. One is the subject of the subordinate clause; speaks is the predicate. The subject, "one," is modified by having, an adjective element, which is modified by authority, an objective element. As is the connective.

XXXV. "He is worth more than you."

This is a sentence; declarative; complex.

"He is worth more" is the principal clause; "than you are worth," the subordinate clause.

He is the subject of the principal clause; worth is the predicate; is is the copula. The predicate, "worth," is modified by the phrase [] more, an adverbial element, "more" being an adjective used as a noun in the objective case without a governing word. "More," as an adjective in the comparative degree, is modified by the clause than you are worth, an adverbial element. You is the subject of the subordinate clause; worth is the predicate; are is the copula. Than is the connective.

205. EXERCISES.

1. Advance. 2. Up, comrades, up. 3. Quick, quick, or we are lost. 4. Honest, my lord? 5. Impossible! 6. This done, we instantly departed. 7. Thou denied a grave! 8. What would content you? Talent? 9. How, now, Jenkinson? 10. A rope to the side! 11. Rather he, than I. 12. The orphan of St. Louis, he became the adopted child of the Republic.

13. Seest thou a man wise in his own conceit? There is more hope of a fool than of him. 14. Are you fond of skating? Somewhat. 15. Horace is older than I? 16. That building is as large as the capitol.

17. Multitudes of little floating clouds,
Ere we, who saw, of change were conscious, pierced
Through their ethereal texture, had become Vivid as fire.—Wordsworth.

18. Then here's to our boyhood, its gold and its gray!
The stars of its winter, the dews of its May!
And when we have done with our life-lasting toys,
Dear Father, take care of thy children, the Boys!—

O. W. Holmes.

19. Wisdom, judgment, prudence, and firmness were his predominant traits. 20. Rural employments are certainly natural, amusing, and healthy. 21. He had a good mind, a sound judgment, and a vivid imagination. 22. He is a good, faithful, and generous boy. 23. Man is fearfully and wonderfully made.

24. To love God and to do good to men are the leading purposes of every Christian. 25. Education expands and elevates the mind. 26. Learn to labor and to wait. 27. I am not the advocate of indolence and improvidence. 28. During our voyage, we whiled away our time in reading, in writing a journal, and in studying navigation.

29. That the climate of the northern hemisphere has changed, and that its mean temperature nearly resembled that of the tropics, is the opinion of many naturalists.—Lyell. 30. The writings of the sages show that the best empire is self-government, and that subduing our passions is the noblest of conquests.

31. The chastity of honor, which felt a stain like a wound, which inspired courage while it mitigated ferocity, which ennobled whatever it touched, and under which vice itself lost half its evil by losing its grossness, is gone.—Burke.

32. When public bodies are to be addressed on momentous occasions, when great interests are at stake and strong passions excited, nothing is valuable in speech further than it is connected with high intellectual and moral endowments.—Webster.

206. ABRIDGMENT.

1. Complex Sentences are often changed into simple sentences by abridging their subordinate clauses.

2. Contracted clauses are called abridged propositions.

Ex.—“We came that we might assist you”=We came to assist you. “I believe that he is honest”=I believe him to be honest.

Rem.—There is an essential difference between a sentence shortened by ellipsis and an abridged proposition. In the former, the omitted words are clearly implied, and must be restored before the sentence can be analyzed or parsed; in the latter, an equivalent expression is substituted for an entire proposition. The predicate is always retained, but is used as an assumed attribute, the assertion being wholly omitted.

3. To abridge a subordinate clause:

1st. Drop the subject, if it be already expressed in the principal clause; if not, retain it—changing its case to the possessive, objective, or absolute.

2d. Drop the connective, and change the copula or principal verb to a participle, a participial noun, or an infinitive.

Rem. 1.—In abridging a proposition, when the copula or principal verb is changed to the infinitive mode, a noun or pronoun used as subject or predicate must be changed to the objective case.

Ex.—1. “I knew that it was he”=I knew it to be him. 2. “The merchant ordered that the goods should be shipped”=The merchant ordered the goods to be shipped.

When the copula or principal verb is changed to a participial noun, the subject is changed to the possessive case; but a noun or pronoun used as the predicate, remains unchanged in the nominative.

Ex.—1. “I was not aware that it was he”=I was not aware of its being he. 2. “That he was a farmer promoted his election”= His being a farmer promoted his election.

When the copula or principal verb is changed to a participle, the subject is put in the nominative case absolute with it.

Ex.—1. “The fair was not held, because the weather was unfavorable”=The weather being unfavorable, the fair was not held. 2. “When the sun rose, we pursued our journey”=The sun being risen, we pursued our journey.

Rem. 2.—Sometimes an infinitive is an abridged proposition, the subject being omitted because it is contained in the principal clause.

Ex.—“I told him to go,” equivalent to, I told him that he should go. In this sentence, to go is the direct object of told, and him the indirect object. The expression “him to go” resembles an abridged proposition in form only.

Rem. 3.—The abridged form of an adjective clause is a participial, infinitive, or prepositional phrase.

Ex.—"Our friends who live in the city"—Our friends living in the city—Our friends in the city. "A book that may amuse you"—A book to amuse you.

Rem. 4.—The abridged form of an adverbial clause is a participial, infinitive, prepositional, or absolute phrase.

Ex.—"When we heard the explosion, we hastened to the spot"—Hearing the explosion, we hastened, etc.; "I attend school that I may learn"—I attend school to learn; "If he be economical, he will become rich"—He will become rich by being economical; "When the soldiers arrived, the mob dispersed"—The soldiers having arrived, etc.

Rem. 5.—The abridged form of an objective clause is a noun or pronoun modified by an infinitive phrase.

Ex.—"We wish that you would stay"—We wish you to stay. "I thought that he was a merchant"—I thought him to be a merchant.

207. MODELS FOR ANALYSIS.

XXXVI. "I know him to be a sailor."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

I is the subject; know is the predicate. The predicate is modified by the abridged proposition him to be a sailor, equivalent to "that he is a sailor," an objective element. Him is modified by the phrase to be a sailor, an adjective element; sailor by a, an adjective element.

XXXVII. "I was aware of his being my enemy."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

I is the subject; aware is the predicate; was is the copula. The predicate, "aware," is modified by the abridged proposition of his being my enemy, an adverbial element, equivalent to, "that he was my enemy." Being is modified by his, an adjective element; enemy, by my, an adjective element.

XXXVIII. "The shower having passed, we resumed our journey."

This is a sentence; declarative; simple.

We is the subject; resumed is the predicate. "Resumed" is modified by journey, an objective element, which is modified by our, an adjective element. "Resumed" is also modified by the abridged proposition the shower having passed, equivalent to "when the shower had passed." "Shower" is modified by the and having passed, adjective elements.

208. EXERCISES.

Analyze the following sentences, giving equivalent clauses for the abridged propositions:

1. Caesar having crossed the Rubicon, Pompey prepared for battle.
2. Having accumulated a large fortune, he retired from business.
3. Being but dust, be humble and wise.
4. Judging from his dress, I should pronounce him an artisan.
5. I believe him to be an honest man.
6. There is no hope of his recovering his health.
7. There is no prospect of the storm's abating.
8. Having been detained by this accident, he lost the opportunity of seeing them.
9. Having annoyed us thus for a time, they began to form themselves into close columns, six or eight abreast.—Jane Taylor.
10. My story being done,
She gave me for my pains a world of sighs.—Shakespeare.

209. DIRECTIONS FOR ANALYSIS.

SENTENCES.

I. In analyzing:

1. Read the sentence.
2. Determine, from its form and use, whether it is declarative, interrogative, imperative, or exclamatory.
3. Determine whether it is simple, complex, or compound.
4. Arrange all the parts in natural order.
5. If necessary for analysis or parsing, supply all ellipses.

II. If it is a simple sentence:

1. Point out the logical subject and logical predicate.

2. Point out the grammatical subject and grammatical predicate.
3. Determine whether the subject is simple, complex, or compound; and when complex, point out and classify its modifiers with their qualifications.
4. Determine whether the predicate is simple, complex, or compound; and when complex, point out and classify (1) its objective modifiers, (2) its adverbial modifiers, with their qualifications.
5. Point out the attendant elements, and all the connectives.

III. If it is a complex sentence:

1. Analyze the principal clause as in II.
2. Analyze the subordinate clause or clauses as in II.

IV.—If it is a compound sentence, each member should be analyzed as a simple or complex sentence, as in II or III.

E L E M E N T S .

- V.—1. If an element is a single word, it is completely reduced.
2. If an element is a phrase or a clause, determine:
 - a. The connective, and the parts it joins.
 - b. In a phrase, determine the antecedent and subsequent terms of relation of the preposition.
 - c. In a clause, point out the subject and predicate.
3. If an element is complex:
 - a. Reduce it to simple elements.
4. If an element is compound:
 - a. Separate it into its component simple elements.
 - b. Point out and classify the connective which joins them.
 - c. Dispose of each element separately, as in 1 and 2 above.

Rem.—The sentence being reduced by analysis to the parts of speech of which it is composed, let the teacher select such words as should be parsed, and instruct his pupils how to dispose of them according to the "models for parsing."

210. MODEL FOR COMPLETE ANALYSIS.

XXXIX. "The patriot, whom the corrupt tremble to see arise, may well feel a grateful satisfaction in the mighty power which heaven has delegated to him, when he thinks that he has used it for those purposes only which heaven approves."

This is a sentence; declarative; complex. It is composed of six clauses. The principal clause is:

The patriot may well feel a grateful satisfaction in the mighty power.

The subordinate clauses are:

1. Whom the corrupt tremble to see arise;
2. Which heaven has delegated to him;
3. When he thinks;
4. That he has used it for those purposes only;
5. Which heaven approves.

"Patriot" is the subject of the principal clause; "may feel" is the predicate.

The subject, "patriot," is modified (1) by "the," an adjective element, and (2) by the clause "whom the corrupt tremble to see arise," an adjective element; of which "whom" is the connective, "corrupt" is the subject, and "tremble" is the predicate. "Corrupt" is modified by "the," an adjective element; "tremble" is modified by the phrase "to see," an adverbial element; which is modified by "whom," an objective element, and "whom" is modified by the phrase "[to] arise," an adjective element.

The predicate, "may feel," is modified (1) by "well," an adverbial element; (2) by "satisfaction," an objective element; which is modified by "a" and "grateful," adjective elements; and (3) by the phrase "in the mighty power which heaven has delegated to him," an adverbial element. "Power" is modified (1) by "the" and "mighty," adjective elements; (2) by the clause "which heaven has delegated to him," an adjective element; of which "which" is the connective, "heaven" is the subject, and "has delegated" is the predicate: "has delegated" is modified (1) by "which," an objective element; (2) by the phrase "to him," an adverbial element; of which "to" is the connective, and "him" is the object.

"May feel" is modified (4) by the clause "when he thinks," etc., an adverbial element; of which "when" is the connective, "he" is the subject, and "thinks" is the predicate. "Thinks" is modified by the clause "that he has used it," etc., an objective element; of which "that" is the connective, "he" is the subject, and "has used" is the predicate. "Has used" is modified (1) by "it," an objective element; (2) by the phrase "for those purposes only," etc., an adverbial element. "Purposes" is modified (1) by "those" and "only," adjective elements; and (2) by the clause "which heaven approves," an adjective element; of which "which" is the connective, "heaven" is the subject, and "approves" is the predicate. "Approves" is modified by "which," an objective element.

211. BRIEF METHOD OF ANALYSIS.

"Patriot" is the subject; "may feel" is the predicate.

The subject, "patriot," is modified (1) by "the," an adjective element, and (2) by the clause "whom the corrupt tremble to see arise," an adjective element.

The predicate, "may feel," is modified (1) by "well," an adverbial element, denoting manner; (2) by "a grateful satisfaction," a complex objective element; (3) by the phrase "in the mighty power which . . . him," a complex adverbial element; and (4) by the clause "when he thinks . . . approves," a complex adverbial element, denoting time.

212. MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES.

1. Hypocrisy is a sort of homage that vice pays to virtue.
2. The gods have set a price on every real and noble pleasure.

9. Their slumbers are sound, and their wakings cheerful. 10. This were a wicked pretension, even though the whole family were destroyed.—Cowley. 11. And behold there came a voice unto him, and said, What dost thou here, Elijah?—Bible.

12. I passed the house many successive days. 13. He wore an ample cloak of black sheep's wool, which, having faded into a dull brown, had been refreshed by an enormous patch of the original color. His countenance was that of the faded part of his cloak.—Bryant.

14. The line which bisects the vertical angle of a triangle, divides the base into segments proportional to the adjacent sides. 15. He is so good, he is good for nothing. 16. The clouds are divided in heaven: over the green hills flies the inconstant sun: red, through the stony vale, comes down the stream of the hills.—Ossian.

17. The accusing angel flew up to Heaven's chancery with the oath, and blushed as he gave it in. And the recording angel, as he wrote it down, dropped a tear on the word, and blotted it out forever.—Sterne.

18. In the awful mystery of human life, it is a consolation sometimes to believe that our mistakes, perhaps even our sins, are permitted to be instruments of our education for immortality. 19. Even if his criticisms had been uniformly indulgent, the position of the nobles and leading citizens, thus subjected to a constant, but secret superintendence, would have been too galling to be tolerated.—Motley.

20. No ax had leveled the giant progeny of the crowded groves, in which the fantastic forms of withered limbs, that had been blasted and riven by lightning, contrasted strangely with the verdant freshness of a younger growth of branches.—Bancroft.

21. The sun was now resting his huge disk upon the edge of the level ocean, and gilding the accumulation of clouds through which he had traveled the livelong day; and which now assembled on all sides, like misfortunes and disasters around a sinking empire and falling monarch.—Scott.

22. It is, therefore, a certain and a very curious fact, that the representative, at this time, of any great whig family, who probably imagines that he is treading in the footsteps of his forefathers, in reality, while adhering to their party names, is acting against almost every one of their party principles.—Lord Mahon.

23. Rivers will always have one shingly shore to play over, where they may be shallow, and foolish, and childlike; and another steep shore, under which they can pause, and purify themselves, and get their strength of waves fully together for due occasion.—Ruskin.

24. I seem to have been only like a boy playing on the sea-shore, and diverting myself in now and then finding a smoother pebble or a prettier shell than ordinary, whilst the great ocean of truth lay all undiscovered before me.—Newton.

25. We're nettles, some of us,
And give offense by the act of springing up.—Browning.

26. The twilight deepened round us. Still and black
The great woods climbed the mountain at our back.

27. May God forgive the child of dust
Who seeks to know where Faith should trust.—Whittier.

28. Honor and shame from no condition rise;
Act well your part, there all the honor lies.—Pope.

29. Better far
Pursue a frivolous trade by serious means,
Than a sublime art frivolously.

30. With grave
Aspect he rose, and in his rising seemed
A pillar of state; deep on his front engraven,
Deliberation sat, and public care;
And princely counsel in his face yet shone,
Majestic, though in ruin.—Milton.

31. Near yonder copse, where once the garden smiled,
 And still where many a garden flower grows wild,
 There, where a few torn shrubs the place disclose,
 The village preacher's modest mansion rose.
 A man he was to all the country dear,
 And passing rich with forty pounds a year.—Goldsmith.
32. As when upon a trancéd summer night
 Those green-robed senators of mighty woods,
 Tall oaks, branch-charméd by the earnest stars,
 Dream, and so dream all night without a stir,
 Save from one gradual, solitary gust,
 Which comes upon the silence, and dies off,
 As if the ebbing air had but one wave:
 So came these words, and went.—Keats.
33. When Freedom, from her mountain height,
 Unfurled her standard to the air,
 She tore the azure robe of night
 And set the stars of glory there.
 She mingled with its gorgeous dyes
 The milky baldric of the skies,
 And striped its pure, celestial white,
 With streakings of the morning light.—Drake.

RULES OF SYNTAX.

Rule I.—The subject of a proposition is in the nominative case.

Rule II.—A noun or pronoun, used as the predicate of a proposition, is in the nominative case.

Rule III.—A noun or pronoun, used to limit the meaning of a noun denoting a different person or thing, is in the possessive case.

Rule IV.—A noun or pronoun, used to limit the meaning of a noun or pronoun denoting the same person or thing, is in the same case.

Rule V.—A noun or pronoun, used independently, is in the nominative absolute case.

Rule VI.—The object of a transitive verb, in the active voice, or of its participles, is in the objective case.

Rule VII.—The object of a preposition is in the objective case.

Rule VIII.—Nouns denoting time, distance, measure, direction, or value, after verbs and adjectives, are in the objective case without a governing word.

Rule IX.—Pronouns must agree with their antecedents in person, gender, and number.

Rule X.—A pronoun, with two or more antecedents in the singular, connected by and, must be plural.

Rule XI.—A pronoun, with two or more antecedents in the singular, connected by or or nor, must be singular.

Rule XII.—An adjective or participle belongs to some noun or pronoun.

Rule XIII.—A verb must agree with its subject in person and number.

Rule XIV.—A verb, with two or more subjects in the singular, connected by and, must be plural.

Rule XV.—A verb, with two or more subjects in the singular, connected by or or nor, must be singular.

Rule XVI.—An infinitive may be used as a noun in any case except the possessive.

Rule XVII.—An infinitive not used as a noun, depends upon the word it limits.

Rule XVIII.—Adverbs modify verbs, adjectives, participles, and adverbs.

Rule XIX.—A preposition shows the relation of its object to the word upon which the latter depends.

Rule XX.—Coördinate conjunctions join similar elements.

Rule XXI.—Subordinate conjunctions join dissimilar elements.

Rule XXII.—An interjection has no dependence upon other words.

213. SUBJECT-NOMINATIVE.

Rule I.—The subject of a proposition is in the nominative case.

Rem. 1.—Any thing that may be used as a noun, may be the subject; as, “A is a vowel;” “To lie is base;” “What time he took orders doth not appear.”

Rem. 2.—The subject generally precedes the predicate, but is placed after it, or the first auxiliary, (1) When a wish is expressed by the potential; as, “May you prosper;” (2) When if or though, denoting a supposition, is suppressed; as, “Had they been wise, they would have listened to me;” (3) When the verb is in the imperative mode, or is used interrogatively; as, “Rest ye;” “Why do you persist?”

Rem. 3.—The subject of the imperative mode is usually omitted; as, “Depart!” “Shut the door.” It is also omitted after while, when, if, though, or than, when the verb is made one of the terms of a comparison; as, “He talks while [he is] writing;” “He is kind when [he is] sober;” “I will come, if [it be] possible;” “They are honest, though [they are] poor;” “He has more knowledge than [he has] wisdom.”

EXERCISES.

To be corrected, analyzed, and parsed:

1. Him and me study grammar.
2. I never saw larger horses than them are.
3. Me and John sit together.
4. Whom besides I do you suppose got a prize?
5. I am as tall as he, but she is taller than him.
6. Whom do you suppose has come to visit us?
7. We sorrow not as them that have no hope.

8. Thrice is he armed who hath his quarrel just: and him but naked, though locked up in steel, whose conscience with injustice is corrupted.
9. Who wants an orange?—Me.
10. No other pupil is so studious as her.
11. He is older than me.
12. I know not whom else are expected.
13. None of his companions is more beloved than him.

214. PREDICATE-NOMINATIVE.

Rule II.—A noun or pronoun, used as the predicate of a proposition, is in the nominative case.

Rem. 1.—The predicate-nominative denotes the same person or thing as the subject; and must agree with it in case, and usually in gender and number. It may be any thing that may be used as a noun; as, “That letter is B;” “To work is to pray;” “The command was, ‘Storm the fort at daybreak!’”

Rem. 2.—In questions, and when the predicate is emphatically distinguished, the subject and predicate change places; as, “Who is that man? ” “Are you the ticket agent? ” “His pavilion round about him were dark waters and thick clouds of the sky.”

Rem. 3.—The neuter pronoun it, as subject, may represent a noun or pronoun of any person, number, or gender, as predicate; as, “It is I;” “It was you;” “It is Sarah.”

EXERCISES.

To be corrected, analyzed, and parsed:

1. It is me.
2. It was her and him who you saw.
3. If I were him, I would go to Europe.
4. Whom do you say they were?
5. I do not know whom they are?

6. It was not me nor him who played truant. 7. It is not them who are to blame. 8. I disbelieve it to be he. 9. I have no doubt of its being them.

215. POSSESSIVE CASE.

Rule III.—A noun or pronoun, used to limit the meaning of a noun denoting a different person or thing, is in the possessive case.

Rem. 1.—The possessive term is always an adjective element. It may limit a noun of any class or form; as, "Our houses;" "O my ducats!" "Our country's welfare;" "All their dearest hopes were blasted;" "His being a foreigner should not induce us to underrate him."

Rem. 2.—The relation of possession may be expressed by the preposition of, with the objective; as, "My friend's house" = The house of my friend. This form should be used when two or more nouns in the possessive would otherwise come together; as, "My friend's father's house" = The house of my friend's father.

Rem. 3.—The limited noun is sometimes omitted; as, "This house is the doctor's [house]." "We visited St. Paul's [church]." "This is a farm of my father's [farms]."

Rem. 4.—The limited noun need not be plural because the possessive is plural; as, "Their judgment is good;" "Our decision is made;" "The women's hope failed."

Rem. 5.—When a noun is put in apposition with a noun or pronoun in the possessive case, the sign may be omitted; as, "This was Webster's opinion, the most eminent lawyer in the country."

Rem. 6.—In some compound words, formed from the possessive and the word limited by it, both the hyphen and sign of possession are omitted; as, hogsghead, catshead, etc.

EXERCISES.

To be corrected and parsed:

1. The boys story was believed. 2. He wore the knight's-templar's costume. 3. The goods were sent by the Merchants Union Express. 4. That book is his'n. 5. The Bishop's of Dublin's palace. 6. My fathers health is not good. 7. My book is larger than your's. 8. The mistake was the teacher, not the pupil's.
9. The general's aids horse was killed. 10. No one could prevent him escaping. 11. I purchased this at Penfields', the bookseller's. 12. Some people regret the King of France's, Louis XVI., being beheaded. 13. He bought a hog's head of sugar. 14. William's and Mary's reign was prosperous. 15. It was John, not Emma's fault.

216. APPPOSITION.

Rule IV.—A noun or pronoun, used to limit the meaning of a noun or pronoun denoting the same person or thing, is in the same case.

Rem. 1.—A noun may be in apposition with a sentence, and a sentence with a noun; as, "I resolved to practice temperance—a resolution I have ever kept." "Remember Franklin's maxim: 'God helps them that help themselves.'"

Rem. 2.—A noun in apposition sometimes precedes the noun it identifies; as, "Child of the Sun, resplendent Summer, comes."

Rem. 3.—Though a noun or pronoun usually agrees with the noun it identifies, in number and gender, it is not necessary that it agree with it in any thing else than case; as, "My lunch—fried oysters and crackers—was soon eaten."

Rem. 4.—When possessives are in apposition, the sign of possession is used only with the one next to the noun limited by the entire possessive term; as, "Peter the Hermit's eloquence."

Rem. 5.—Sometimes the noun in apposition is separated from the limited noun by as, denoting rank, office, or capacity; as, “Mr. Jones, as my attorney, sold the land;” “My son sails as supercargo.” Equivalent terms are sometimes introduced by or; as, “The puma, or American lion, is found in South America.”

Rem. 6.—A noun or pronoun repeated for emphasis, or for the purpose of arresting and fixing the attention, is frequently an appositive; as, “There was another tap at the door—a smart, potential tap;” “He, he alone, can do this.” A compound personal pronoun is also sometimes in apposition with a simple personal pronoun which precedes it; as, “I, myself, told you so.”

EXERCISES.

To be corrected, analyzed, and parsed:

1. Will you discard me; I who have always been your friend?
2. What was the General; him you wished to see?
3. I bought it of Mrs. Wilson; she who keeps the milliner's shop.
4. Ira Jacobs, him who you punished, was not to be blamed.
5. Whom shall we praise?—They who do their duty.
6. My watch was lost near Wilkins's, the blacksmith's.

7. They are the lovely, them in whom unite
Youth's fleeting charms, with virtue's lovely light.

217. NOMINATIVE ABSOLUTE CASE.

Rule V.—A noun or pronoun, used independently, is in the nominative absolute case.

Rem. 1.—For the five forms of the absolute case, see Sec. 33.

Rem. 2.—The nominative absolute with a participle is generally equivalent to an adverbial clause, commencing with if, because, since, when, or while; as, “He being rich, they feared his influence” = They feared his influence because he was rich. “The sun being risen, we pursued our journey” = When the sun had risen, we pursued our journey.

Rem. 3.—In mottoes and abbreviated sayings, and frequently in exclamations, nouns in the nominative absolute case seem to have relation to something understood; as, “Laird’s Bloom of Youth” = Use Laird’s Bloom of Youth; “Confidence” (a motto) = This is a token of confidence; “A rat! a rat!” = There is a rat. It is better, however, to recognize the nominative absolute case as a distinct use of a noun, than to destroy the force of an expression by supplying an awkward ellipsis.

EXERCISES.

Examples to be parsed:

1. Soldier, rest! thy warfare o'er.
2. “Stop! the hat!” he exclaims.
3. Our fathers, where are they?
4. My being a child was a plea for my admission.
5. The north and the south, thou hast created them.
6. John, James, and Henry, they are my scholars.
7. O Nelly Gray! O Nelly Gray!
8. “The Moon and the Stars—A Fable.”
9. PROBLEM III.—To construct a mean proportional between two given lines.

218. OBJECTIVE CASE.

Rule VI.—The object of a transitive verb, in the active voice, or of its participles, is in the objective case.

Rem. 1.—The natural order of arrangement is, subject—verb—object; but in poetry, or when it is made emphatic, the object precedes the subject; as, “Myself I can not save”; “Silver and gold have I none.” To avoid ambiguity, the natural order should be observed when the subject and object are both nouns. Say, “Alexander conquered Darius,” not “Alexander Darius conquered.” A relative or interrogative pronoun is placed at the head of its clause; as, “I am he whom you seek;” “Whom shall I invite?”

Rem. 2.—The object may be a participial noun, a phrase, or a clause; as, “I like running and jumping better than studying;” “He hopes to succeed;” “‘Our armies swore terribly in Flanders,’ cried my Uncle Toby.”

Rem. 3.—A phrase beginning with a noun or pronoun, may be the object of a transitive verb; as, "I want books to read;" "The merchant ordered the goods to be shipped;" "I heard the water lapping on the crag;" "I want him to go." In such cases, the entire phrase is the object of the verb; but it is best to apply the first paragraph of Remark 1, page 182, in parsing the noun or pronoun beginning the phrase, Rule XVII in parsing the infinitive, and Rule XII in parsing the participle.

Rem. 4.—Some verbs used as copulatives in the passive voice, have two objects, one representing a person or thing, the other a thing; as, "They made him their leader;" "They chose him chairman." When such verbs are made passive, either object may be taken as the subject, but the other, if retained, becomes a predicate-nominative. If the thing is made nominative, the person is governed by a preposition, expressed or understood; if the person is made nominative, the thing may be parsed by Rule II.

Rem. 5.—A transitive verb may have several objects connected by conjunctions; as, "He owns houses, lands, and bank-stock."

Rem. 6.—Participial nouns may be limited by objective elements; as, "Writing notes is forbidden;" "I like hunting buffaloes."

EXERCISES.

Examples to be corrected:

1. Who did you write to? 2. Please let him and I sit together. 3. I do not know who to trust. 4. He who did the mischief you should punish, not I. 5. I saw she and him at the concert last evening. 6. And me, what shall I do?

7. We will go at once, him and me. 8. Every one can master a grief but he that hath it. 9. He was presented a gold watch by his employers. 10. Who are you looking for?

Examples to be analyzed and parsed:

1. We will rear new homes. 2. The parting words shall pass my lips no more. 3. I said that at sea all is vacancy. 4. They have left unstained what there they found. 5. Bring forth this counterfeit model. 6. Mad frenzy fires him now.

7. Reading makes a full man, conference a ready man, and writing an exact man.—Bacon. 8. Thou hast left no son—but thy song shall preserve thy name. 9. His disciples said, Who, then, can be saved? 10. I was forbidden the premises. 11. They were debarred the privilege of walking in the park.

12. “But what good came of it at last?”

Quoth little Peterkin.

“Why, that I can not tell,” said he;

“But 't was a famous victory.”—Southey.

219. OBJECTIVE AFTER PREPOSITIONS.

Rule VII.—The object of a preposition is in the objective case.

Rem. 1.—A preposition usually precedes its object; but in poetry this order is often reversed; as, “From crag to crag, the rattling peaks among”=among the rattling peaks; “Come walk with me the jungle through.”

Rem. 2.—Interrogative pronouns frequently precede the prepositions which govern them; as, “What are you laughing at?”

Such expressions as, “Whom are you talking to?” “Which house do you live in?” are inelegant, if not ungrammatical. The proper construction is, “To whom are you talking?” “In which house do you live?”

Rem. 3.—Some phrases consist of a preposition, followed by an adjective or an adverb; as, in vain, at once, in secret, from below, on high, from above, till now, till lately, etc. In such phrases, an object may be understood; the word following the preposition, parsed as an adjective or adverb used as a noun; or the entire expression may be regarded as an inseparable phrase.

Rem. 4.—A preposition should never be placed between a verb and its object; as, “He does not want for any thing.” Say “He does not want any thing.”

Rem. 5.—A noun or pronoun which is the object of two or more prepositions, or of a preposition and a transitive verb, should be placed after the first verb or preposition, and be represented by a pronoun following each of the others. “He came into and passed through the cars” should be, “He came into the cars, and passed through them." "He first called, and then sent for, the sergeant" should be, "He first called the sergeant, and then sent for him."

EXERCISES.

To be corrected:

1. The army shall not want for supplies.
2. Which school do you go to?
3. What firm are you agent for?
4. What country are you a native of?
5. I will not permit of such conduct.

6. It is our duty to assist and sympathize with those in distress.
7. The convicts are hired by and employed for the benefit of a few speculators.
8. He lives in and came from Pittsburgh.

To be analyzed and parsed:

1. We cruised about for several hours in the dense fog.
2. He has a touch of our family.
3. Here rests his head upon the lap of earth.
4. He will steal, sir, an egg out of a cloister.
5. The pile sank down into the opening earth.

6. The ground lifts like a sea.
7. The clouds are driven about in the sky, like squadrons of combatants rushing to the conflict.
8. In vain does the old dragon rage.
9. I had supposed till lately that you were my friend.
10. A shoreless ocean tumbled round the globe.
11. The morning broke without a sun.

Rule VIII.—Nouns denoting time, distance, measure, direction, or value, after verbs and adjectives, are in the objective case without a governing word.

Rem. 1.—The relations between nouns and verbs, as well as those between nouns and adjectives, are usually expressed by prepositions. Sometimes, however, these relations are so obvious that they are not expressed, but implied. An implied relation and its subsequent term form an adverbial phrase, the term being the object of the relation. As there is no preposition in the English language that exactly expresses this relation, the noun is said to be in the objective case without a governing word.

Rem. 2.—A preposition is frequently omitted. The subsequent term is not then in the objective case without a governing word, but is governed by a preposition understood.

Ex.—"Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co., No. 137 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, O." = To Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co., at No. 137 Walnut Street, in Cincinnati, in Ohio. "July 4, 1776" = On the 4th day of July, in the year 1776.

Rem. 3.—Home and nouns denoting manner are frequently in the objective case without a governing word; as, "We drove home in a storm;" "They marched Indian-file."

Rem. 4.—The names of things, following the passive forms of the verbs ask, lend, teach, refuse, provide, and some others, are in the objective case without a governing word, or in the objective case governed by a preposition understood; as, "He was asked a question;" "John was refused admittance;" "I was taught grammar."

EXERCISES.

To be analyzed and parsed:

1. The horse ran a mile.
2. I do not care a straw.
3. He is worth a million of dollars.
4. The child is nine years old.
5. He wore his coat cloak-fashion.
6. Spring has already covered thy grave, twelve times, with flowers.
7. The ship sailed four knots an hour.

8. This is worth remembering.
9. The tower is two hundred and fifty feet high.
10. How many square yards of plastering in a room twenty-one feet long, fifteen feet wide, and ten feet high?
11. The poor, dissipated student was refused his diploma.

220. PRONOUNS.

Rule IX.—Pronouns must agree with their antecedents in person, gender, and number.

Rem. I.—The person, gender, and number of an interrogative pronoun are indeterminate when no answer is given to the question in which it is found; as, "Who owns that vessel?" The answer may be, "Mr. Gordon owns it," "Jones &

Smith own it," "I own it," "He and I own it," or "You yourself own it." The interrogative, however, should be parsed as being in the third person and singular number, because it requires the verb to be in the third person and singular number. Its gender is indeterminate. When an answer is given, or when one can be inferred from well-known facts, these properties are determinate; as, "Who owns that vessel?—I own it." "Who" is the first person, common gender, singular number, agreeing with "I." "Who commanded the allied forces at the battle of Waterloo?" "Who" is in the third person, masculine gender, singular number—the answer, though not given, being well known.

Rem. 2.—There being no pronoun of the third person singular used in common for either sex, the masculine forms, he, his, him, are used in its place. Do not say, "Each pupil should learn his or her lesson;" use his alone. Say, "Should any one desire to consult me, let him call at my office," even though the invitation be intended for both sexes. Should the gender of the person referred to be known, use a masculine or feminine pronoun, as the case requires.

Rem. 3.—Things personified should be represented as masculine or feminine by the pronouns referring to them; as, "Night, sable goddess, from her ebon throne;" "Grim-visaged War hath smoothed his wrinkled front."

Rem. 4.—A pronoun sometimes precedes its antecedent; as, "Thy chosen temple, Lord, how fair!" "Hark! they whisper, angels say."

Rem. 5.—The relative pronoun is frequently omitted; as, "That is the house [which] we live in;" "This is the book [which] you inquired for."

Rem. 6.—That, as a relative, should generally be used after a, all, every, same, and very; after who, used interrogatively; after an adjective in the superlative degree; and when both persons and things are referred to.

Ex.—"He is a man that all respect;" "I gave him all that I had;" "Is this the same book that I lent you?" "It is the very book that you lent me;" "He is the wisest that says the least;" "Who that has once heard him does not wish to hear him once again?" "Here are the persons and things that were sent for."

Rem. 7.—Unless great emphasis is required, a noun or pronoun should not be used in the nominative absolute case by pleonasm. Say, “The horse ran away,” not “The horse, it ran away;” “Many words darken speech,” not “Many words, they darken speech.”

Rem. 8.—To avoid ambiguity, a relative pronoun should be placed as near as possible to its antecedent.

Ex.—“A purse was lost in the street, which contained a large sum of money.” The clause introduced by “which,” should be placed immediately after “purse.”

Rem. 9.—A pronoun whose antecedent is a collective noun conveying the idea of unity, should be in the neuter singular; one whose antecedent is a collective noun conveying the idea of plurality, should be plural, taking the gender of the individuals composing the collection.

Rem. 10.—It is used to represent (1) a noun or pronoun in any person, in either number, or of any gender; (2) a sentence, or a part of a sentence; or (3) it may be used to represent an indefinite antecedent.

Ex.—“It is I;” “It was land-warrants that I purchased;” “It was Milton who wrote Paradise Lost;” “You have wronged me, and will repent of it;” “It snows;” “We roughed it in the woods.”

E X E R C I S E S .

To be corrected:

1. James, he has been whispering. 2. Whom, when they had washed, they laid her in an upper chamber. 3. The names I called you, I am now sorry for them. 4. If any one has not paid their fare, let them call at the captain's office. 5. Every one should have his or her life insured.

6. Every one should have their lives insured. 7. That book is in the book-case, which contains pictures. 8. This is the dog whom my father bought. 9. These are the men and the guns which we captured. 10. That is the same pen which I sold you. 11. He is the wisest which lives the most nobly.

12. The moon took its station still higher. 13. The jury could not agree in its verdict. 14. The news came of defeat, but no one believed them. 15. If you see an error or a fault in my conduct, remind me of them.

To be parsed:

1. The hand that governs in April, governed in January.
 2. I perish by this people which I made. 3. Many a man shall envy him who henceforth limps. 4. I venerate the man whose heart is warm. 5. Your sorrows are our gladness.
 6. The blooming morning oped her dewy eyes.
 7. Men are like birds that build their nests in trees that hang over rivers. 8. He was followed by another worthless rogue, who flung away his modesty instead of his ignorance.
 9. A bird is placed in a bell-glass, A, which stands over the mercury.

10. Remorseless Time!

Fierce spirit of the glass and scythe! What power
Can stay him in his silent course, or melt
His iron heart to pity?—Prentice.

11. "Banished from Rome!" what's banished, but set free
From daily contact of the things I loathe?
"Tried and convicted traitor!" Who says this?
Who'll prove it, at his peril, on my head?—Oroly.

221. ANTECEDENTS CONNECTED BY "AND."

Rule X.—A pronoun, with two or more antecedents in the singular, connected by and, must be plural.

Rem. I.—When the antecedents are but different names for the same person or thing, the pronoun must be singular; as, "The eminent lawyer and statesman has resigned his office."

Rem. 2.—When the antecedents are emphatically distinguished, the pronoun should be singular; as, "The mind as well as the body has its diseases;" "The country and not the government has its admirers."

Rem. 3.—When the antecedents are limited by each, every, or no, the pronoun must be singular; as, "Each man and each boy did his duty;" "Every hill and every mountain has its echo;" "There is no day and no hour without its cares."

Rem. 4.—When the antecedents taken together are regarded as a single thing, the pronoun must be singular; as, "The horse and wagon is in its place."

EXERCISES.

To be analyzed and parsed:

1. Charles and Henry are flying their kites.
2. You and I should study our lessons.
3. The child wants some bread and milk: will you get it?
4. The good man, and the sinner, too, shall have his reward.
5. The great philosopher and statesman is laid in his grave.
6. He bought a horse and a wagon, and sold them at a profit.
7. Every house and lot has its price set opposite its number.

222. ANTECEDENTS CONNECTED BY "OR" OR "NOR."

Rule XI.—A pronoun, with two or more antecedents in the singular, connected by or or nor, must be singular.

Rem. 1.—When the two antecedents are of different genders, the use of a singular masculine pronoun to represent them is improper. In such cases:

1. Use a plural pronoun that may represent both genders; as, "Not on outward charms could he or she build their pretensions to please."
2. Use different pronouns; as, "No boy or girl should whisper to his or her neighbor."
3. Substitute a general term, including both, for the two antecedents, and represent this general term by a singular masculine pronoun; as, "No pupil (boy or girl) should whisper to his neighbor."

Rem. 2.—When one of the antecedents is plural, it should be placed last, and the pronoun should be plural; as, "Neither the farmer nor his sons were aware of their danger."

EXERCISES.

To be corrected:

1. No father or mother lives that does not love his or her children.
2. George or Charles are diligent in their business.
3. If an Aristotle, a Pythagoras, or a Galileo suffer for their opinions, they are martyrs.
4. If you see my son or my daughter, send them home.
5. Poverty or wealth have their own temptations.

To be analyzed and parsed:

1. Henry or Samuel will lend you his book.
2. If thy hand or thy foot offend thee, cut it off, and cast it from thee.
3. Neither James nor John has gained much credit for himself.
4. Either Mary or Sarah will recite her lesson.
5. Even a rugged rock, or a barren heath, though in itself disagreeable, contributes by contrast to the beauty of the whole.
6. Either James or his father was mistaken in his opinion.
7. Neither the teacher nor the scholars used their books in the class.

223. ADJECTIVES AND PARTICIPLES.

Rule XII.—An adjective or participle belongs to some noun or pronoun.

Rem. 1.—An adjective used as the predicate of a sentence, may modify an infinitive or a substantive clause, used as the subject; as, “To lie is sinful;” “That all men are created equal, is self-evident.”

Rem. 2.—After infinitives and participles, adjectives are frequently used which do not belong to any particular noun or pronoun; as, “To be good is to be happy;” “The main secret of being sublime, is to say great things in few and plain words.” In parsing, say that they modify some noun or pronoun not expressed.

Rem. 3.—An adjective should agree in number with the noun to which it belongs; as, that kind, those kinds; one man, two men. To denote a collective number, a singular adjective may precede a plural noun; as, "One thousand dollars;" "The census is taken every ten years." To denote plurality, many a is used instead of many; as, "Many a time;" "Many a morning."

Rem. 4.—In poetry, an adjective relating to a noun or pronoun is sometimes used instead of an adverb modifying a verb or a participle; as, "Incessant still you flow;" "Swift on his downy pinions flies from woe."

Rem. 5.—Adjectives are sometimes used as nouns; as, "The rich and the poor here meet together;" "One said, 'Let us go;' another, 'No, let us remain.'"

Rem. 6.—Two adjectives are frequently connected by a hyphen, forming a compound adjective; as, "A sweet-faced girl."

Rem. 7.—Numeral and pronominal adjectives precede another adjective which modifies the same noun; as, "The seven wise men;" "That old house."

EXERCISES.

To be analyzed and parsed:

1. His spirit was so bird-like and so pure. 2. Dim, cheerless, is the scene my path around. 3. This life of ours is a wild Æolian harp of many a joyous strain. 4. Every tree-top has its shadow.

5. With fleecy clouds the sky is blanched. 6. Still stands the forest primeval. 7. 'Tis impious in a good man to be sad. 8. To hope the best is pious, brave, and wise. 9. Time wasted is existence; used, is life.

10. Thoughts shut up, want air,
And spoil, like bales unopened to the sun.—Young.

11. Tell me not in mournful numbers,
Life is but an empty dream.—Longfellow.

12. Pray for the living, in whose breast
The struggle between right and wrong
Is raging terrible and strong.

13. Petulant she spoke, and at herself she laughed;
A rose-bud set with little willful thorns,
And sweet as English air could make her.
14. The hills are dearest which our childish feet
Have climbed the earliest, and the streams most sweet
Are ever those at which our young lips drank—
Stoop'd to their waters o'er the grassy bank.
15. Sometimes her narrow kitchen walls
Stretched away into stately halls.—Whittier.

224. VERBS.

Rule XIII.—A verb must agree with its subject in person and number.

Rem. 1.—When the subject is a collective noun, conveying plurality of idea, the verb should be plural; as, "In France the peasantry go barefooted, while the middle class wear wooden shoes."

Rem. 2.—When a subject, plural in form, represents a single thing, the verb must be singular; as, "The 'Pleasures of Memory' was published in 1792;" "Politics is his trade;" "The news is confirmed."

Rem. 3.—When the subject is a mere word or sign, an infinitive, or a substantive clause, the verb should be in the third person singular; as, "They is a personal pronoun;" "+ is the sign of addition;" "To deceive is wrong;" "'Who comes there?' was heard from within."

Rem. 4.—A verb in the imperative mode usually agrees with thou, you, or ye, expressed or understood; as, "Look [ye] to your hearths, my lord!" "Smooth [thou] thy brow;" "[Do thou] let brighter thoughts be with the virtuous dead."—Hemans.

15. Between Nose and Eyes a strange contest arose.
 The spectacles set them unhappily wrong;
The point in dispute was, as all the world knows,
 To which the said spectacles ought to belong.—Couper.

225. SUBJECTS CONNECTED BY “AND.”

Rule XIV.—A verb, with two or more subjects in the singular, connected by and, must be plural.

Rem. I.—When two or more subjects in the singular, connected by and, are but different names for the same person or thing, or, when taken together, they represent a single idea, the verb should be singular; as, “Descent and fall to us is adverse;” “A hue and cry was raised.”

226. SUBJECTS CONNECTED BY "OR" OR "NOR."

Rule XV.—A verb, with two or more subjects in the singular, connected by or or nor, must be singular.

Rem. 1.—When the subjects are of different persons or numbers, the verb must agree with the nearest, unless another be the principal term; as, “Neither you nor I am to blame;” “Neither you nor he is in his place.”

Rem. 2.—When two or more infinitives, or substantive clauses, are connected by or or nor, the verb must be singular, and a predicate nominative, following the verb, must be singular also; as, “Why we are thus detained, or why we receive no intelligence from home, is mysterious;” “To be, or not to be, that is the question.”

Rem. 3.—When the subjects are singular, but of different genders, the verb is singular, relating to them taken separately; but a pronoun may be plural, relating to them taken conjointly; as, “Mary or her sister has lost their umbrella”—the umbrella being theirs by joint ownership.

All is concentrated in a life intense,
Where not a beam, nor air, nor leaf is lost.—Byron.

11. Time, nor Eternity, hath seen
A repetition of delight
In all its phases; ne'er hath been
For men or angels that which is.

227. INFINITIVES.

Rule XVI.—An infinitive may be used as a noun in any case except the possessive.

Rem. I.—An infinitive represents being, action, or state abstractly. It is the mere verb, without limitation. As such, it may be used:

1. As the subject of a proposition; as, "To err is human."
2. As the predicate of a proposition; as, "To obey is to enjoy."
3. As the object of a transitive verb or of its participles; as, "He loves to play;" "He is trying to learn."
4. In apposition with a noun; as, "Delightful task, to rear the tender thought."

5. Abstractly, or independently; as, "To tell the truth, I was inattentive."

Rem. 2.—The infinitive always retains its verbal significance. Hence, as a noun, it may be limited by a predicate adjective or predicate nominative, and, as a verb, be followed by an object, or modified by an adverb; as, "To spend money recklessly is criminal."

Rem. 3.—The sign to should never be separated from the rest of the infinitive. "To correctly report a speech is difficult," should be "To report a speech correctly is difficult."

Rem. 4.—The preposition for should not be used immediately before the infinitive. "I study for to learn," should be "I study to learn."

Rem. 5.—The sign to should never be used alone. "I never told a lie, and never intend to," should be "I never told a lie, and never intend to do so."

Rem. 6.—After the verbs bid, dare (venture), hear, feel, let, make, need, see, in the active voice, and let in the passive, the sign to is generally omitted; as, "He bade him depart"; "I saw him fall." The sign to is sometimes omitted after several other verbs.

Rem. 7.—Verbs expressing hope, expectation, command, intention, etc., require the present infinitive after them; as, "I hoped to see you"; "I intended to call for you"; "He expected to see you yesterday."

EXERCISES.

To be corrected:

1. What came ye out for to see? 2. I never voted that ticket, and never intend to. 3. To greedily eat one's dinner is ill-mannered. 4. I dared him come to me. 5. He durst not to leave his room. 6. I saw him to write on his slate.

7. I have known him to frequently be tardy. 8. He made his horses to go very fast. 9. He needs study more carefully. 10. He need not to remain long. 11. He intended to have written to you. 12. They had hoped to have seen you before they left.

To be analyzed and parsed.

1. To do right, is to do that which is ordered to be done.
2. To die is to be banished from myself. 3. To do justice and judgment is more acceptable to the Lord than sacrifice.
4. It is our duty to try, and our determination to succeed.
5. He had dared to think for himself.
6. It is the curse of kings to be attended
By slaves that take their humors for a warrant
To break within the bloody house of life,
And on the winking of authority,
To understand a law.—Shakespeare.
7. Have ye brave sons? Look in the next fierce brawl
To see them die. Have ye fair daughters? Look
To see them live, torn from your arms, distained,
Dishonored, and if ye dare call for justice,
Be answered by the lash.—Mitford.

228. INFINITIVES NOT USED AS NOUNS.

Rule XVII.—An infinitive not used as a noun, depends upon the word it limits.

Rem. 1.—An infinitive may depend upon:

1. A noun; as, "Flee from the wrath to come."
2. A pronoun; as, "I heard him declaim."
3. A verb; as, "He went to see the show."
4. An adjective; as, "The gods are hard to reconcile."
5. A participle; as, "The rain threatening to fall, we left."
6. An adverb; as, "He told me when to come."

Rem. 2.—The sign to is sometimes improperly omitted; as, "Please excuse James for absence." Supply to before "excuse."

Rem. 3.—The infinitive is often understood; as, "I considered him [to be] honest."

Rem. 4.—The sign to may be omitted before all but the first of two or more infinitives in the same construction; as, "They tried to cheat, rob, and murder me."

EXERCISES.

To be parsed:

1. I come not here to talk. 2. I can not see to spin my flax. 3. In sooth, deceit maketh no mortal gay. 4. I saw along the winter snow a spectral column pour. 5. Let the great world spin forever down the ringing grooves of change.
6. He lived to die, and died to live. 7. It is a brave thing to understand something of what we see. 8. It is better to fight for the good than to rail at the ill.
9. Let us be content in work,
To do the thing we can, and not presume
To fret because it's little.
10. One day with life and heart,
Is more than time enough to find a world.
11. Needful auxiliars are our friends, to give
To social man true relish of himself.
12. Learn well to know how much need not be known,
And what that knowledge which impairs your sense.
13. Let him not violate kind nature's laws,
But own man born to live as well as die.
14. The blood more stirs
To rouse a lion than to start a hare.
15. He that lacks time to mourn, lacks time to mend.
Eternity mourns that.—Henry Taylor.

229. ADVERBS.

Rule XVIII.—Adverbs modify verbs, adjectives, participles, and adverbs.

Rem. 1.—Adverbs sometimes modify phrases and entire propositions; as, “He lives just over the hill;” “Verily, ye are the people.”

Rem. 2.—Adverbs are frequently used as expletives; as, “Well, that is a strange story;” “There, now, you have said enough.”

Rem. 3.—The adverbs yes, no, aye, yea, and nay, are generally answers to questions, and are equivalent to a whole sentence. They are then used independently, or modify the sentences preceding or following them.

Ex.—"Are you angry?—No." "Yea, they shall sing in the ways of the Lord;" "Nay; but it is really true."

Rem. 4.—Two contradictory negatives in the same clause are equivalent to an affirmative; as, "I can not write no more" = I can write more. Hence, two negatives should never be employed to express a negation. Say, "I want no assistance," not, "I do not want no assistance." Two or more negatives, not contradictory, do not destroy the negative character of a sentence; as, "He will never consent, no, never, not he, nor I neither."

Rem. 5.—When the quality of an object, and not the manner of an action, is to be expressed, an adjective should be used as predicate; as, "He arrived safe," not "safely;" "She looks beautiful," not "beautifully."

Rem. 6.—Though sanctioned by good authority, the use of from before whence, hence, and thence should be avoided. Say, "Whence came you?" not "From whence came you."

Rem. 7.—The word modified by an adverb is sometimes omitted; as, "Down, royal state!" Supply "fall." "Up in the morning early." Supply "get" or "rise." "I'll hence to London." Supply "go." In some cases, adverbs thus used seem to have the force of verbs in the imperative mode, but not always. Up and out, followed by the preposition with, take the place of verbs in declarative sentences; as, "She up with her fist, and took him on the face."

Rem. 8.—There is frequently used as an expletive to introduce a sentence; as, "There was no grass there;" "There were three of us."

Rem. 9.—An adverbial phrase should not be parsed as a single word when its parts can be parsed separately; as, "They walked hand in hand." Place "with" before the phrase.

Rem. 10.—The comparative and superlative forms of adjectives, preceded by the definite article, are often used as adverbs; as, "The longer I study, the better I like it;" "He lives best who acts the noblest." The articles in these expressions are used adverbially.

Rem. 11.—Adverbs should be so placed as to render the sentence clear, correct, and elegant. The sense intended to be conveyed depends upon their position. Compare "He is thought to be generally honest," with "He is generally thought to be honest."

EXERCISES.

To be corrected:

1. He won't give me no satisfaction.
2. We did n't find nobody at home.
3. Nobody never saw such a crowd of people.

11. Man by man, and foot by foot, did the soldiers proceed over the Alps.
12. Finally, the war is already begun, and we must either conquer or perish.
13. He heaped up great riches, but passed his time miserably.

14. Night's candles are burnt out, and jocund Day
Stands tiptoe on the misty mountain's top.—Shakespeare.
15. I'll look no more,—
Lest my brain turn, and the deficient sight
Topple down headlong.
16. Not a word to each other; we kept the great pace—
Neck by neck, stride by stride, never changing our place.
Browning.
17. Their breath is agitation, and their life
A storm whereon they ride to sink at last.—Byron.
18. Who does the best his circumstance allows,
Does well, acts nobly, angels could no more.
Our outward act indeed admits restraint;
'T is not in things o'er thought to domineer.
Guard well thy thought, our thoughts are heard in heaven.—Young.

280. PREPOSITIONS.

Rule XIX.—A preposition shows the relation of its object to the word upon which the latter depends.

Rem. I.—The object of a preposition, as well as the preceding term of relation, often determines what preposition should be used; as, “He read to me about the war, with much feeling;” “He wrote to me in great haste concerning his losses.”

To be corrected and parsed:

1. The man is dependent on his relatives. 2. I differ with you on that point. 3. The man was killed by a sword, and died with violence. 4. The two thieves divided the money among them. 5. During his life-time, he was twice shipwrecked.

6. Above the clouds and tempests' rage,
Across yon blue and radiant arch,
Upon their long, high pilgrimage,
I watched their glittering armies march.

231. COÖRDINATE CONJUNCTIONS.

Rule XX.—Coördinate conjunctions join similar elements.

Rem. 1.—Elements placed in the same relation or rank are similar; as, nouns or pronouns in the same case, verbs in the same construction, words, phrases, and clauses limiting the same term, etc.

Rem. 2.—Conjunctions are sometimes omitted; as, “Had I the means, I would buy that farm” = If I had the means, etc. “He is rich, noble, wise, [and] generous.”

Rem. 3.—In a series of similar terms, the conjunction is usually omitted, except between the last two; as, “Henry, Horace, and Samuel are my pupils.” When great emphasis is required, the conjunction should be supplied; as, “You have been an honest, and a bold, and a faithful hound.”

Rem. 4.—Dissimilar or disproportionate terms should never be joined by conjunctions; as, “I always have [been] and always shall be of this opinion.”

Rem. 5.—Conjunctions are sometimes used as introductory words, either to awaken expectation, or to make the introduction of a sentence less abrupt; as, “And it came to pass in those days,” etc.; “So you are going to New Orleans, it seems.”

E X E R C I S E S .

To be corrected and parsed:

1. We moved along silently and with caution. 2. To play is more pleasant than working. 3. They either could not, nor desired to learn. 4. He can brag, but is not able to do much. 5. 8. I can not tell whether he has returned or not. 9. All were drowned save me. 10. Neither James or John came home yesterday. 11. I always desire and always wished for your society. 12. The boy would and did have his own way. 13. The parliament addressed the king, and has been prorogued the same day.

232. SUBORDINATE CONJUNCTIONS.

Rule XXI.—Subordinate conjunctions join dissimilar elements.

Rem. 1.—A clause introduced by a subordinate conjunction, conjunctive adverb, or relative pronoun, performs the office of a noun, an adjective, or an adverb. The connective unites the clause which it introduces to the word or phrase which is modified; as, “He said that he would come;” “The man whom you saw is the sheriff;” ‘Do you know where I live?’

Rem. 2.—A subordinate connective is almost invariably placed at the beginning of the clause which it introduces. When this clause is used as the subject of a sentence, or is put in apposition with a noun in any case, the connective is a mere introductory word; as, “That you have deceived me doth appear from this;” “The rumor that he is insane is unfounded.”

Yonder . (1) Adj., "Yonder mountain." (2) Adv., "Who beckons to us yonder."

Rem. 1.—Nouns may perform an adjective use, and still be regarded as nouns; as, "The sun's rays;" "Gen. Harrison's residence;" "Peter the Hermit;" "Dionysius the Tyrant."

Rem. 2.—By being placed before the words which they modify, nouns may be used as adjectives; as, "Our Indian summer;" "Christmas eve;" "Strawberry short-cake." Nouns thus used may be modified by adjectives; as, "The High Church Party;" "The Protective Tariff Bill."

A compound expression may be formed by uniting two nouns, or a noun and an adjective, by a hyphen; as, "Fire-clay brick;" "air-pump experiments;" "a white-oak pail." In all cases, the limiting noun must be in the singular number; as, "A four-rod chain;" "a ten-foot pole." "This medicine cures lung-diseases;" "a spectacle-maker;" "a scissor-bill."

A compound expression may be formed of an indefinite number of words, joined by hyphens, the entire phrase being used as a single word; as, "The Kansas-Nebraska Bill;" "an out-and-out falsehood;" "He was dressed in brown-once-black."

Rem. 3.—Nouns connected by conjunctions frequently form a compound term, which must be regarded as a single thing, though composed of distinct parts; as, Three dollars a day and board is all I ask;" "A horse and wagon was stolen."

Rem. 4.—Phrases, inseparable in thought, may be formed by uniting prepositions with themselves or other parts of speech.

1. A verb and preposition; as, to cast up, to buy off, to bring to, to come to, to go over, etc. The preposition should be considered an inseparable part of the verb, but it may be parsed as an adverb.

2. A preposition and adjective; as, on high, at large, in earnest, at most, etc.: inseparable phrases, either adjective or adverbial.

3. Preposition and preposition; as, over and over, by and by, in and in, through and through, etc.: inseparable adverbial phrases.

4. Noun, preposition, and noun; as, day by day, face to face, stride by stride, cheek by jowl, etc. As the expressiveness of these phrases is destroyed by supplying any ellipsis, they should be classed among inseparable adverbial phrases. If preferred, however, each word may be parsed separately, the first noun being made the object of a preposition understood.

Rem. 5.—Two prepositions frequently come together: in which case they form a complex preposition; the first in order is an adverb, or both are adverbs; as, "He comes from over (complex preposition) the sea;" "They rode by (adverb) in a carriage;" "The whole subject was gone over with" (both adverbs).

Rem. 6.—Two or more conjunctions may come together: in which case each has its use, which should always be regarded in parsing; as, "Now when even had come;" "And so I penned it down."

I had as lief not be as live to be
In awe of such a thing as I myself.—Shakespeare.

61. Think for thyself—one good idea,
But known to be thine own,
Is better than a thousand gleaned
From fields by others sown.—Wilson.

62. So we were left galloping, Joris and I,
Past Looz and past Tongres, no cloud in the sky:
The broad sun above laughed a pitiless laugh;
'Neath our feet broke the brittle bright stubble like chaff;
Till over by Dalhem a dome-spire sprang white,
And "Gallop," gasped Joris, "for Aix is in sight."—
Browning.

63. This well may be
The Day of Judgment which the world awaits;
But, be it so or not, I only know
My present duty, and my Lord's command
To occupy till he come. So at the post
Where he hath set me in his providence,
I choose for one to meet him face to face,—
No faithless servant frightened from my task,
But ready when the Lord of the harvest calls.—Whittier.

FIGURES OF LANGUAGE.

287. DEFINITIONS.

1. A Figure of Speech is a departure from the ordinary form, regular construction, or literal signification of words.
2. A Figure of Etymology is a departure from the usual form of a word.
3. A Figure of Syntax is a departure from the usual construction of words.
4. A Figure of Rhetoric is a departure from the primitive or literal sense of a word.

288. FIGURES OF ETYMOLOGY.

1. Apheresis is the elision of a letter or syllable from the beginning of a word; as, 'gainst, for against; 'gan, for began.
2. Prosthesis is the prefixing of a letter or syllable to a word; as, adown, for down; beloved, for loved.
3. Syncope is the omission of one or more letters in the middle of a word; as, ne'er, for never; slumb'ring, for slumbering.
4. Tmesis is the separation of a compound word by the insertion of a word between its parts; as, to us ward, for toward us; how high soever, for howsoever high.
5. Apocope is the omission of the last letter or syllable of a word; as, th', for the; yond, for yonder.

6. Paragogic is the addition of a letter or syllable to the end of a word; as, bounden, for bound; withouten, for without.

7. Syneresis is the contraction of two syllables into one; as, don't, for do not; can't, for can not.

8. Dieresis is the separation of two vowel letters which might otherwise form a diphthong or digraph, and is indicated by two dots over the second vowel; as, aërial, preëminent.

289. FIGURES OF SYNTAX.

1. Ellipsis is the omission of a word, phrase, or clause which is necessary to complete the construction of a sentence.

Note.—For examples of Ellipsis, see Sec. 203.

2. Pleonasm is the use of more words than are necessary.

Ex.—"I saw it with these eyes." "All ye inhabitants of the world, and dwellers on the earth."

Rem. 1.—Polysyndeton is the repetition of a conjunction; as, "He is good, and wise, and generous."

Rem. 2.—Asyndeton is the omission of connective words in a sentence; as, "We walked slowly, noiselessly, with bated breath."

Rem. 3.—Anadiplosis is the use of the same word or expression in the termination of one clause of a sentence, and at the beginning of the next; as, "Has he a gust for blood? Blood shall fill his cup."

Rem. 4.—Epizeuxis is the emphatic repetition of the same word or words; as, "Alone, alone, all all alone."

3. Enallage is the use of one part of speech, or of one form, for another.

Ex.—We, for I; you, for thou; "What is writ is writ."

4. Hyperbaton is the transposition of words from the plain grammatical order.

Ex.—"He wanders earth aronnd;" "From peak to peak, the rattling crags among;" "Lightly from fair to fair he flew."

5. Syllepsis is the agreement of one word with the figurative sense of another.

Ex.—"The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us: and we beheld his glory."—John i, 14.

6. Parenthesis is the insertion of a word or sentence between the parts of another sentence.

Ex.—"Every planet (for God has made nothing in vain) is most probably inhabited."

7. Zeugma is a figure by which an adjective or verb, which agrees with a nearer word, is referred to one more remote.

Ex.—"Lust overcame shame; boldness, fear; and madness, reason."

240. FIGURES OF RHETORIC.

1. Simile is an express or formal comparison.

Ex—Like a dog, he hunts in dreams.—Tennyson.

2. Metaphor is the expression of similitude without the signs of comparison.

Ex—"A flash of wit;" "A sea of troubles;" "The moralist is a scout for consequences;" "The wish is father to the thought."

3. Personification consists in attributing life and mind to inanimate objects.

Ex--"O Winter! ruler of the inverted year;" "The earth mourneth and fadeth away."

4. Allegory is a discourse in which one subject is described by another resembling it.

Ex.—The Pilgrim's Progress; Spencer's Faerie Queene; Swift's Tale of a Tub; The Vision of Mirza.

Rem. 1.—A Fable is a short allegory.

Ex.—Æsop's and La Fontaine's Fables. Most fables are short stories about certain animals that are regarded as representatives of particular qualities; as, the fox, of cunning; the lion, of strength.

Rem. 2.—A Parable is a relation of something real in nature from which a moral is drawn.

Ex.—Parable of the Poor Man and his Lamb.—2 Sam. xii, 1-5. Of the Sower.—Matt. xiii. Of the Ten Virgins.—Matt. xxv.

5. Synecdoche is a figure by which the whole is put for a part, or a part for the whole; a species for a genus, or a genus for a species, etc.

Ex.—Roof, for house or dwelling; bread, for food generally; cut-throat, for assassin.

Rem. 1.—Antonomasia is the use of a proper name for a common name, or the name of some office, rank, profession, trade, or peculiarity, instead of the true name of a people or class.

Ex.—“He is a Buckeye,” i. e., an Ohioan; “The Crescent City,” i. e., New Orleans.

Rem. 2.—Euphemism is the substitution of a delicate word or expression for one which is harsh or offensive.

Ex.—Departed, gone to rest, fallen asleep, for dead; stopped payment, for become bankrupt; embezzlement, for theft.

6. Metonymy is a change of names, or a figure by which one word is put for another.

Ex.—Gray hairs, for old age; purse, for money; fare, for a passenger; city, for its inhabitants; “Ye devour widows' houses.”

7. Antithesis is the opposition of words and sentiments contained in the same sentence.

Ex.—"Excess of ceremony shows want of breeding;" "Wit laughs at things; humor laughs with them."—Whipple.

8. Epigram is a sentence in which the form of the language contradicts the meaning conveyed.

Ex.—"I can not see the city for the houses." "Summer has set in with its usual severity."—Walpole. "Any thing awful always makes me laugh."—Lamb. "Nothing so fallacious as facts, except figures."—Canning.

Rem. 1.—The Epigram awakens attention by the seeming irrelevance of the assertion, or by the form given to it.

Rem. 2.—The Paronomasia, or Pun, is a play on the various meanings of the same word.

Ex.—A friend of Curran, hearing a person near him say curosity instead of curiosity, exclaimed: "How that man murders the English language!" "Not so bad," said Curran; "he has only knocked an i out."

Rem. 3.—The Conundrum is a sort of riddle, in which some odd resemblance between things unlike is proposed for discovery.

9. Hyperbole is an exaggeration of the meaning intended to be conveyed, by magnifying objects beyond their proper bounds.

Ex.—"The land flows with milk and honey." "The English gain two hours a day by clipping words."—Voltaire.

10. Interrogation is the putting in the form of a question what is meant to be strongly affirmative.

Ex.—"Canst thou by searching find out God?"

11. Climax is an arrangement of the parts of a sentence, by which they are made to rise step by step in interest or importance.

Ex.—"It is an outrage to bind a Roman citizen; to scourge him is an atrocious crime; to put him to death is almost a parricide; but to crucify him—what shall I call it?"—Cicero.

Rem.—Anti-climax is any great departure from the order required in climax.

Ex.—“That all-softening, overpowering knell,
The tocsin of the soul—the dinner-bell.”—Byron.

12. Exclamation is the animated or impassioned expression of sudden and intense emotion.

Ex.—“Oh, what a pity!” “A horse, a horse, my kingdom for a horse.” “Blow, winds, and crack your cheeks!”

13. Apostrophe is the turning away from the real auditory, and addressing an absent or imaginary one.

Ex.—“Ye toppling crags of ice!
Ye avalanches, whom a breath draws down,
In mountainous overwhelming, come and crush me.”—Byron.

Rem.—Hypotyposis, or Vision, is a description of things in such strong and lively colors, as to bring the absent before the mind with the force of present reality.

Ex.—“I see the rural virtues leave the land.”—Goldsmith. “Greece cries to us by the convulsed lips of her poisoned, dying Demosthenes.”—Everett.

14. Innuendo is a covert suggestion of an author's meaning, instead of an open expression of it.

Ex.—“He did his party all the harm in his power: he spoke for it, and voted against it.”

15. Irony is a mode of expression by which what is said is contrary to what is meant.

Ex.—“No doubt but ye are the people, and wisdom will die with you.” “You are a pretty fellow!”

Rem.—Sarcasm is a keen, reproachful, and scornful expression.

Ex.—“Who but must laugh, if such a man there be?
Who would not weep if Atticus were he?”—Pope.

16. Litotes is a mode of expressing something by denying the contrary.

Ex.—"Nor are thy lips ungrateful, sire of men,
Nor tongue inadequate: for God on thee
Abundantly his gifts hath also poured."—Milton.

17. Catachresis is wresting a word from its original signification, and making it express something at variance with its true meaning.

Ex.—"Silver curling-irons;" "A glass ink-horn;" "Her voice was but the shadow of a sound."—Young.

PUNCTUATION.

241. DEFINITION.

1. Punctuation is the art of dividing written discourse into sentences and parts of sentences, by means of points or marks.

Rem. 1.—Points are principally used for the purpose of rendering the sense more intelligible. They do not mark all the pauses made in reading, though a pause is generally made where a point is used.

Rem. 2.—A change in the punctuation of a sentence, generally produces a change in the meaning.

Ex.—John Keys the lawyer says he is guilty.

John, Keys the lawyer says he is guilty.

John Keys, the lawyer says he is guilty.

"John Keys the lawyer," says he, "is guilty."

2. The principal marks used in punctuation are the following:

Comma, ,	Exclamation Point, !
Semicolon, ;	Dash, —
Colon, :	Curves, ()
Period,	Brackets, []
Interrogation Point, ?

242. THE COMMA.

The Comma denotes the slightest degree of separation between the elements of a sentence.

Rule I.—A complex subject, if long, should be separated from the predicate by a comma.

Ex.—The patriarchal church, inconsiderable in size and mean in decoration, stands on the outermost islet of the Venetian group.—Ruskin.

Rule II.—A clause used as subject, if it ends with a verb, should be separated from the predicate by a comma.

Ex.—1. Whatever is, is right. 2. Whosoever perseveres, will succeed.

Rule III.—Nouns and pronouns in the nominative absolute case by pleonasm or direct address, should be separated from the rest of the sentence by commas.

Ex.—1. Our souls, how heavily they go, to reach immortal joys.
2. Take, O boatman, thrice thy fee.

Rule IV.—Adjective, participial, appositive, and absolute phrases, should be separated from the context by commas.

Ex.—1. Faithful to his promise, he assisted me in obtaining employment. 2. Having once lost the good opinion of our friends, it is difficult for us to reclaim it. 3. The maxim, “Enough is as good as a feast,” has silenced many a vain wish.

Rem. 1.—Nouns in apposition, unmodified, or modified by the only, are not separated by commas; as, “The Emperor Nero was a cruel tyrant;” “Thomson the poet was indolent.”

Rem. 2.—An appositive word or expression introduced by as or or, should be set off by a comma; as, “So that he, as God, sitteth in the temple of God;” “Maize, or Indian corn, is raised here.”

Rule V.—Transposed words, phrases, and clauses are usually set off by commas.

Ex.—1. Doubtless, the man is guilty: the evidence, however, is not conclusive. 2. Whom ye ignorantly worship, Him declare I unto you.

Rem. 1.—A transposed objective element is not usually set off by a comma; as, "That book he has never returned."

Rem. 2.—When an inverted expression begins with it is or only, it is not set off by a comma; as, "It is a pleasant thing to see the sun;" "Only on slight occasions they felt disposed to be merciful."

Rule VI.—Parenthetical words, phrases, and clauses should be separated from the rest of the sentence by commas.

Rem.—A parenthetical word or expression is one which is not essential to the grammatical construction of a sentence, but is required to express its full meaning.

Ex.—1. He invented, it is said, the theory of moral science. 2. That excitement, too, was of the most dangerous kind.

Rule VII.—Adverbs used independently, or modifying an entire proposition, should be set off by commas.

Ex.—1. Yea, the earth itself shall pass away. 2. Well, if this is law, I want no more of it. 3. Indeed, you must wait a while.

Rule VIII.—When a verb is omitted to avoid repetition, its place is usually supplied by a comma.

Ex.—1. One murder makes a villain; millions, a hero. 2. War is the law of violence; peace, the law of love.

Rem.—There are many exceptions to this rule. The general practice is, to omit the comma unless clearness and precision demand its insertion; as, "Reading maketh a full man, conference a ready man, and writing an exact man."—Bacon.

Rule IX.—Antithetical words, phrases, and clauses should be separated by commas.

Ex.—1. Talent has many a compliment from the bench, but tact touches fees. 2. Strong proofs, not a loud voice, produce conviction. 3. Though deep, yet clear; though gentle, yet not dull.

Rule X.—The members of compound sentences, when short and connected by conjunctions, should be separated by commas.

Ex.—The simplicity of his character inspired confidence, the ardor of his eloquence roused enthusiasm, and the gentleness of his manners invited friendship.

Rule XI.—Two correlative clauses should be separated by commas.

Ex.—As the lightning that lighteneth out of the one part under heaven, shineth unto the other part under heaven, so shall the Son of Man be in his day.

Rem.—Two correlative clauses, joined by as or than, should not be separated by a comma; as, "She is as old as he?" "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches."

Rule XII.—The clauses of complex sentences should be separated by commas, unless the dependent clauses are very short and the connection very close.

Ex.—I took notice, in particular, of a very profligate fellow, who, I did not question, came loaded with his crimes; but upon searching his bundle, I found that, instead of throwing his guilt from him, he had only laid down his memory.—Addison.

Rule XIII.—When words are arranged in pairs, each couplet should be set off by commas.

Ex.—Sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish, I give my hand and my heart to this vote.

Rule XIV.—Each term of a series of words in the same construction, should be set off by commas.

Ex.—War, peace, darts, spears, towns, rivers, every thing, in his writings, is alive.

Rem.—Two words, closely connected by a conjunction, should not be separated; as, “Honor and fame from no condition rise.”

Rule XV.—A direct quotation, separated by a principal clause, should be set off by commas.

Ex.—“Oh, Mr. Pickwick,” said Mrs. Bardell, trembling with agitation, “you’re very kind, sir.”

Rule XVI.—A quoted sentence, a long infinitive phrase, or an indirect quotation, introduced by that, should usually be set off by a comma.

Ex.—1. He asked, “Why are you so melancholy?” 2. I have heard say of thee, that thou canst understand a dream to interpret it. 2. To correct such gross vices as lead us to commit a real injury to others, is the part of morals, and the object of the most ordinary education.—Hume.

Rule XVII.—Words repeated for emphasis should be set off by commas.

Ex.—Verily, verily, I say unto you.

Rule XVIII.—Whenever ambiguity would arise from its omission, a comma should be inserted.

Ex.—I have a house with nine rooms, and out-buildings.

E X E R C I S E S .

Insert commas wherever required in these sentences:

1. A man who does so care has a garment embroidered with hooks which catches at every thing that passes by.
2. Come Rollo—let us take a walk.
3. We often commend as well as censure imprudently.
4. The deaf and the blind and the lame were there.
5. The rich and the poor—the high and the low—the learned and the unlearned—have access alike to this fountain of peace.
6. I see then in revelation a purpose corresponding with that for which human teaching was instituted. 7. The oranges, lemons and figs which grow in the northern range of the Southern States are of an inferior quality.

8. "Think you Abel" said Paul at last "that the storm drove thither?" 9. Yes, I am sure it is so. 10. As it was then so it is now. 11. He that seeketh findeth. 12. I lisped in numbers for the numbers came. 13. The idle want steadiness of purpose; the indolent power of exertion. 14. It was said of Socrates that he brought philosophy down from heaven to dwell among men. 15. An indirect advantage but a very considerable one attendant upon various modes of recreation is that they provide opportunities of excelling in something to boys and men who are dull in things which form the staple of education.

243. THE SEMICOLON.

The Semicolon denotes a degree of separation greater than that denoted by the comma.

Rule I.—The semicolon should be used before as, namely, to wit, viz., introducing an example or an illustration.

Ex.—1. One part only of an antithesis is sometimes expressed; as, "A friendly eye would never see such faults." 2. Some men distinguish the period of the world into four ages; viz., the golden age, the silver age, the brazen age, and the iron age.

Rule II.—The semicolon is used to separate the members of a compound sentence, when the connective is omitted.

Ex.—The earth glows with the colors of civilization; the banks of the stream are enameled with the richest grasses; woodlands and cultivated fields are harmoniously blended; the birds of spring find their delight in orchards and trim gardens, variegated with choicest plants from every temperate zone; while the brilliant flowers of the tropics bloom from the windows of the green-house and the saloon.—Bancroft.

Rule III.—The members of a compound sentence, if long, or if their parts are set off by commas, should be separated by semicolons, even when joined by connectives.

Ex.—And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers.

Rule IV.—Successive clauses having a common dependence, should be separated by semicolons.

Ex.—My imagination would conjure up all that I had heard or read of the watery world beneath me; of the finny tribes that roam in the fathomless valleys; of shapeless monsters that lurk among the very foundations of the earth; and those wild phantasms that swell the tales of fishermen and sailors.—Irving.

Rem.—This rule applies, also, to a series of phrases, some one of which is composed of parts separated by commas; as, “To be delivered from trouble; to be relieved from power; to see oppression humbled; to be freed from sickness and distress; to lie down as in a bed of security, in a long oblivion of our woes; to sleep in peace without the fear of interruption;—how pleasing the prospect!”

Rule V.—An inferential, contrasted, or explanatory clause, introduced by for, but, and, or an equivalent connective, is usually set off by a semicolon.

Ex.—1. Rejoice the soul of thy servant; for unto thee, O Lord, I lift up my soul. 2. The person he chanced to see, was, to appearance, an old, sordid, blind man; but upon his following him from place to place, he at last found, by his own confession, that he was Plutus, the god of riches, and that he was just come out of the house of a miser.

Rem.—When the clauses are short, the semicolon is frequently replaced by the comma; as, “I go, but I return.”

E X E R C I S E S .

Insert semicolons wherever required in these sentences:

1. A Scotch mist becomes a shower, and a shower, a flood, and a flood, a storm, and a storm, a tempest, and a tempest, thunder and lightning and thunder and lightning, heaven-quake and earth-quake. 2. Wit is abrupt, darting, scornful, and tosses its analogies in your face, Humor is slow and shy, insinuating its fun into your heart. 3. An enigma is a dark saying, an obscure question, a riddle.

244. THE COLON.

The Colon denotes a degree of separation greater than that indicated by the semicolon.

Rule I.—The colon should be used after the formal introduction to a speech, a course of reasoning, a lengthy quotation, or an enumeration of particulars.

Ex.—1. Then closing the book, he proceeded in a lower tone: “The philosophers of whom you have read in the dictionary, possessed this wisdom only in part, because they were heathens.”

2. Be our plain answer this: the throne we honor is the people’s choice; the laws we reverence are our brave father’s legacy; the faith we follow teaches us to live in bonds of charity with all mankind, and die with hope of bliss beyond the grave.

Rule II.—The colon should be used before an explanatory remark, or one which presents the meaning of the preceding sentence in another form.

Ex.—1. All reasoning is retrospective: it consists in the application of facts and principles previously known. 2. By degrees he infuses into it the poison of his own ambition: he breathes into it the fire of his own courage.

Rule III.—The members of a compound sentence, whose parts are phrases or clauses set off by semi-colons, should be separated by colons.

Ex.—We do not say that his error lies in being a good member of society; this, though only a circumstance at present, is a very fortunate one: the error lies in his having discarded the authority as his legislator; or, rather, in his not having admitted the use of that authority over his mind, heart, or practice.

EXERCISES.

Insert colons wherever required in these sentences:

1. There are five senses, sight, hearing, feeling, taste, and smell.
2. The discourse consisted of two parts, in the first was shown the necessity of exercise; in the second, the advantages that would result from it.
3. Men's evil manners live in brass; their virtues we write in water.
4. Write on your slates the following example, the lake is very deep.

245. THE PERIOD.

The Period denotes the greatest degree of separation.

Rule I.—The period should be placed at the end of a declarative or imperative sentence.

Ex.—1. Contrivance proves design. 2. Study diligently.

Rem.—A period is sometimes placed at the end of the first of two or more complete sentences joined by conjunctions; as, "Seeing, then, that these things can not be spoken against, ye ought to be quiet, and to do nothing rashly. For ye have brought hither these men, who are neither robbers of churches, nor yet blasphemers of your goddess."

Rule II.—The period should be placed at the end of every abbreviated word.

Ex.—H. M. Swainson, Esq., b. Feb. 10, 1757, d. Ap. 3, 1812.

Rem. 1.—The period, thus used, is a part of the abbreviation. Except at the end of a sentence, the point required by the construction should be used after it; as, "Sir Humphrey Davy, F. R. S., etc.;" "Ohio is bounded N. by Mich. and L. E.; E. by Pa. and Va.; S. by Va. and Ky.; W. by Ind."

Rem. 2.—Some proper names, though shortened, should not be regarded as abbreviations; as, "Tom Moore;" "Will Shakespeare;" "O rare Ben Johnson."

Rem. 3.—Such expressions as 4to, 8vo, 12mo, 1st, 2d, 3d, 5's, 11's, 4°, 7', etc., are not abbreviations. The figures supply the places of the first letters of the words, and the signs or indices supply the place of words.

Rem. 4.—The period should be placed before decimals, and between the denominations of sterling money; as, $35.75; £5. 12s. 6d.

Rem. 5.—The period should always be placed after letters used as numerals; as, Ps. lxxv. 6, 7; George III., King of England.

Rem. 6.—The period should be placed at the end of titles, headings, etc.; as, "Concerning Veal." "Hopkins & Co." "The Preposition." "Chap. XXVII."

EXERCISES.

Insert periods wherever required in these sentences:

1. D. K. Merwin Esq was chosen chairman.
2. H C Cartwright b A D 1825, d Feb 2, 1854
3. See Rev xii 11.
4. Chapter XX § IV Part II
5. It cost in London £6, 7s, 8d.

246. THE INTERROGATION POINT.

The Interrogation Point denotes that a question is asked.

Rule.—The interrogation point should be used at the end of an interrogative sentence.

Ex.—1. Were you there? 2. By whom was this extraordinary work of art executed?

Rem. 1.—When a question is composed of several parts, and when several questions are contained in one sentence, one answer only being required, the interrogation point is placed only at the end; as, "By whom is this profession praised, but by wretches who consider him as subservient to their purposes; sirens that entice him to shipwreck; and cyclops that are gaping to devour him?"

Rem. 2.—The interrogation point should be used after each successive particular of a series of questions, related in sense, but distinct in construction; as, "Why was the French revolution so bloody and destructive? Why was our revolution of 1641 comparatively mild? Why was our revolution of 1688 milder still? Why was the American revolution, considered as an internal movement, the mildest of all?"

247. THE EXCLAMATION POINT.

The Exclamation Point denotes passion or emotion.

Rule.—The exclamation point should be placed after expressions denoting strong emotion.

Ex.—1. Avaunt, thou witch! 2. Mercy, sir, how the folks will talk of it! 3. Alas, poor Yorick!

Rem.—The exclamation point should not be used after interjections closely connected with other words, but at the end of each expression of which the interjections form a part; as, "Fie upon you!" "All hail, ye patriots brave!"

E X E R C I S E S .

Insert the points required in these sentences:

1. What did my father's godson seek your life He whom my father named
2. See there behold look lo if I stand here I saw him.

248. THE DASH.

The Dash is a straight, horizontal line, placed between the parts of a sentence.

Rule 1.—The dash should be used where there is a sudden break or stop in a sentence, or a change in its meaning or construction.

Ex.—1. Dim—dim—I faint—darkness comes over my eyes. 2. It glitters awhile—and then melts into tears. 3. He stamped and he stormed—then his language!—Oh, dear! 4. Miss frowned, and blushed, and then was—married.

Rule II.—The dash is frequently used before words repeated in an emphatic manner.

Ex.—Why should I speak of his neglect—neglect did I say? call it rather contempt.

Rule III.—The dash is frequently placed both before and after a parenthesis—the curves being omitted.

Ex.—They see three of the cardinal virtues of dog or man—courage, endurance, and skill—in intense action.

Rem.—A comma should precede each dash used to set off a parenthetical expression; as, “The archetypes, the ideal forms of things without,—if not, as some philosophers have said, in a metaphysical sense, yet in a literal one,—exist within us.”

Note.—An interrogation or an exclamation point should precede the second dash, when the parenthetical expression is a question or denotes emotion.

Rule IV.—The dash is often used where there is an omission of letters or figures, or of words commonly used to introduce an enumeration of particulars.

Ex.—1. L—d B—n; i. e., Lord Byron. 2. Ps. xxxv. 6—10; i. e., Ps. xxxv. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10. 3. Amongst us men, these three things are a large part of our virtues,—to endure, to forgive, and ourselves to get pardon.

249. THE MARKS OF PARENTHESIS.

The Curves include an expression which has no necessary connection, in sense or construction, with the sentence in which it is inserted.

Rem.—Such an expression is called a parenthesis.

Rule.—The curves should include those words which may be omitted without injury to the sense, or without affecting the grammatical construction of the sentence.

Ex.—Shall we continue (alas, that I should be constrained to ask the question!) in a course so dangerous to health, so enfeebling to mind, so destructive to character?

Rem. 1.—When any point is required after the word preceding a parenthesis, it should be placed after the second curve; as, “My gun was on my arm (as it always is in that district), but I let the stoat kill the rabbit.”

But, should the parenthesis be a question or an exclamatory expression, the point should be placed before the first curve, and that which belongs to the parenthesis before the second; as, “She had managed this matter so well, (oh, she was the most artful of women!) that my father’s heart was gone before I suspected it was in danger.”

Rem. 2.—The words included by the curves should be punctuated as an independent expression; as,

“The Frenchman, first in literary fame,
(Mention him, if you please. Voltaire?—The same.)
With spirit, genius, eloquence supplied,
Lived long, wrote much, laughed heartily, and died.”

Rem. 3.—The curves sometimes include letters or figures used to enumerate subjects or divisions of a subject, treated of in didactic or scientific works; as, “(a.) What it does; (b.) What it is.” “The beds of the Jackson epoch, or Upper Eocene, are (1.) Lignitic clay; (2.) White and blue marls, the former often indurated.” They are also used to include references; as, “(See page 21).”

EXERCISES.

Insert the dash and the curves wherever required in these sentences:

1. He had a large blunt head; his muzzle black as night, his mouth blacker than any night; a tooth or two, being all he had, gleaming out of his jaws of darkness.
2. The faithful man acts not from impulse but from conviction, conviction of duty, the most stringent, solemn, and inspiring conviction that can sway the mind.
3. The Egyptian style of architecture see Dr. Pocock, not his discourses, but his prints was apparently the mother of the Greek.

250. BRACKETS.

Brackets are used to inclose words, phrases, and clauses explanatory of what precedes them, or to correct an error.

Ex.—1. They [the Indians] are fast disappearing. 2. I wish you would do like [as] I do.

251. OTHER MARKS USED IN WRITING.

I. The Apostrophe ['] is used to denote the omission of one or more letters, or to mark the possessive case.

Ex.—1. You 're overwatched, my lord. 2. Variety 's the very spice of life. 3. The King's English. 4. Webster's Dictionary.

Rem.—The apostrophe is also used in forming the plurals of letters, figures, marks, etc.; as, "Dot your i's and cross your t's." "Cast out the 9's." "T's and Z's."

II. The Hyphen [-] is used (1) to join the parts of compound words and expressions; (2) to divide words into syllables; (3) after a syllable at the end of a line, when the rest of the word is carried to the next line.

Ex.—1. Heaven-born band. 2. Thou many-headed monster thing.—Scott. 3. He is my father-in-law, and always wears a pepper-and-salt suit. 4. Com-mu-ni-ca-tive-ness.

III. The Quotation Marks [“ ”] are used to show that a passage is taken verbatim from some author.

Ex.—Cowper says, “Slaves can not breathe in England.”

Rem.—A quotation included within another should be preceded by a single inverted comma and closed by a single apostrophe; as, “‘War, war,’ is still the cry, ‘war even to the knife.’”

IV. The Index [☞] and Asterism [* * *] point out a passage to which special attention is directed; as, “☞ Do not forget the time and place of meeting.”

V. The Asterisk [*], the Obelisk or Dagger [†], the Double Dagger [† †], the Section [§], the Parallel [||], and the Paragraph [¶], refer to notes in the margin or at the bottom of the page.

Rem.—Lower case letters and figures, of a smaller size, or letters and figures included in curves, are used for reference marks.

VI. A long dash [——] or several asterisks [*] denote the omission of letters in a word, of words in a sentence, or sentences in a paragraph.

Ex.—Miss M * n. Mr. A —— h.

VII. The Brace [~~~~~] connects a number of words with a common term.

VIII. Paragraph [¶] denotes the beginning of a new subject.

IX. The Section [§] denotes the divisions of a sentence.

X. The Tilde [ñ],—a Spanish mark placed over n,—annexes to it the sound of y; as, cañon, pronounced can-yon.

XI. The Cedilla [ç],—a French mark, joined to c,—gives to this letter the sound of s; as, façade.

XII. The Caret [^] is used in writing, to show that some letter, word, or phrase has been omitted.

a not countries

Ex.—The seasons are alike in all of the same region.

XIII. The Macron [-] marks a long sound, as in lōne; the Breve [˘], a short sound, as in nōt; the Dieresis [..] separates two vowels into two syllables, as aēriform.

XIV. The Acute Accent ['] commonly denotes a sharp sound; the Grave Accent [''], a depressed sound; the Circumflex Accent [˘ or ˘˘], a broad sound.

Rem.—In most works on elocution, the acute accent denotes the rising inflection; the grave accent, the falling inflection; the circumflex, a union of the acute and the grave.

EXERCISES.

Note to Teachers.—Exercises in punctuation may be selected from the Readers in general use. Require pupils to give rules or cite remarks for the use of all the points they may find. Select, also, passages from good authors, and pronounce the words in consecutive order, slowly and distinctly, as in a spelling lesson, without indicating the grammatical construction by tone or inflection. Require pupils to write these as pronounced, and to separate them into sentences and parts of sentences by the proper points.

Punctuate properly the following examples, and observe the rules for the use of capitals:

What tubero did that naked sword of yours mean in the battle of pharsalia at whose breast was its point aimed what was then the meaning of your arms your spirit your eyes your hands your ardor of soul what did you desire what wish for I press the youth too much he seems disturbed let me return to myself I too bore arms on the same side cicero presently my soul grew stronger hesitating then no longer sir said I or madam truly your forgiveness I implore but the fact is I was napping and so gently you came rapping and so faintly you came tapping tapping at my chamber door that I scarce was sure I heard you here I opened wide the door darkness there and nothing more poe
